PORTLAND NOTES.

Billings, 1283 East Eighth street, collapsed, and he lost nearly all of his stock. The oval house in the Pfunder range on East Forty-ninth street was destroyed, and John Willius, the lessee, met with quite a loss. August Zitzewitz said he did not get much sleep during the five weeks of storms. He used all of the fuel on hand and was saved from loss by an honest fuel supply man, who delivered wood when the cost of delivery came to more than the price of the wood. George Goos moved his dwelling stoves into his greenhouses during the worst weather.

Various Notes.

Frank Chervenka, who left a position with Clarke Bros., in 1914, to take an interest in the Holden Floral Co., has sold his interest and returned to the position he left. He is foreman of the firm's range at Hillsboro.

Martin & Forbes displayed some vanda orchids, the only specimens of that variety seen this season. February 18 the awning on the side facing the south was let down for the first time in almost four months.

S. G. Lubliner considers himself among those specially blessed and is, consequently, happy, for February 12 Mrs. Lubliner presented him with a fine 8-pound son. Having been born on Lincoln's birthday, the youngster's middle name will be Abraham.

Karl Birstel has brought in good potted violets of the Czar variety.

A. Hanson, of Vancouver, Wash., was a visitor last week. He reports a prosperous year. He has leased his range near Orchards, Wash., to a party who is repairing it with a view of purchasing. Mr. Hanson said the ice storm was severe and did much damage. The casings of ice were more than two inches in diameter on all wires and other objects.

Niklas & Son report a good business in potted plants February 12 and 14. The firm had on display some excellent cinerarias, grown at its range at East Twenty-first and Belmont streets.

E. R. Chappell says he has had a satisfactory business since he opened a store in the Broadway building last December. He is pleased with the business that came in St. Valentine's day.

The Tonseth Floral Co. had a supply of potted tulips that was sold by February 14.

R. C. Cook said that, in spite of his having to retire to his basement on some of the worst days, his business so far amounts to more than that of the same period last year.

Max Smith reports a good business in bulbous stock.

John Mates was married February 9. He left his position with the Marshfield Floral Co. and now is private gardener for Philip Buehner, at Mount Tabor. S. W. W.

Flint, Mich.—A florist's business has been started at 1327 South Saginaw street, by Messrs. Clason and Ellis.

Make Customers Successful with Your Plants

Your customers buy potted plants. Often they wither and die and you are blamed for the failure. It's simply because plant food is lacking. Your customers don't want fertilizers with offensive odors. They need Odorless Fertilo that does not mar the fragrance of the flowers. Just the material for Lawns, Flowers, Shrubs and Small Gardens. You can sell several cans of Odorless Fertilo to each customer who buys potted plants and several bags to those with gardens. Make them more successful and they will become flower enthusiasts.

FERTILO is nature's pure plant food and combines all the essential elements required by plant life: Ammonia, Phosphoric Acid, Bone, Phosphate of Lime and Potash. Makes the necessary Humus for enriching the soil and is also an excellent Insecticide.

FERTILO is odorless, will not get hard and lumpy. Put up in handy containers in 1 and 5-lb. sizes, and in 10 and 80-lb. bags. The 1-lb. package will fertilize 10 gallons of earth for potted plants or 50 sq. ft. of surface. Retails for 25c. Full and simple directions printed on each package.

Florists, truckers and landscape gardeners recommend Odorless Fertilo.

Let us send you free sample of the 1-lb. package together with full particulars and quote you our liberal terms to Florists.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

NURSERY STOCK AS A SIDE LINE

Many florists who take orders for outdoor planting, but restrict themselves to the use of soft-wooded stock, might find it profitable to handle also hardy shrubs and trees. Thus they could lengthen the outdoor season at both ends and pad it in the middle, meanwhile padding their pocketbooks.

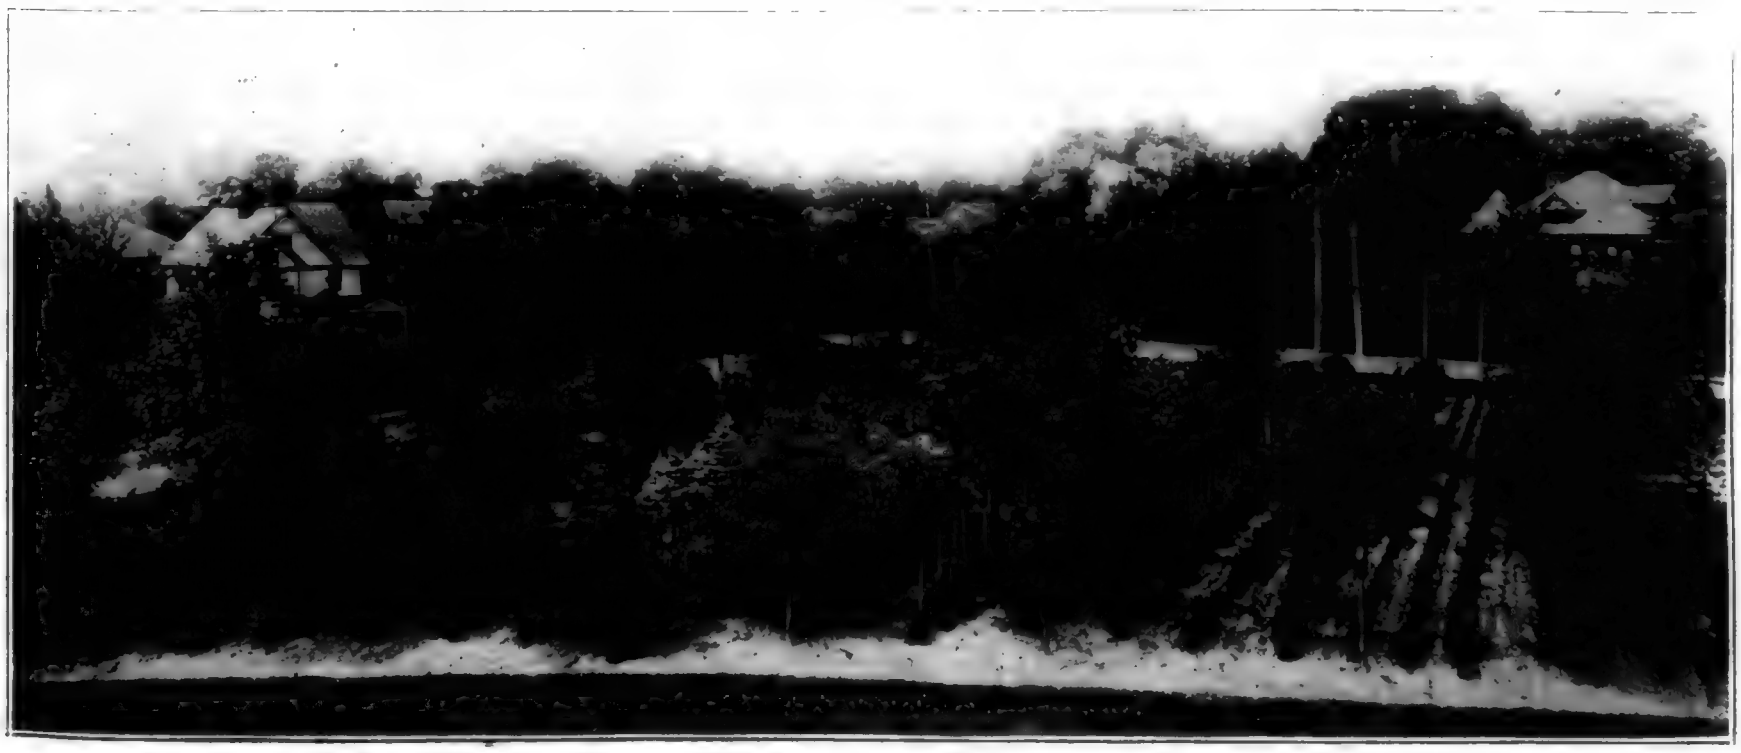
NURSERY stock as a side line—yes, but what at first is merely a side line, an insignificant appendage to the business, may develop until it rivals the so-called r e g u l a r line, keeping the force of helpers steadily busy and making every week of the year yield a revenue. As to whether or not the side line will so develop, or will shrivel into nonexistence, that will depend on—more things than this writer will be able to mention.

Circumstances That Alter Cases.

Each reader must decide for himself, of course, whether the suggestions here offered can be of any use to him. The florist himself is the best judge of his local opportunities. Those famous little reconstructors of destinies, the circumstances that alter cases, are everywhere active—not only the external circumstances, but also the mental attributes of the florist himself. Some individual florist may have unusually little love or taste for anything in the nature of landscape work, and may wish to concentrate his energies on the affairs for which he considers himself best fitted. Or his environment may be such as to make the creation of a demand for shrubbery an exceptionally difficult, almost hopeless undertaking.

On the other hand, it is well known that hosts of florists, florists of many degrees and descriptions and in many sorts of communities, derive a large part of their income from the handling of shrubs and trees. And they are not, or need not be, in unfair competition with the regular nurserymen. The nurserymen generally share in the profits and are glad to coöperate with the florist-planters.

The nursery business as a side line is especially helpful, of course, in early spring and late fall, but it may overlap so as to cover other parts of the year, filling many gaps in the oft-mentioned volume of trade. And if a florist is thus able to retain a permanent, good-sized staff of assistants, keeping them busy throughout the year, he then has a reserve force of skilled helpers for such emergencies as the Christmas or Memorial day rush. Then he can welcome and encourage such rushes, without fear of being overwhelmed by them. The holidays will no longer be a bugaboo. In all of this he would display good management, the kind of management that insures success.



As Done in a Downtown Store.

Alexander McConnell, the New York florist whose nurseries are partly shown in the illustrations, is only one of hundreds who could bear testimony to the fact that a nursery department is a profitable adjunct to a florist's business. Mr. McConnell is typical of a distinct class of florists, the high-grade downtown retailers whose business radiates widely into the suburbs. He takes his orders at his fashionable Fifth avenue store, and procures the hard-wooded stock, or at least a part of it, from his own nurseries near the metropolis—the Woodside Nurseries, at New Rochelle.

Catching the Public Eye.

There is no doubt that the Woodside Nurseries, bordered by beautiful private homes, form a good advertisement of Mr. McConnell's business, and it may just as certainly be taken for granted that Mr. McConnell gives the nursery department all possible publicity at the store, by means of the various devices that resourceful storemen employ. Each department in a well organized business is an advertising agency for all the other departments.

By handling nursery stock, Mr. McConnell is able to start the outdoor season in the chilly, unsettled days of earliest spring, as soon as the condition of the soil permits, and he can prolong the season in the autumn until Jack Frost proceeds to lock up the ground for the winter. And it is not likely that there is a complete cessation of Mr. McConnell's nursery work in the otherwise dull summer months, when

As to whether or not the side line will so develop, or will shrivel into nonexistence, that will depend on—more things than this writer will be able to mention.

Circumstances That Alter Cases.

Each reader must decide for himself, of course, whether the suggestions here offered can be of any use to him. The florist himself is the best judge of his local opportunities. Those famous little reconstructors of destinies, the circumstances that alter cases, are everywhere active—not only the external circumstances, but also the mental attributes of the florist himself. Or his environment may be such as to make the creation of a demand for shrubbery an exceptionally difficult, almost hopeless undertaking.

On the other hand, it is well known that hosts of florists, florists of many degrees and descriptions and in many sorts of communities, derive a large part of their income from the handling of shrubs and trees. And they are not, or need not be, in unfair competition with the regular nurserymen. The nurserymen generally share in the profits and are glad to coöperate with the florist-planters.

The nursery business as a side line is especially helpful, of course, in early spring and late fall, but it may overlap so as to cover other parts of the year, filling many gaps in the oft-mentioned volume of trade. And if a florist is thus able to retain a permanent, good sized staff of assistants, keeping them busy throughout the year, he then has a reserve force of skilled helpers for such emergencies as the Christmas or Memorial day rush. Then he can welcome and encourage such rushes, without fear of being overwhelmed by them. The holidays will no longer be a bugaboo. In all of this he would display good management, the kind of management that insures success.

As Done in a Downtown Store.

Alexander McConnell, the New York florist whose nurseries are partly shown in the illustrations, is only one of hundreds who could bear testimony to the fact that a nursery department is a profitable adjunct to a florist's business. Mr. McConnell is typical of a distinct class of florists, the high-grade downtown retailers whose business radiates widely into the suburbs. He takes his orders at his fashionable Fifth avenue store, and procures the hard-wooded stock, or at least a part of it, from his own nurseries near the metropolis—the Woodside Nurseries, at New Rochelle.

Catching the Public Eye.

There is no doubt that the Woodside Nurseries, bordered by beautiful private homes, form a good advertisement of Mr. McConnell's business, and it may just as certainly be taken for granted that Mr. McConnell gives the nursery department all possible publicity at the store, by means of the various devices that resourceful storemen employ. Each department in a well organized business is an advertising agency for all the other departments.

By handling nursery stock, Mr. McConnell is able to start the outdoor season in the chilly, unsettled days of earliest spring, as soon as the condition of the soil permits, and he can prolong the season in the autumn until Jack Frost proceeds to lock up the ground for the winter. And it is not likely that there is a complete cessation of Mr. McConnell's nursery work in the otherwise dull summer months, when many of his patrons are away for vacation, for the planted grounds need attention in the summer. Moreover, the evergreens which Mr. McConnell has in stock can be transplanted at almost any time, if the operation is properly performed.

In Suburbs or Small Cities.

Florists of the class represented by Mr. McConnell, however, are much less conveniently located for the prosecution of outdoor planting than are those florists whose stores are in the suburbs, or in towns or small cities. Florists so situated, surrounded by private homes with grounds in various stages of adornment or disfigurement or neglect, ought not to have great difficulty in building up a business in the planting of hardwooded stock. Their field of labor, their harvest field, is all around them. If they can obtain contracts to beautify one or two homes, these homes will thenceforth be successful solicitors for more contracts—unless there is something desperately wrong with the beautifying.

Few of these florists, of course, can have their own nurseries. In most cases, in fact, they can get along much better without their own nurseries, especially at first, when their venture as shrubbery planters is still in its undeveloped stage. They can establish business connections with the nearest first-class nurseryman, so as to obtain the stock as it is needed and at such reasonable trade prices as the nurseryman will gladly grant. And many of them can have at least a small patch of ground for the effective display of sample shrubbery, in the planting season or all the year, in addition to such stock as they exhibit in the store itself or about the doorway.

Making Fall Planting Popular.

Since one of the chief purposes in undertaking the planting of hardwooded stock is to lengthen the outdoor season, the florist should do all in his power to overcome the popular prejudice against fall planting. He can exert his persuasive ability in that direction without any twinges of conscience, however sensitive his conscience may be, for most deciduous shrubs flourish as well when planted in the fall as when planted in the spring. Only shrubs that are not entirely hardy are endangered by fall planting. By enlightening the public on this point, the florist will benefit the nurseryman as well as himself, for the nurseryman will be decidedly thankful for an increased proportion of fall business. However, this idea need not be put into effect until autumn draws near. It is spring business that is wanted now.

As to the arrangement of the shrubs on the grounds, there is only space enough here to draw attention to one or two elementary principles, which are already well known to most florists, but which cannot be too forcibly or frequently mentioned.

Magical Power of the Planter.

Since the home grounds in towns or suburbs are generally small, it would be a great mistake to reduce the apparent size of the grounds by planting a shrub or a clump of shrubbery in the middle of the space. It would be an equally serious blunder to clutter shrubs promiscuously all over the grounds, thus producing an impression of crudity and confusion. The central space should be left open, and the shrubbery should be placed along the boundaries, in the corners of the grounds, and in the triangular, oblong or irregular spaces around the porch and other parts of the residence, especially where grass would not grow well. Here and there a shrub or two should protrude just a little beyond the main body of the shrubbery, like military sentinels—or, rather, like "standing invitations," or advance agents to bid visitors welcome.

Such a system of planting, if skillfully carried out, gives the outline of the grounds a softened, gracefully indefinite, picturesque aspect, with delusive little openings or miniature imitations of vistas, thus magnifying the dimensions of the place instead of belittling them. An ingenious, tasteful planter is a veritable magician in his power of producing transformations.

A Planting Plan for Each Place.

Another important rule is to study closely the distinctive features and adaptabilities of each home and use a different planting plan for each one. Each home has, or should have, its own separate individuality and requires separate treatment. It should be the aim of the florist-planter to add to the home such horticultural adornments as fit the contour of the place and look like a completion of the architect's design. Any marked peculiarity of the building or its surroundings provides a first-rate opportunity for the planter, either to accentuate the peculiarity or to veil and obscure it.

If, as is sometimes the case, a whole block of residences is built after the same pattern, looking as if chopped out of one piece of material by a huge automatic machine, then the florist may perhaps have the difficult but worthwhile task of doing what the architect neglected to do, giving each place a character or individuality of its own.

At first a florist may be slow and dubious in estimating the possibilities of a place and laying out a planting plan, but he will gain quickness, skill and certainty by continuing in practice, as a physician attains proficiency in diagnosing his cases. As a planter gains in experience, he acquires an increased power of visioning the finished job, seeing it in his imagination before he begins planting. In the words of the popular figure of speech, he "has a photograph" of the completed job before he puts a spade in the ground.

ruptcy February 22, the treasurer declaring that the company did not have the money to pay the filing fees. The liabilities are listed at $12,143.80, of which $10,965.55 are unsecured. Assets consist of stock, valued at $5,000; debts due on open account, $350; tools, $100; automobile, $100.

New Bedford, Mass.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by Post & Gray. Liabilities are given at $4,938.13, and assets $2,035.02, which include stock valued at $1,000 and bills receivable amounting to $622.62.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—James Dusmanes, a retailer at 360 De Kalb avenue, has been declared bankrupt at his own request. He lists his liabilities at $2,648.88 and assets at $166.

ATTENTION, ILLINOIS FLORISTS.

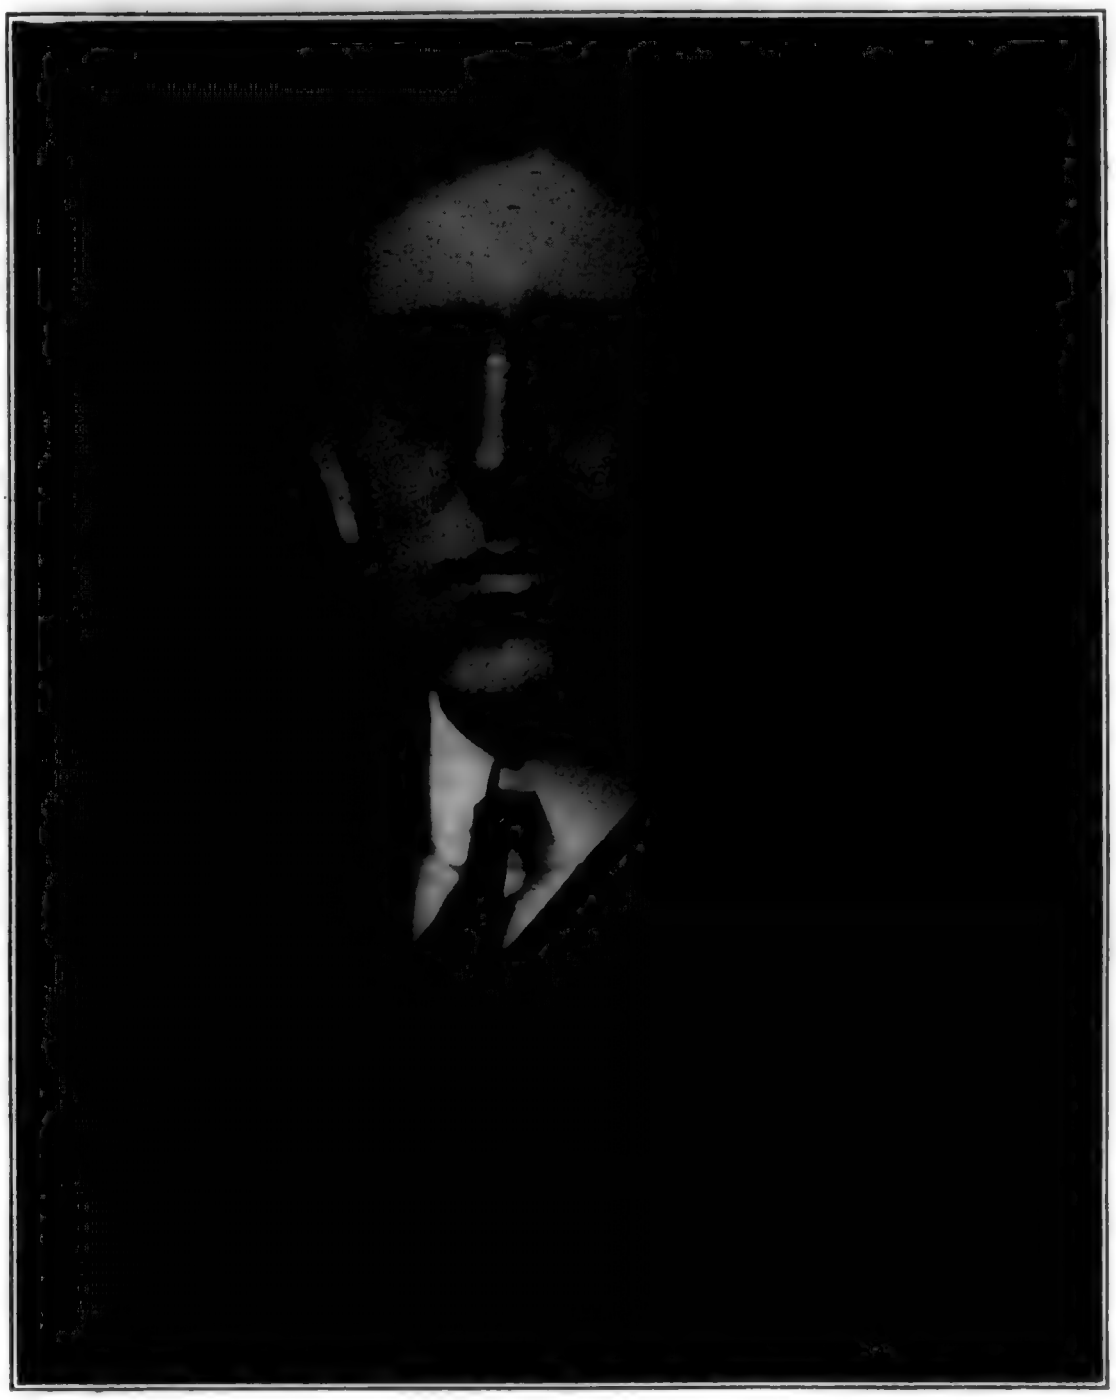
President C. W. Johnson, of the Illinois State Florists' Association, has appointed the following to act as judges of exhibits at the eleventh annual meeting of the association, to be held at Turner hall, Moline, Ill., March 7 and 8: Charles Loveridge, of Peoria; Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge; George A. Washburn, of Bloomington. Judging will begin promptly at 1 p. m., Tuesday, March 7. All novelties exhibited will be judged according to the national society's scale of points, and any entry scoring eighty-five points or more will be given a certificate of merit by the association. Entries should be sent to John Staack, Turner hall, Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street, Moline.

The program for the first day of the meeting is as follows:

Welcome, by Martin R. Carlson, mayor.
President's address, by C. W. Johnson, of Morgan Park.
Secretary's report, by J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville.
Treasurer's report, by F. L. Washburn, of Bloomington.
Report on fertilizer work, by F. W. Muncie, of Urbana.
Report on pathological work, by G. L. Peltier, of Urbana.
Unfinished and new business.
General discussion.
Dinner, at 6 p. m.
"Christmas and Easter Flowering and Foliage Plants," by W. E. Tricker, of Western Springs.
"What the Division of Floriculture Is Doing," by H. B. Dorner, of Urbana.
"Soils," by W. E. Taylor, of Urbana.
Election of officers.

Wednesday, March 8, will be spent in a tour of the greenhouses in Moline and vicinity. All members are cordially invited to attend the meeting and also to make exhibits.

TO KEWITES IN AMERICA.



A reunion and banquet is being arranged for Kew men, their wives and friends, to be held at New York April 5, during the week of the International Flower Show. It is hoped that all Kew men will make a big effort to attend, for this will be the first reunion of this character held in the United States. For full particulars address William Free, head gardener of the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens, Brooklyn, N. Y.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The gentlemen who have accepted invitations to act as judges for the American Rose Society at the coming National Flower Show, to be held in Philadelphia March 25 to April 2, are: Frank H. Traendly, New York; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo; Eugene Dailledouze, Flatbush, N. Y.; Robert Craig, Philadelphia; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; Alex. B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; Wm. L. Rock, Kansas City; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill.; James Forbes, Portland, Ore.; Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, L. I.; Fred Burki, Gibsonia, Pa.; J. H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill, Ont.; George C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Victor Groshens, Roslyn, Pa.

There will be submitted at the annual meeting of the society the report of the committee on standardizing the length of stems of roses and the question concerning the renaming of roses. A proposed standard for outdoor roses made by Dr. Robert Huey, Jesse A. Currey and George C. Thomas, Jr., has been submitted to the executive committee. Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

GEORGE C. THURLOW.

THE name of Thurlow is known in the trade wherever peonies are grown, also wherever the fortunes of the iris and the phlox are followed. The Thurlow nurseries, on Cherry Hill, at West Newbury, Mass., are in the hands of the third generation, having been established in 1832. The title passed to a corporation in 1909, George C. Thurlow being president, David C. Stranger vice-president and Winthrop H. Thurlow treasurer. George C. Thurlow also is president of the New England Nurserymen's Association. He is 34 years of age, married and the father of five children. He is a member of the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club, the American Association of Nurserymen, the American Peony Society and other trade organizations; is a trustee of the Essex County Agricultural School and chairman of the Republican town committee of West Newbury.

SNAPDRAGONS FOR CUTTING.

I would like a little advice on snapdragons for cut flowers. Is Ramsburg's Silver Pink a good variety? Are his white and yellow good for that purpose? When would you advise to sow them so as to have them blooming in the field as early as possible? A. L.—Mo.

The Ramsburg snapdragons mentioned are all good. The earlier the seed can be sown now the better for an early outdoor crop. C. W.

many of his patrons are away for vacation, for the planted grounds need attention in the summer. Moreover, the evergreens which Mr. McConnell has in stock can be transplanted at almost any time, if the operation is properly performed.

In Suburbs or Small Cities.

Florists of the class represented by Mr. McConnell, however, are much less conveniently located for the prosecution of outdoor planting than are those florists whose stores are in the suburbs, or in towns or small cities. Florists so situated, surrounded by private homes with grounds in various stages of adornment or disfigurement or neglect, ought not to have great difficulty in building up a business in the planting of hardwooded stock. Their field of labor, their harvest field, is all around them. If they can obtain contracts to beautify one or two homes, these homes will thenceforth be successful solicitors for more contracts—unless there is something desperately wrong with the beautifying.

Few of these florists, of course, can have their own nurseries. In most cases, in fact, they can get along much better without their own nurseries, especially at first, when their venture as shrubbery planters is still in its undeveloped stage. They can establish business connections with the nearest first-class nurseryman, so as to obtain the stock as it is needed and at such reasonable trade prices as the nurseryman will gladly grant. And many of them can have at least a small patch of ground for the effective display of sample shrubbery, in the planting season or all the year, in addition to such stock as they exhibit in the store itself or about the doorway.

Making Fall Planting Popular.

Since one of the chief purposes in undertaking the planting of hardwooded stock is to lengthen the outdoor season, the florist should do all in his power to overcome the popular prejudice against fall planting. He can exert his persuasive ability in that direction without any twinges of conscience, however sensitive his conscience may be, for most deciduous shrubs flourish as well when planted in the fall as when planted in the spring. Only shrubs that are not entirely hardy are endangered by fall planting. By enlightening the public on this point, the florist will benefit the nurseryman as well as himself, for the nurseryman will be decidedly thankful for an increased proportion of fall business. However, this idea need not be put into effect until autumn draws near. It is spring business that is wanted now.

As to the arrangement of the shrubs on the grounds, there is only space enough here to draw attention to one or two elementary principles, which are already well known to most florists, but which cannot be too forcibly or frequently mentioned.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

MAKING GOOD IN SPOKANE.

Time was when any store interior and exterior were good enough—one could do business in a basement or in a frame shanty; but in these days of keener business competition retailing is almost a science, and the intelligent retailer stints neither his time nor his money in the outfit of his store. Nowadays such things are considered active elements in winning sales. Consequently, when C. T. Kipp, Eugene Szuchiewicz and Paul Jandl planned the new store of the Spokane Florist Co., at Spokane, Wash., of which company they are owners, they called in the city's best architects and told the specialists to produce a flower store that would be the talk of the town. To what degree they succeeded is clearly shown in the accompanying illustrations, which give several views of the new flower store.

The store is 24x95 feet, and about one-third of the distance from the front it widens to thirty feet. The finish of the room is ivory, with a delicate trimming of blue, and there is a terrazzo floor of light color that blends with the interior decorations. The show windows are open to the floor, with only a narrow ledge around them. A large workroom occupies the rear of the store and a balcony affords an excellent place for the office. The conservatory is in the court of the building, a space 17x30 feet. A large mirror furnishes part of the partition between the store and workroom. In front of this mirror and directly under a large skylight is a fountain. The cooler and show case is located in the jog of the room and the refrigerating plant is in the basement. The light is furnished by an indirect lighting system, which provides almost a natural light.

The business in the new location, which is in the center of the best retail section of the city, has been most satisfactory and shows a substantial increase. The Valentine's day business was the best ever experienced. Much advertising has been done and the company now is trying out street car advertising, following it up with advertising folders for the special holidays. A branch store is maintained in the new Davenport hotel. It looks as if Spokane is going to have a Penn some day.

EASTER LILY BUDS BLASTED.

I am sending a sample of Easter lilies with blasted and deformed buds. Can you tell me the cause of this?

H. O. H. & S.—Tex.

The most likely cause is that the bulbs were prematurely dug in Japan, or wherever they were grown. This is accountable for much disease and deformed flowers. An oversupply of water in the early stages of growth tends to aggravate, if not create, this trouble. Moving the plants when in bad from a high to a low temperature causes many buds to burst, and others stand still and will not open at all.

C. W.

BEST MARGUERITES FOR SPRING.

Will you please let me know what is the best single and double marguerite to grow in pots for spring trade?

H. E. Y.—Ill.

If you refer to the marguerite proper, there is no double variety unless Mrs. Sander can be classed as such. The flowers of this variety are single in winter, but are largely semi-double or double during the hot weather. Of the singles the old white form of Chrysanthemum frutescens, commonly known as the Paris daisy, is the most satisfactory one to grow. The larger-flowered ones are less satisfactory.

Some of the annual chrysanthemums are good. Of these Morning Star, single primrose; Evening Star, deep yellow; album, pure white, and atrococcineum, dark scarlet, are good. There are both double and single forms of these.

PERENNIALS FOR CUTTING.

We want to put in from half an acre to an acre of hardy flowering plants so we can have cuts to sell in season, and we want the kind of plants we can dig up in case we have a call for them in the spring or fall. Please let us know when to sow the seed, when to put in the field, how far apart, what kind of seed to get and how many of each. Will some of these bloom this year? Please tell us in what order to plant the seeds to get the best effect. We want to include peonies, the yellow lily that is in bloom at the time the peony blooms, irises and daisies among the others.

C. T. M.—O.

The following desirable hardy perennials you can readily grow from seeds: Delphinium hybridum and Chinense, many of which, if sown now, will flower this season, including all of the Chinense type; Achillea Ptarmica The Pearl, of which some will come single, but a fair percentage double; Gypsophila paniculata comes freely from seed; also, buy one or two plants of that splendid variety, flore pleno; Euphorbia corollata, Campanula persicifolia and C. Medium, or Canterbury bells; the last named is a biennial and needs covering well in winter; foxgloves, but do not sow these until June, when you can sow hollyhocks to get strong plants. The shasta daisies, or Chrysanthemum maximum, especially King Edward VII, are fine. Coreopsis grandiflora is fine for cutting. Do not sow it before June, for it is a rapid grower. Sweet williams, or dianthus, are fine for cutting. Sow these in June. The perennial lupines, Lupinus polyphyllus, are always popular. These come easily from seed.

The columbines, such as Aquilegia chrysantha and mixed hybrids, now sown indoors, will make strong plants by fall, but will not bloom until next year. Pyrethrum roseum comes freely from seed. It will flower next year. Stokesia cyanea is grand for cutting, but will not flower the first season. Oriental poppies, or Papaver orientale, will flower the second year, but the Iceland poppy, or P. nudicaule, will bloom the first year. Lychnis Chalcedonica, or London Pride, and L. Haag-cana will flower this season. Geum coccineum Mrs. Bradshaw is grand for cutting. Sown now, it will flower the first year.

While you can grow phloxes from seed, I would advise buying some plants of desirable varieties. Once you have them you can in future years propagate from cuttings in the spring. Plant some lily of the valley pips. These increase rapidly and are invaluable. Give them a little shade. Peonies you should buy roots of from some specialist, and also of the German iris and Japanese iris. The yellow lily you mention is probably Hemerocallis flava. Buy roots of this. It is an easy doer and soon makes a large clump.

Physostegia Virginiana is fine for cutting. It comes easily from seed. Among other useful things are the hardy asters, or Michaelmas daisies. A mixed packet will give you a fine assortment, flowering the second year. Anemone Japonica alba is a grand fall flower you should buy plants of. The boltonias, like latisquama, Helianthus Soleil d'Or, tritomas, thalictrums and quite a number of other plants are fine to cut from.

In hardy bulbous flowers, Lilium candidum and L. speciosum, Spanish and English iris, montbretias, which need a winter mulch; cottage and Darwin tulips and narcissi are a few you should plant in the fall. Montbretias are better if left until spring. Then there are pansies, double daisies and forget-me-nots, which, sown in July and August, are better if wintered in a frame.

Prepare the ground well for perennials. Strong sorts like larkspurs are best in nursery rows a foot apart. Weaker flowers can go in beds. By sowing now, later transferring to flats, hardening off and planting out early in May, you can get fine field stock of many varieties the first season. A trade packet may contain all you need of most varieties, but of such varieties as larkspurs, or delphiniums, it would be better to buy more. I may have named more varieties than you want to try, but I have omitted many excellent ones. Give the ground a heavy coat of manure, keep well cultivated in summer and give a winter mulch of some sort when the ground freezes up.

C. W.

ASTERS OF MERIT.

Would it be all right to sow Queen of the Market aster now? What variety would you advise to follow it, so that I would have cut flowers until about the middle of August? How would Astermum do? About the middle of August and through September I have Improved Giant Crego in bloom. This variety will be my last. The young plants will be transplanted once or twice and then placed in 2-inch or 3-inch paper pots. I can plant in the field about May 15 or 20, after all danger of frost is past. A. L.—Mo.

Queen of the Market is the best early aster. You can follow this with Astermum or Comet. Crego will be good later. The finest all-around late sorts are Vick's Branching and American Branching. Sow Queen of the Market at once for an early crop and plant outside about May 15. They will be just as good if transplanted into flats and from there direct to the field as if you go to the greatly increased labor of potting them.

C. W.

BLIGHTED NARCISSI.

I am enclosing some stalks of Trumpet major narcissi and should like to know the cause of these blighting as they do. C. B.—Ia.

I should say the narcissi had either been kept too dry at the root in the early stages of growth or, more probably, the bulbs were heated in transit from abroad. A good many narcissus bulbs are affected in this way this season.

STARTING AN OUTDOOR CROP.

Sowing and Planting.

The best outdoor sweet peas are produced when special trenches have been prepared for them the previous fall. Where such work has not been done, a special effort should be made to either trench or spade deeply and enrich the ground, working in plenty of well decayed cow or stable manure, with some fine bone and wood ashes added.

Now is a good time to sow sweet peas under glass, to be planted out from April 10 to May 1, according to latitude. The sowing can be made in 3-inch pots, allowing two seeds to a pot, later thinning out to one, or, better still, in flats or pans of sand, from which the seedlings can be potted singly, kept in a greenhouse for a time and later transferred to a coldframe, where they can be gradually hardened. At planting-out time allow twelve inches between the plants. This may seem wide apart at first, but remember that sweet peas, if given sufficient space for development, are bushy in habit and will soon fill the rows with a dense growth.

Single Stems.

For purely exhibition purposes plants are now trained to single stems and even side shoots removed. With all the strength thrown into a single growth, stems and flowers of wonderful size are produced; they would bring fancy prices in the markets. However, it is doubtful if it would be a paying proposition to many florists unless they had customers willing to pay high prices for such flowers. For supports for growing specimen blooms, bamboos often are used, with wires run lengthwise to keep them erect. For ordinary flowers, birch, wild cherry and other forms of brush are excellent. Where these are unobtainable, wire netting of a somewhat coarse mesh can be utilized.

A Selection of Varieties.

The following is a selection of excellent sweet peas of moderate price: White, Nora Unwin or White Spencer; orange pink, Helen Lewis; cream pink, Mrs. Hugh Dickson or Mrs. Routzahn; blush, Elfrida Pearson; deep pink, Countess Spencer; scarlet, Thomas Stevenson or Scarlet Emperor; picotee edged, Martha Washington or Mrs. C. W. Breadmore; lavender, Florence Nightingale; mauve, Asta Ohn; blue, Captain of the Blues. Of these the best selling colors are deep pink, white, lavender, orange, pink and scarlet, in this order.

Where some of the newer varieties are wanted for a trial, I would suggest the following. These, in nearly all cases, show an advance over the older varieties: White, Constance Hinton; orange scarlet, The President; deep pink, Hercules, which is a glorified Countess Spencer; scarlet, Fiery Cross; salmon orange, Robert Sydenham; self blue, Wedgwood; rosy mauve, The Lady Eveline; salmon rose, Edith Taylor; clear lavender, Margaret Madison.

The Essentials.

A few points to remember about sweet pea culture outdoors are: The ground must be well manured and the more deeply it can be plowed or spaded the better. In sowing seed outside, do it as soon as possible after the frost has left the ground and it has become workable. Cover the seeds about two inches and leave the tops of the rows somewhat hollowed out. Do not fill in about the plants as they grow, as is often recommended, unless you want stem-rot to clear out many of your plants. Sow thinly, or, if the plants come up thickly, thin out to an average of four inches apart. This will give you far better flowers and just as many of them as when you leave them crowded. Give supports in good season. Mulch with old manure, straw, grass or meadow hay when the flowering season starts. Keep the flowers picked clean and remove all seed pods. If aphis appears, spray at once with a nicotine or soapy spray. Syringing overhead on the evenings of hot days is refreshing and abundant waterings, where they can be given, are of great value. It may not be possible to do all these things, but they are the essentials of successful open air culture of sweet peas.

SWEET PEAS DYING.

Why do some of my sweet peas planted in a solid bench die? I limed one bench and planted snapdragons between the rows of peas. The sweet peas appear all right one day, but the next day I find the tops dried and withered. The stalks under the ground seem hard and woody. Would dark weather do this? R. N. P.—Mass.

Perhaps your plants stand too closely in the rows. They ought not to be less than four inches apart. Have you made the common error of hilling them up while they are young? This is accountable for many failures in sweet pea culture. I imagine your soil is not right for the peas. It should be deep, well enriched with old cow manure and possessing good drainage. Keep as even a temperature as you can; 45 to 48 degrees at night before flowering and 50 degrees at night after the flowers open, with a rise to 58 degrees on dark days and 65 to 70 degrees on sunny days. C. W.

S. A. NUTT GERANIUM.

In The Review of February 24 a subscriber asks for the history of the S. A. Nutt geranium. This variety was originated by "Uncle John" Thorpe, pioneer florist and first president of the S. A. F., who died at Chicago in 1909. S. A. Nutt was awarded a certificate of merit by the New York Horticultural Society in 1884 or 1885, and was distributed through catalogues as a novelty in 1886. It was one of a group of five, consisting of Marvel, Mary Hill, pink; Thomas McMurray, cerise; Golden Dawn, orange-scarlet, and S. A. Nutt. All of these originally were grown by Mr. Thorpe. S. A. Hill.

NUTT GERANIUM IN MINNESOTA.

In response to the inquiry for the history of the S. A. Nutt geranium, I will give its history in Minnesota. The first S. A. Nutt geraniums grown in Minnesota were bought by me from Albert Williams, of Sharon, Pa., in 1887. Mr. Williams had received this variety among a number of others from Mr. Simmons, who was distributing a number of new geraniums in 1883 or 1884. The so-called S. A. Nutt now is badly mixed with other varieties.

Gust. Malmquist.

DISEASED GERANIUM FOLIAGE.

I am sending you, under separate cover, samples of diseased geranium leaves. They seem to be affected in two different ways. On some plants the edges of the leaves are affected and on others a small spot appears on the lower side of the leaves. We have noticed this trouble for the last two weeks. Will you kindly tell us what to do? C. K.—N. Y.

Pick off the affected leaves. Give the plants a spraying with Fungine at the strength recommended on the can. Do not syringe your plants overhead when watering or damping down with the hose. Keep the plants a little on the dry side. Let them dry out tolerably well between the waterings. A temperature of not over 50 degrees at night, a comparatively dry atmosphere, abundant ventilation and lots of sun are what the plants need. Also, be careful not to use any fresh manure when potting, as this induces a rank, soft growth, which easily falls a prey to disease. Spread the plants out occasionally and pick off the decayed or decaying leaves. Persevere in this treatment, do not throw any rubbish below your benches and your plants should come out all right. C. W.

FACTS FOR TIMING BULBS.

Please state what bulbs can be forced most easily, Holland, Guernsey or southern bulbs. What are the earliest dates for the following to be brought in for forcing? What temperature should be given and when will the flowers show? Murillo and La Reine tulips; Trumpet major, Double Von Sion, Single Von Sion, princeps, Sir Watkin, Golden Spur, Victoria, Emperor, poeticus ornatus, Barri conspicuus narcissi.

A. R.—R. I.

Guernsey bulbs are earlier than the Dutch bulbs. The flowers are somewhat smaller. French bulbs are earlier than Guernsey, but not so large. Southern-grown bulbs I have had no experience with. The time it will take bulbs to show flowers depends much on when you start them. Started early in January, they need double the time they would in March. Trumpet major, Single Von Sion, princeps and Golden Spur require three to four weeks in a temperature of 55 degrees, according to season; La Reine tulips the same. Murillo tulips, if wanted fairly early, require nearly double the time of La Reine. If started after March 1 they come on much more quickly. Allow Double Von Sion four weeks on the average. Emperor, Sir Watkin and poeticus ornatus should have four to five weeks; Victoria and Barri conspicuus an average of five weeks. Of course all come in less time if the weather is warm. C. W.

HOT WATER ON CALLAS.

I believe that if G. K., of Illinois, would treat his callas as I do mine he would have an abundance of blooms. Give the calla beds a good watering of hot water, but see that it is not scalding. I have treated my callas in this manner all winter and have had free blooms all season. The flowers are extra large, too. I occasionally water the plants with liquid manure and pack well rotted manure on the beds.

OIL FOR FUEL.

I noticed the inquiry of C. F. B. in The Review of February 17 concerning the use of fuel oil in greenhouse heating. As I have been burning oil for several years, I can assist C. F. B., and do so herewith as payment for your kindness in answering my inquiry of January 13:

You cannot burn fuel oil under a hot water boiler unless you have a small steam boiler, fired with wood or coal, to carry a pressure of twenty pounds or more. This you would connect to the oil burner to operate it, but even at that your fire would be much too hot. There are some burners on the market designed for burning distillate, both with and without air pressure, that are, to a certain extent, satisfactory, but distillate is too expensive in most cases to use for fuel.

I would advise you to let oil alone unless you have 8,000 or 10,000 feet of glass, and install a horizontal return-flue high-pressure steam boiler. Fuel oil cannot be burned successfully with less than twenty pounds pressure. You would be obliged to make your own burner, as there is none on the market that would operate with so small a flow of oil as is needed in this case. Fifty gallons of oil, properly handled, will easily keep 5,000 feet of glass hot in zero weather for twenty-four hours.

THE ADVERTISERS' DUTY.

The paper has called attention of patrons of your advertisers to the importance of mentioning The Review when writing to, or ordering from, the advertisers. This has often reminded me of the duty advertisers owe the customers. I have frequently had difficulty to get prompt acknowledgment of receipt of money and order, the advertiser sometimes holding me up in this way until I receive my stock entirely too late for my purpose. Even after writing the second time for a reply, the delay is continued. I have tried the method of first writing to find out if stock is in hand ready to ship, but the delay is only doubled. Advertisers also frequently allow an old advertisement to be repeated after being sold out of the article advertised.

This is exasperating, to say the least. Can not something be done? Why not margin the advertising columns with "Advertisers will please promptly acknowledge receipt of orders, and keep ads up to date"?

"GOING SOME."

My Mrs. Ward carnations carry stems nearly three feet long, but as I want all the cuttings I can get, I leave about eight inches on the plant when I cut. My new stems are nearly all over three feet long now and my flowers of Enchantress now measure three and one-fourth to three and one-half inches in diameter. As my sticks are only two feet six inches above the ground, I sometimes wish the plants would not grow so tall, but what do you think of the growth? I have a space 6x20 feet planted with sweet peas and last week I picked over 2,000 sweet peas off them. I think this is going some.

I enjoy reading the questions in The Review. I have Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress, White Enchantress and Enchantress Supreme, also Philadelphia and Matchless, all planted about September, but have not had a split on them. In October I planted about 100 Ward and 100 White Perfection and half of the flowers are split. The temperature runs all the way from 48 to 60 degrees, so I do not believe the changes in temperature have anything to do with split calyxes, but I believe that the check in the growth of the plants is the real cause, as the first named varieties never were checked, but the latter two were shipped here and were taken up out of the field, while the first were small plants when planted and made their growth in the house. I am feeding my carnations and sweet peas quite heavily, but have not lost any buds on the sweet peas. I had a hard time getting them started, however, as I lost a good many young plants from stem-rot. Wm. H. Hertel.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Roses, carnations and plants will be grown by C. H. Keller in the future, in addition to his market gardening business.

CARNATIONS

FROSTS IN MIDSUMMER.

In this latitude, in the high altitudes of Wyoming, it is impossible to plant carnations outdoors, as we have occasional frosts during June, July, August and September. In such circumstances, could carnation plants be shifted from 2-inch to 3-inch or 4-inch pots in the early spring, instead of planting them outdoors, or would they thrive satisfactorily if set out in benches out of 2-inch pots in the spring? Our outdoor temperature in summer seldom rises above 85 degrees on bright days and 30 or 40 degrees at night. A definite answer to this would be greatly appreciated, as I intend to build a greenhouse in the near future and grow nothing but carnations and pot plants. Our altitude is 6,700 feet above sea level. L. B. W.—Wyo.

Carnations are frequently planted on the benches from pots, and with excellent results. One of the principal reasons why it is not done more generally is that the benches usually are not available early enough. If you can plant the benches by April 1, then you can plant from 2-inch pots, but if the benches are not ready until May or June, then you should shift into 4-inch pots.

After the first season, you would likely prefer to leave the old plants in the benches until later in the summer and I would suggest that you plant the young plants in frames, where you can cover them with sashes in case of frost. There they would grow until early July, when they would be equal to any field-grown stock in this section and would be benched and handled in the same way A. F. J. B.

CARNATION YELLOWS.

We are sending under separate cover a carnation plant which is badly affected with some disease. Our crop looked perfectly healthy until recently, when pale green spots appeared on the foliage, and, as they developed, seemed to destroy the vitality of the plants. In some cases these spots elongate into larger areas of infection, causing the leaf to become hard and brittle. The disease is developing rapidly and threatens to destroy the entire crop. We are satisfied that the cultural conditions are correct, as we have pursued the same methods as in past seasons. We have sprayed the benches occasionally with salt, to ward off spider. Some of the stock we bought, and benched it with our own, in August, but both are similarly affected. The soil is a compost of pure turf and rotten manure, heaped up the year previously. It seems strange that the disease appeared everywhere simultaneously and not in isolated areas. Scarcely a plant has escaped. As the crop is at the height of florescence, we are anxious to know whether we can successfully combat the disease. Any information relating to its nature and elimination would be greatly appreciated.

W. M. M.—Can.

The specimen forwarded was badly affected with carnation yellows, a disease which is being widely discussed and investigated. Its origin is not definitely known; there is more than one theory in regard to it and in regard to its control. The next year should reveal some interesting and instructive developments, which will be of great value to the carnation industry. The best treatment known at this time is to keep it in check by selection of the cuttings, taking cuttings only from the plants showing the least signs of the disease. It is also known that overwatering in dark weather will aggravate it. After a plant is once badly affected, it is impossible to change these spots, as they are the result of broken down and decayed cells in the leaf.

A. F. J. B.

CARNATION MERRY CHRISTMAS.

The Review some time ago expressed its approval of the choice of Merry Christmas as the name for a new carnation, instead of calling it for one of the florists' newrich customers; but the Chicago Florists' Club did better than that—it expressed its approval of the variety itself by scoring it eighty-nine points at its novelty show, February 10.

Baur & Steinkamp, the raisers of Merry Christmas, say: "We feel that in this variety we have the best thing in sight in the way of a scarlet carnation. It is from a long line of scarlet seedling crosses, starting with Victory and Robert Craig. It seems to have all the qualities requisite to a high-grade commercial scarlet. Visiting growers at once pick it out as the best thing on our place."

CARNATIONS FOR OUTDOORS.

Please tell me the best carnations, either white or pink, for outdoor blooming. E. C. M.—N. J.

In white, either Matchless or White Enchantress; in light pink, Enchantress or Alice; in deep pink, Ward or Rosette. C. W.

VARIOUS BARNYARD MANURES.

What do you think of using horse and hog manure in making liquid for carnations? I have a tank that holds fifty barrels of water. Would it hurt a good, healthy bed of carnations to water it with this mixture? Would you advise the use of it in potting soil? What do you think of using chicken manure as a compost for bedding stock, carnations and chrysanthemums? C. H. J.—Mass.

Liquid manure made from stable and hog manure should not harm your carnations in the least. Use about twice as much of the stable manure as you would of cattle manure in making the liquid. Of the hog manure, use about the same quantity as you would of sheep manure.

At the A. C. S. meeting in St. Louis, a successful grower stated that he used chicken manure with good results. He sprinkled a small handful of the material to a row, but only applied it to every second row, to avoid serious effects in case of burning. We have had no personal experience with it in growing carnations. We would not recommend this or the hog manure for mixing compost. Use them only as top-dressing or for making liquid manure. A. F. J. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower markets have begun to show the signs of abundance. Everything seems to promise an "elegant sufficiency." In fact, the recession in prices has already begun. American Beauties have dropped in price to $50 per hundred for the selected and, of course, all other roses follow in their wake, excepting Hadley and Prima Donna, of which the supply is not equal to the demand. From now on there will be enough of everything in roses. Prices on short-stemmed roses fell to $20 per thousand February 26. The department stores are beginning to sit up and take notice, for bargain days are on the way. Carnations at the week's end were down to $20 per thousand for the best stock, while $1 per hundred was the quotation for the lower grades. A few of the carnation novelties still bring from $2 to $3 per hundred.

Longiflorum lilies are again abundant and prices are diminishing, few of the lilies selling above $8 per hundred last week. Valley was scarce and the best blooms sold at $4 per hundred. Gardenias brought the same price per dozen and there were too few of these for the demand. There is no change in the violet market, only the best singles selling above 40 cents per hundred. Doubles are fortunate to command 25 cents. During the warmer weather the street merchants can easily dispose of the surplus. Orchids are stronger and the best blooms of the cattleyas sell at better prices than during previous weeks. There is a large supply of freesias, calla lilies, daffodils and tulips, the latter coming in a flood, as soon will the southern flowers. Spring flowers of all kinds are increasing, including sweet peas, lilac, pansies, daisies, stocks and wallflowers.

Various Notes.

The Greek-American ball of February 24 excelled all its predecessors in attendance, decorations, and enthusiasm. The vaudeville program was exceptionally good and lasted until midnight, followed by dancing, which continued until morning. The estimated attendance was 2,500, including nearly every wholesaler and many of the leading retailers. The expenses of the entertainment totaled more than $1,000, but the managers assert that $1,000 was cleared. The officers of the association are: President, D. J. Pappas; vice-president, T. Malandre; treasurer, Peter Theophine; secretary, C. Tsoumis.

Superintendent Roy, of the Montreal cemetery, was a visitor last week.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., was in the city February 21 and 22, in connection with business relating to the American Dahlia Society, of which he is president. At a meeting of the executive committee Secretary Lane resigned, because of pressure of other duties, and J. H. Dick was appointed to the vacancy. Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., was expected at the meeting, but was detained by injuries received in a fall.

There will be a session of the various flower show committees every Monday until the end of March.

A ribbon house has been opened at 874 Broadway, by G. W. Cohen and M. Hiller. Mr. Cohen formerly was one of the force of Wertheimer Bros.

Charles Schwake and W. E. Marshall are back from their successful western trips, reporting prosperity everywhere apparent in the trade.

At the meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society last week an interesting essay, entitled "The Young Gardener's Opportunity in America," was read.

Paul Meconi, who handles the orchid and gardenia output of the Beechwood Heights Nurseries, is an expert bowler and is open to a challenge from any member of the New York Florists' Bowling Club.

J. H. Small & Sons, who for many years have been located at 1153 Broadway, near Twenty-seventh street, will move this spring to Fifth avenue above Forty-second street.

L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., is adding more than 100,000 square feet of glass to his already extensive range, the houses being erected by Hitchings & Co. The new houses will be devoted to roses. H. E. Froment handles the output of this establishment.

The Elliott Auction Co. announces the opening of its auction season March 7.

The eighth annual dinner of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held in the green room of Hotel McAlpin, February 23. After a hearty dinner, J. H. Fiesser, who is president and who acted as toastmaster, in an appropriate address welcomed the guests and then called upon numerous speakers, including F. R. Pierson, Anton Schultheis, James McHutchison, A. L. Miller, Wm. H. Siebrecht, senior and junior, and others. The attendance exceeded all expectations. The guests were seated at round tables which were so arranged as to leave dancing space at one end of the room.

February 21 the stork left a baby, to be known as Theodore Malandre, Jr., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Malandre. Special floral decorations signalized its arrival.

William Kessler's conservatory is already stocked with a good assortment of Easter plants, the cyclamen especially excelling in size, quality and beauty.

A Summer Flower Show.

A meeting of the International Garden Club was held February 24 to discuss the flower show to be held June 1 to 4, at the club house and grounds, Pelham Manor, Pelham Bay Park, on Long Island Sound. The International Garden Club will offer a prize list of at least $3,000. Many representatives of the trade were present and the following gentlemen were asked to act as a committee to draw up a schedule and to act in an advisory capacity:

Harry A. Bunyard, New York.
George M. Stumpp, New York.
Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.
F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.
Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.
F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

John B. Lager, Summit, N. J.
P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.
W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.
W. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.
Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.
David Ward, Queens, L. I.
M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.
I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, L. I.
John Canning, Ardsley, N. Y.
J. H. Dick, New York.
B. Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.
Leonard Barron, Garden City, L. I.

The International Garden Club will invite the coöperation of national and local societies and it is hoped that an additional $3,000 may be secured for a prize fund, the profits to be divided in ratio to the amounts subscribed by each society.

The Horticultural Society.

The success of the exhibitions for January and February has influenced the society to hold an exhibition in March, contrary to its usual custom. This exhibition will occur March 15, at the American Museum of Natural History. Premiums are offered for collections of cut blooms of orchids, for both commercial and non-commercial growers, and also for roses and carnations for both classes of growers. Schedules are ready, and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

There were no special features to last week's business. Washington's birthday had little effect on the local trade; no advertising was done and there was but little extra business. The supply is ample for all demands, except in a few instances. The demand and prices have been steady. Roses were in good demand for short and medium grades; long and specials sold at low prices, considering the quality. The violet supply has shortened and, while the demand is not large, there is only a small surplus. In sweet peas those of good quality were none too plentiful and they sold well; quantities of superior stock sold at a good price. Carnations in light colors sold well, but reds were draggy even at reduced prices.

Valley has been in good demand at $5 per hundred. Freesia is moving slowly at sacrifice prices. Daffodils sold well but tulips moved at only fair speed. Funeral work was the largest item and there was little surplus at the end of the week. The street fakers were conspicuous by their absence. Smilax still is in short supply, but asparagus and other greens are plentiful and moving well.

Club Meeting.

The largest turnout of members of the season greeted J. Otto Thilow at the regular meeting of the club February 28. Mr. Thilow's address was the best thing the essay committee has put before the club this season, and his talk was both interesting and instructive. At its conclusion he was tendered the thanks of the club. Charles Uffler spoke on hardy plants for bedding and gave a list of varieties that would insure a continuous succession of bloom the entire summer and fall. The question of having a suitable emblem for the club was brought up and adopted. It will be ready for distribution in a short time. The banquet committee reported everything ready for the annual feast of the club at the next meeting, March 13, at Hotel Rennert. Tickets are $2.50 per plate, strictly stag. On account of the election of officers and the banquet, the meeting will be called at 7 p. m. sharp.

Various Notes.

February 14, one of the coldest days of the winter, George Talbot had the misfortune to have one of the tubes in his boiler burst, and before the fire could be drawn to permit a man to enter and plug the leak the temperature in the houses dropped below the freezing point. The stock was a total loss. Mr. Talbot is secretary of the local club and well known to the trade, whose sympathy he has in his misfortune.

E. A. Seidewitz was a busy man last week as chairman of the committee in charge of the Rotarian conclave held in this city. He also was toastmaster at the banquet tendered to the visiting Rotarians by the local club.

Charles E. Smith & Co. have had attractive window displays of plants, consisting chiefly of primulas and azaleas.

Henry Lehr, who has been confined to the hospital for some time, is steadily improving and expects to be able to go home in a short while.

Visitors last week were Robert Shoch and I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, and Roman J. Irwin, of New York.

HYACINTH BUDS DROPPING.

I have trouble with hyacinth buds popping off when about one inch long. I should like to know the cause of this and shall appreciate any information.

W. R. T.—N. J.

You should have no trouble with hyacinth buds "popping off," which, I presume, may mean dropping or damping off, if the plants are properly watered. If the water is poured over the flower spikes the probabilities are that many buds or the whole spike may rot off. Allow your hyacinths to make a growth three inches long in the dark before starting them. C. W.

CANNAS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

When should canna roots be planted in 3-inch or 4-inch pots to have good plants for May 30? Any information will be appreciated. S. B.—N. Y.

Cut your cannas up to strong single eyes and start them in a temperature of 60 degrees about March 15. Pot them when growth starts. Use light, rich soil. Continue to grow them in a warm, moist house. Gradually harden them off before the time for sales arrives. You will have plants of ample size if you start them at the time named. C. W.

Troy, Ala.—Plans have been made by R. B. Chapman to rebuild the Troy Greenhouse, which recently was completely wrecked by a terrific boiler explosion.

Homeland, Ga.—Mrs. J. L. White, who grows flowers outdoors all the year around and ships them to the wholesale market, expects to have 100,000 gladioli flowering in May. Violets may be grown outdoors successfully during the winter months, as well as cannas, dahlias and roses.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Mills, the Florist, takes the prize for originality in valentine window displays. This year's window was so unusual that the daily papers gave it space. By peeping through an opening in the window made to resemble the shape of a heart, the observer saw a wonderful display of flower valentines.

New Orleans, La.—The New Orleans Horticultural Society has selected April 6 to 9 as the dates for the spring flower show. The following constitute the committee on arrangements: P. A. Chopin, Henry Scheuermann, Charles Panter, the Abele brothers, Herman Doescher, Charles Eble, C. W. Eichling, E. A. Farley, Henry Kraak, Claude Ory, J. A. Newsham, F. J. Reyes, M. Scheinuk, B. M. Wichers, Henry Mische and A. Dammerau.

Houston, Tex.—Boyle & Pendarvis have purchased acreage in Westmoreland Farms for the purpose of establishing greenhouses to supply their Main street store.

Montgomery, Ala.—F. A. Morse, until recently pot plant foreman for the Rosemont Gardens, has been appointed manager of the greenhouses of the H. F. Michell Co., at Andalusia, Pa.

Houston, Tex.—An address by R. C. Kerr, vice-president of the Society of American Florists, on "Modern Greenhouse Construction in the South" was the feature of the recent semimonthly meeting of the Houston Florists' Club. Mr. Kerr took up the subject in detail and developed many points of interest as to the manner in which a greenhouse should be constructed in order to make it most effective under the climatic conditions prevailing in Houston. Mr. Kerr stated that in his opinion the retailer should not be obliged to bother himself so much with greenhouses and that the real solution of the problem which Houston florists are facing would be to invite wholesale growers to open establishments in the city. Following Mr. Kerr's address a general discussion was indulged in by the members. Reports were received stating that both the fall flower show and yard contest were financial successes.

OBITUARY

W. Wells.

Probably no Englishman has had so important a part in shaping the course of floriculture in this country as has the venerable W. Wells, whose death February 28 is announced by cable. Mr. Wells was the English representative of the triumvirate of chrysanthemum raisers represented in this country by Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and in Australia by T. W. Pockett, who has raised as many good sorts as any other man now living. The varieties Mr. Totty has introduced in America Mr. Wells has disseminated in England. He has made two tours among the growers in this country, establishing a wide personal acquaintance, and it has been because of his intimate knowledge of conditions here that he has been able to send over so many good foreign novelties and also to take from American growers, for distribution in England, some of the best things now grown commercially in the British Isles.

While Mr. Wells is best known for his work with the chrysanthemum, he has been scarcely less active in the introduction of new carnations, and many other plants have profited by his keen vision, botanical, cultural and financial.

Mr. Wells made his last visit to this country in the spring of 1913. Last autumn he suffered a serious illness, but a surgical operation saved his life. The end came peacefully at his home at Merstham, Surrey, February 28. The business will be continued by his son, who has been the active member of the firm for some years.

W. Wells.

Fred W. Bruenig.

Fred W. Bruenig, of St. Louis, Mo., died suddenly at the Lutheran hospital, in that city, Friday morning, February 25. He was suddenly taken ill while acting as pallbearer for his friend, Conrad Bergstermann, February 23. He was taken home before the funeral services began, and from there to the hospital, where an operation was performed Thursday for an abscess in the stomach. He died the following morning. His death came like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, to his many friends in the trade.

Mr. Bruenig was born in Halle Braunschweig, Germany, in 1863. He came to this country when a young man and settled in St. Louis, finding employment at Charles Elleard's greenhouses, in Elleardsville, where he obtained his first knowledge of the florists' business. After a few years he formed a partnership with Henry Aue, at Gravois and Mississippi avenues. Afterward he bought out the interest of Mr. Aue and since then he has built up a large retail business, with a fine greenhouse plant at Columbia, Ill., which supplied his store. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Clara and Ida, and two sons, Fred W. and Carl.

He was a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club, the Retail Florists' Association and many fraternal orders, the members of which attended the funeral in a body. The funeral took place Monday, February 28, from his late residence, 2215 Mississippi avenue, and thence to Concordia cemetery. The floral tributes from the Florists' Club, Retail Florists' Association and many friends were numerous and magnificent.

J. J. B.

Max Rudolph.

Max Rudolph, the well known Cincinnati retailer and grower, died suddenly of heart failure February 22, at his home, 1633 Elkton place, Cincinnati. He was born in Leipzig, Germany, in 1864. After learning his trade in the country of his birth, he came to the United States at the age of 18. In 1891 he started his retail store on Twelfth street, Cincinnati, and in 1900 built his greenhouses at College Hill. He was successful in his business ventures, and through his thoroughness, his pleasant and kindly manner, he made many friends as well as patrons. At the time of his death he was president of the Cincinnati Florists' Society. He was a member of the S. A. F., the Cuvier-Press Club and the German Pioneer Society. His wife and son, Roy, in Cincinnati, and his mother and one sister, in Germany, survive him.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

H. W. Rieman, of Indianapolis, illustrated the growth in his business by pointing out his two delivery automobiles and spoke of an auto truck to come. Prompt delivery and increasing business area made these essential. A fine lot of French hydrangeas for Easter were noted; also a long line of hanging moss-lined baskets with Boston ferns for centers and Asparagus Sprengeri for borders. Mr. Rieman considers a small block of cypripediums one of the most profitable things on the place.

Fred Heinl, of J. G. Heinl & Son, Terre Haute, Ind., was recently injured in an accident that occurred while he was on a special trip to the cemetery. Mr. Heinl and the driver of the rig were thrown to the ground and hurt, necessitating confinement to their homes. "Rather irritating at this busy time, but it might have been worse," commented our philosophical friend.

William H. Gardner, of Richmond, has secured the Knopf Floral Co. range. Mr. Gardner for several years was with P. J. Olinger & Co., Newcastle, both as grower and manager of the commission end. With an up-to-date range, he enters the field under most favorable conditions.

The Bertermann Bros. Co., of Indianapolis, says everyone fails to recall when flowers were of such value as during the last season. John Bertermann, reporting from the greenhouse range, says Old King Sol is just as shy out there as he is in town.

The E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, has selected from 1,500 rose seedlings, of which Ophelia is one parent, forty to fifty promising scions, one of which, a seedling of Killarney x Ophelia, shines brilliantly as a leader. Joseph Hill speaks highly of Hoosier Beauty, which has superseded their own Richmond. Lady Alice Stanley is well thought of. Killarney Brilliant has made a fine showing. The men in the grafting house are working overtime turning out three crops of 75,000 each time. E. G. Hill was busily engaged in budding a new red on Killarneys planted in the beds. He anticipates a genuine surprise later. The quality of the rose stock is equaled by the carnations. Such varieties as Sensation, Good Cheer and Matchless are in splendid condition. These, with several other popular kinds, are being propagated as fast as possible. Chrysanthemums will be up to the usual high mark.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THERE was another advance of five points in the price of pipe February 29.

GREEN flower boxes rapidly are becoming unobtainable because of the scarcity of the dye.

IF you haven't arranged for a summer supply of giganteum bulbs it will be up to you to pay a pretty penny of premium or go without. First hands will have nothing more to sell until the 1916 crop comes over from Japan.

THE S. A. F. political pot began boiling unusually early this year, in contrast to some recent years when it only reached a simmer in August. The two men whose friends are booming them for the presidency are R. C. Kerr, of Houston, and W. W. Coles, of Kokomo.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture, through its Office of Information, is furnishing newspapers a series of timely articles on starting the season's gardening operations, publication of which will do the trade no end of good. See that the newspaper you advertise in uses the articles; the editor will be glad to print them if he realizes their value.

SINCE the parcel post was established the Editor's desk rarely has been without flowers, sent by readers who had something specially good to show. For a week the desk has been adorned by a vase of Freesia splendens, sent by R. Fischer, San Gabriel, Cal., flowers the size of Purity at its best, deep lavender in color and delightfully fragrant. A few years from now thousands will grow it.

HAIL LOSSES HEAVY.

Secretary Esler, of the Florists' Hail Association, has forwarded the twenty-eighth assessment notices to members of that organization.

Since August 1, 1915, the association has paid $31,700 for glass broken by hail.

THANK YOU, NEIGHBOR!

There is an oversupply of hardy plants in Great Britain, resulting in a fall in prices that has brought about meetings of those engaged in the business to devise ways and means for remedying the situation. In this connection the Horticultural Advertiser (Lowdham) suggests that America affords a market that should be cultivated: "The trade press is available, * * * papers, which for circulation, printing and style are unmatched throughout the world."

IMPORTERS GET PERMITS.

The office of the foreign trade adviser of the State Department has been informed by the British embassy at Washington of the issuance by the British Foreign Office of permits in favor of the following firms, guaranteeing the uninterrupted shipment from Rotterdam of German and Austrian goods, prior shipment of which has been delayed by reason of the operation of the British order prohibiting the movement of so-called enemy goods:

The M. Rice Co., of 1220 Race street, Philadelphia, florists' supplies to the value of 15,191.69 marks.

L. Baumann & Co., of Chicago, artificial flowers, leaves, etc., to the value of 16,530 marks.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., 1129 Arch street, Philadelphia, artificial flowers, baskets, etc., from Germany to the value of 57,051 marks and from Austria to the value of 4,936 kronen.

THREE FROM THE EAST.

And All Dated the Same Day.

The ease and economy with which a greenhouse man in the east can clear his surplus stock through advertising in The Review is becoming pretty well known through the trade. As an additional evidence, here are three letters from three different eastern states, all dated the same day but making a unanimous report:

Please take out our advertisement for a week or two, as we are sold out. As soon as we have caught up we will tell you to put it in again. Thanks for the good work.—T. W. Baylis & Sons, West Grove, Pa., February 21, 1916.

Please discontinue our ad, as it has done its work; we are practically cleaned up.—Bel Air Greenhouses, Bel Air, Md., February 21, 1916.

You will be interested in knowing I have sold over 50,000 Dracæna indivisa in the last six months from my 3-line classified ad in The Review.—William Ehmann, Corfu, N. Y., February 21, 1916.

Those who have not tried it may be interested in knowing just how Mr. Ehmann's ad pulled. His offer was of dracænas at $2 per hundred or $15 per thousand. He says he sold 50,000. If they all went at the thousand rate the orders totaled $750. A 3-line classified ad for six months costs $7.80, or practically one per cent of Mr. Ehmann's sale. As has been said before, can you beat it?

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

HOTELS OF PHILADELPHIA.

For the guidance of those who expect to attend the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, Fred Cowperthwaite, chairman of the information committee, has caused to be compiled the following list of Philadelphia's hostelries and their rates. CHICAGO TO PHILADELPHIA.

The Chicago Florists' Club's party to the National Flower Show at Philadelphia will travel via the Pennsylvania railroad, leaving the Union station, Saturday, March 25, at 3:15 p. m., arriving at Philadelphia 5:50 p. m. the following day. The fare in each direction is $19.10 and the party fare for ten or more people on one ticket is $17.39. The Pullman fares are $3.60 for upper berth, $4.50 for lower. Persons desiring to visit New York during the show at Philadelphia can secure one-way tickets to New York at a cost of $21.10, with the privilege of a 10-day stopover at Philadelphia.

For reservations in the car with the Chicago party address District Passenger Agent E. K. Bixby, 175 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The Chicago market conditions during the last week have been those of a week ago, but more highly accentuated. While there has been at no time what could be termed a glut in any particular item, there has been a sufficiently large supply in almost every line to require real salesmanship to move it.

Prices continue to rule high on Beauties, but there is little demand and even less stock. It is doubtful if there are enough first-class Beauties in the market to fill a good-sized order. The supply of other roses is ample to meet every possible demand. White seems by far the most plentiful. Of the red varieties, Milady moves with the greatest ease. Russell, in spite of the plethora, is giving a good account of itself. As a natural result of the existing conditions, prices are somewhat easier.

The carnation situation is far from satisfactory, as the quality, on an aver-

Short and Medium Roses Again in Good Supply

YOU can order of us all the short and medium Roses you need—after an unprecedented winter shortage we can again fill all orders at moderate prices. On fancy long Roses, which still are in good supply, we are specially strong on Russell, Killarney Brilliant, Ward, Ophelia, Killarney and White Killarney.

Easter Lilies, $6.00 to $8.00

Use Giganteum Lilies for Funeral Sprays and for Wedding Decorations. These are the largest and showiest flowers for the money and we offer a large crop.

Carnations

The quality of our Carnations is extremely good and the supply is the largest of the season to date—we can fill all orders.

Bulb Stock

We handle more bulbous flowers than any other wholesale house in this part of the country. Tulips, Daffs, Jonquils. Of course the quality is good.

SPECIAL THIS WEEK:

Rainbow Freesia, ASSORTED COLORS $3.00 per 100

Beauties

As good as the market affords; a large supply.

Violets

A very large supply; prices extremely reasonable.

Spencer Sweet Peas

Our supply of Spencer (Butterfly) Peas runs into the tens of thousands daily. All colors. A splendid seller in your store.

FANCY FERNS

We pride ourselves on the quality of our hardy cut ferns. If your supply is not entirely satisfactory, try ours.

age, falls short of standard. Many wholesalers report receipts of carnations at least fifty per cent splits. Some report a greater, others a lesser percentage. As shipping orders can easily take care of all the really good stock, it takes alertness on the part of the city buyers and salesmanship on the part of the wholesalers to achieve their respective ends.

Bulbous stock is still plentiful enough, but it is selling slowly. Southern jonquils are here in force, which does not greatly improve matters. Romans are gone. Paper Whites are rapidly receding from a position of prominence. Callas seem to have been touched by some regenerating influence, for though they have been arriving in quantity, they are moving well and at a fair price. Easter lilies, too, are extremely plentiful, but there is no clamor for them. An almost unabated supply of violets arrives on the market, but the demand for them has lost its zest. Really excellent sweet peas remain decidedly scarce, though stock of inferior quality may be had with little difficulty. Calendula is short. So, too, is snapdragon. The status of cattleyas remains much the same. Valley is on the seesaw of supply and demand.

The situation in Mexican ivy is easier. Greens in general are in normal supply and move as well as the rest of the market will permit.

Chicago to Moline.

There are no indications of a large delegation of florists from Chicago to the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Moline next week, but several of the wholesalers and houses in the allied trades will send representatives, so that a fair-sized party will take the train selected by the Florists' Club's committee. The party will leave the Rock Island station, La Salle and Van Buren streets, March 7, at 10 a. m., due at Moline 1:53 p. m., the opening business session being called at 2 p. m. that day. The one-way fare is $3.58. There are no party or other special rates on this trip.

"No Admittance."

The sign at the door of the great third floor of the Le Moyne building means just what it says, except for the trade visitor escorted by F. M. Johnson or one of his assistants; it is factory space, albeit likely soon to become one of the show places of the market.

It was only last week that the heretofore scattered manufacturing interests of the Randall Co. were concentrated in the Le Moyne building, the heavier operations in the basement, the lighter on the third floor. Here in light, airy quarters sit forty basket weavers, their curious equipment about them. Beyond are a score of young lady artists busily hand-decorating a variety of articles. Close by are a half dozen tinsmiths making liners for baskets and vases. Near them are three enclosed air-brush outfits beneath their odd canopies, busily decorating baskets. Off in the other end of the building sit row after row of girls making up artificial flowers, manufacturing wreaths, etc. The air is filled with the hum of industry, although it practically all is hand work. Your guide tells you that the workers nearly all are Europeans, trained in youth to the tasks to which they have here again turned their hands, for the force has nearly all been recruited since the war shut off imports.

When in Chicago you may feel sure of finding a hearty welcome at Randall's. We will be glad to meet you—whether you are on a sightseeing or a buying trip, we are sure we can interest you.

Also, a better understanding always seems to exist between buyer and seller when once they have met face to face, shaken hands and talked by word of mouth instead of on paper.

That's why we repeat—again and again—"Visit us when in Chicago."

Whether you plan to do any buying or not, be sure to look us over; inspect our facilities for serving your later needs.

NOTICE

TO DEALERS IN FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

The magnitude of Randall importations and purchases long has made it possible for us to sell again for less than other dealers had to pay—now Randall manufacturing facilities have been developed to the point where we can place them at the service of wholesalers and jobbers as well as retailers. Our line probably includes the article you need, but if it does not we will make it for you, cheaper than you can make it for yourself and better than it can be made by less expert workers.

Randall Service to Retail Florists

Randall Service to Retailers has come to be widely appreciated. Randall's interest does not cease when the goods are sold to the Florist—Randall helps the Florist sell to the public.

One detail of Randall service is to supply FREE ready-to-print advertisements for local newspapers. These printing plates are of a quality impossible to obtain outside the largest cities, and the cost of art work and engraving is so great no Florist could afford them on ads for his use only.

"The ads and the picture-show slides have greatly increased my business. I feel that I MUST have Randall service in future," writes a retailer who used our St. Valentine's helps.

Here are two NEW ads—plates now ready. Your choice (plate ready to go on the press) FREE with any order for Supplies amounting to $25.00, or both plates Free with any order for Supplies amounting to $40.00.

These are much reduced illustrations of the ads we supply our customers FREE. The ads are full 2-column newspaper size, 6¼x4⅜. We supply the plates complete, ready to go on the press. All you have to do is to tell your newspaper to set your ad and name in type in the spaces left open in the plate.

buying side, the Chicago representative makes the purchases for the three Lamborn places at Xenia and the new store being opened at Dayton.

J. C. Michal, of Michal Bros., 7045 Stony Island avenue, has leased the store at 1168 East Sixty-third street and will open a retail store there in the near future. Mr. Michal has placed his order for complete fixtures and a refrigerator, of special design, with Buchbinder Bros. His new location is almost opposite that of J. H. McNeilly and in the next block to the westernmost of A. F. Keenan's two stores, so Sixty-third street soon will have four flower stores in less than three blocks.

The express companies operating through car service east from the Pacific coast were in the market last week with quantities of California flowers and greens that had been frozen by a sudden cold wave as the shipments were crossing the western states. Not much could be saved.

One of the Chicago visitors at the National Flower Show will be Emil Buettner. He has been invited to act as one of the judges of the rose section.

It is the practice of Wietor Bros. to try out some of the new things each season and orders have been given for trial quantities of Nancy carnation and Dark Pink Russell rose.

There is ever increasing evidence that growers of American Beauties are seeing the handwriting on the wall. One by one they acknowledge that they are decreasing the space devoted to this one-time queen of roses and confess that its sun is not far from the setting. A. H. Budlong, in a recent interview, said that in his opinion the chief trouble with this variety arises from the fact that it has been relentlessly forced, both in season and out of season. It would, he believes, quite recover its pristine strength and vigor if given a sufficient rest. But there is a unanimity of opinion to the effect that this rest it will never receive. Just so long as any grower gives it space he will demand of it that it pay its way. After canvassing the matter from all its different angles, Mr. Budlong says the inexorable logic of facts forces one to the conclusion that the day is not distant when the curtain will be rung down on the American Beauty for the last time.

Maryland rose has been dropped by most of the growers for this market, but it has done so well at Peter Reinberg's that five or six more houses will be given to it next season. Replanting has begun in the houses of Maryland and Beauty.

C. L. Washburn celebrated his fifty-eighth birthday anniversary February 27.

Because Deerfield has a freight rate 40 cents a ton higher than the Chicago rate, W. G. Gaddis is considering the sale of his property there and the erection of a new range at some point that will enable him to save money on his coal and fertilizer.

Kroeschell Bros. Co. has donated two gold medals for the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, one to be awarded by the Rose Society, the other by the Carnation Society. A unique feature is that the medals can be worn as watch charms.

Charles Erne has not yet been able to leave his bed in Michael Reese hospital.

John Poehlmann is feeling quite himself again, as he has been making frequent visits of short duration to his downtown office. February 26 John Enders, of the cut flower department, was taken ill with pneumonia and is having a hard go of it. As a result of his absence, Otto Frese has his hands more than full. Our factories are devoted to one thing only—making baskets and making them right. All our time is taken up designing and turning out baskets that will appeal to those who buy them, and our success is proved by the wonderful demand that has grown for our baskets. The quality mark for baskets is the name RAEDLEIN.

Do you purchase baskets under that name? If not, you have been overlooking an important point in giving your customers satisfaction, and now is the time to correct that mistake and build up a business founded on QUALITY such as we are alone able to give.

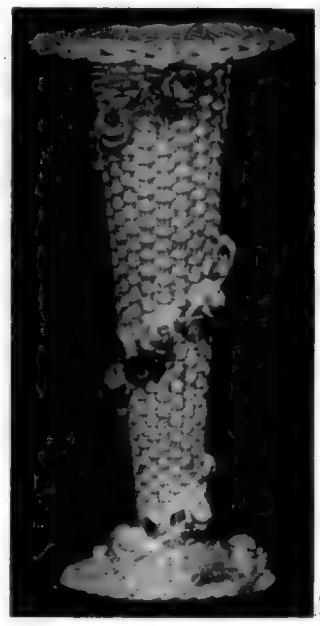
ter of T. E. Waters, of the supply department, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital February 29 to undergo a minor operation on her throat.

What might have been an extremely serious accident befell M. Weiland, the veteran florist of Evanston, while passing the Atlas block February 28. A pane of glass, no one seems to know how, fell from a third floor window and struck him fairly on the head. Fortunately, Mr. Weiland has a thick thatch of hair and wore a heavy cap. Still more fortunately, the flat of the glass struck him. Had it been the edge, the result would undoubtedly have been fatal. As it was, though considerably cut, he was able to return to his home unassisted.



Now that the days are waxing longer, William Kyle, of Kyle & Foerster, finds himself strongly drawn by the call of the open air and it is the difficult problem of selecting a new roadster that claims his hours of leisure.

Hanging in a conspicuous place on the wall in the office of Joseph Ziska & Sons appears the following food for thought: "If you want to lose a customer and a friend, sell him goods on credit. Then, wait six months before you ask him for the money, and see him get mad. Love many, trust few and paddle your own canoe." Most of those who read, begin the task in a jocose humor, but a thoughtful expression steals over the features as the reader turns away.

In reviewing the last year, M. C. Gunterberg has but one regret, and that is that she did not sooner move to her present location at 158 North Wabash avenue. The difference between the volume of business done in the old location and that done in the new is surprising.

After undergoing an operation on his left ear last week, A. L. Berry, of A. L. Berry & Co., Chicago agents for Carter's Tested Seeds, is able to be in his office again. J. Fisher, in charge of the seed department, has just returned from a trip through the state and reports good spring business in flower and grass seeds.

Funeral work has kept K. Wall, 258 North Kedzie avenue, quite busy for the last two weeks.

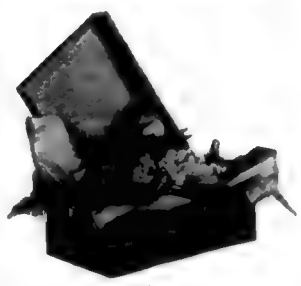
Visitors.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., was a visitor February 29, on his way to California to inspect his colored freesias now in bloom in the open at Montebello, where he expects soon to harvest a large crop of bulbs.

Two Minneapolis gentlemen, both of the flower department of the Dayton Co., were in the city this week looking for new ideas in retail store equipment, decoration and management. They were M. I. Lindsay and A. L. Saxe.

Among those who visited the Chicago market last week was R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens, Queens, N. Y., on his way home from a trip to Eureka, Cal.

Members of the Chicago trade were visited this week by F. H. Henry, of Henry & Lee, New York. From all reports, Mr. Lee seems to be maintaining his reputation as a story-teller.



One of this week's visitors was W. H. Hummel, of Milwaukee.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The market last week was erratic. Each day there was a scarcity of one or more varieties of flowers, and the growers and wholesalers found it hard to fill all orders. American Beauty roses are hard to obtain and are bringing good prices. It is impossible to fill all orders for carnations, although the price remains stationary at $4 per hundred. There are just about enough roses to go around. The prices on sweet peas remain steady at $1.50 and $2 per hundred and the stock is good and selling well. The price on cattleyas has stiffened somewhat and these are now bringing $5 to $6 per dozen. Lily of the valley is poor. This is said to be on ent the President and dignitaries of this country and of foreign powers. The work was done by J. H. Small & Sons and is said to have eclipsed all previous efforts on the part of this concern. J. H. Small is a prominent member of this organization and personally superintended the work.

Another notable decoration was that of George H. Cooke, president of the Florists' Club, who is noted for his unique designs. The affair was at Rauscher's, where both ballrooms were occupied. The main decoration was on a table 18x35 feet, done entirely in spring flowers. A large number of French baskets were used.

William F. Gude is back of a project which contemplates the enlargement of the present Botanic Gardens, by taking in the large tract of land recently acquired by the government. The authorities have declared that the gardens are at present cramped for room, and there has been a movement on foot to remove them to Rock Creek park, a considerable distance from the center of the city. This has been opposed by the florists and others interested. Mr. Gude plans, should this scheme succeed, to have erected in the center of this new space a fitting memorial to the late William R. Smith. It is understood that legislation will be offered in Congress within a short time and it is Mr. Gude's desire that florists send letters to their representatives in Congress urging the enlargement of the gardens.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at 1214 F street, northwest, March 7. The feature of the meeting will be the annual election of officers. At the February meeting the following nominations were made: President, Lloyd Jenkins; vice-president, Adolph Gude; treasurer, William F. Gude; secretary, Clarence L. Linz. Nominations for the executive committee are: George Field, Adolph Gude, George H. Cooke, Theodore Diedrich, David Bisset and William H. Ernest. It is expected that additional nominations may be made from the floor at the time of the meeting.

Harry B. Lewis, chairman of the transportation committee which is in charge of all arrangements for the attendance of the Washington florists, their families and friends at the National Flower Show, has issued a request that all of those who have not already signified their intention of going, and who desire reservations made on the special train, send in their acceptances to him at an early date.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The market opened weakly February 24. It strengthened on the following day and by February 26 became active under the influence of unfavorable weather. Extreme cold, high winds and a limited quantity of sunshine have had their effect on many of the crops. There is a fair amount of business, with only a moderate supply of flowers in a wide range of varieties. The situation in many of these varieties is interesting. Beauties are extremely scarce and command a high price. White roses are scarce in all the wholesale houses, and while there has been no special demand for them, even a moderate order has sometimes been difficult to execute. Generally speaking, all varieties of roses are more plentiful in the short grade than in any other, indicating that the growers are getting their crops in before Lent. The medium grades are more sought after by the buyers than either the shorts or the fancies. Carnations have fallen off in number and hold steady in price. Sweet peas have suffered sadly; bud dropping is reported as a serious condition with many clever growers. The peas that are coming to the market are in demand, Yarrawa especially so.

Violets have been active at the low prices. Growers from the Torresdale district are said to be nearly through picking from their houses; they will rely on the frames for their later flowers. This condition is extraordinary for so early in the season, and is said to be the result of heavy winter production. Daffodils have moved slowly at times, then recovered rapidly; the variety is greater now: Golden Spur, Empress, Victoria, Double Von Sion and princeps, the latter seemingly unsatisfactory. Lilac is arriving in fine form and sells readily. Tulips are improving; when good they meet a market. Despite heavy shipments from the south, Asparagus plumosus is in short supply. Dagger and fancy ferns are quite scarce. Easter lilies continue in good demand; callas are selling freely. Good snapdragon, mignonette, yellow daisies and primroses are all wanted. Summing up the market, there is good business at prices that are only fair, but there is not much snap in the trading. Valley is steady, with indications of an advance in price. Southern arbutus has arrived.

The Rose Annual.

The American Rose Society is about to issue its rose annual for 1916. This attractive book is the best the society has ever issued. It is edited and published by J. Horace McFarland and reflects great credit upon him and upon the workers of the society. There are a number of illustrations, two of them in colors. The main strength of the book lies in the complete way in which the entire field of roses is covered. There are articles by all types of rosarians, from all sections of the country. Every use to which the rose is adapted is covered, by one or more of these articles. The names of the writers, such as Van Fleet, Hill, Pyle, Mulford, Totty, Thomas and Pierson, are of nation-wide celebrity. The book is well calculated to increase the membership

THE FLORISTS' SUPPLY HOUSE OF AMERICA

EASTER AND THE SHOW.

Easter Sunday will be April 23—The National Flower Show will be held in Philadelphia from March 25 to April 2.

We want you to come here to see our Easter stock and the Show. Both will be well worth seeing, so well that we urge you to make the effort and come. We know that our Easter display will surprise and delight you. It is the finest stock we have ever offered. We are told by reliable men that the show will also eclipse all past shows. Now that you have assurance that it will be worth while, better come.

Make our store your headquarters while in Philadelphia. We will show you any courtesy that is in our power.

of the American Rose Society by interesting amateur and professional alike. It should do much to cement the bonds of brotherhood among those who love the queen of flowers in every section of this great country.

The National Flower Show.

Charles Henry Fox announces that the automobile pennants advertising the National Flower Show are ready for distribution. Mr. Fox hopes that every florist who owns an automobile, whether it be a delivery car or a touring car, will ask for and use these pennants. Please write at once to Charles Henry Fox, 1205 Widener building, Philadelphia, asking for these attractive blue and white pennants for your car or cars. They are ready now.

Fred Cowperthwaite proposes making the bureau of information a lively affair indeed. Mr. Cowperthwaite's plan is to have a corps of well informed workers on hand every day and evening while the show is in progress, ready to escort and enlighten all visitors who may so desire. Any florist or gardener who will aid in the cause by devoting some of his time to this work is requested to write to Mr. Cowperthwaite, at 1205 Widener building, and apprise him of the fact.

Various Notes.

A farmers' institute for Philadelphia county was held in Horticultural hall on the afternoons and evenings of February 25 and 26. David Rust, member of the state board of agriculture, presided. J. Otto Thilow was one of the four principal speakers. Alfalfa and vetch were strongly urged, as well as seed selection.

Paul Berkowitz returned from a good business trip recently and, to quote one of his friends with a vein of humor, "finding the gunning good, he went gunning some more."

Miss Elizabeth Leighton Lee, principal of the Women's Horticultural College, spoke before the Garden and Orchard Club at 1714 Chestnut street, on the evening of February 28, on "Mary, Mary, quite contrary, how does your garden grow? Silver bells and cockleshells all planted in a row." Sounds light, but it was not so.

The Henry F. Michell Co. has purchased a conveniently located 4-story warehouse at 23 South Bank street, to give additional facilities.

George S. Hampton has returned to this city after an excellent business trip, extending from December 27 to February 26.

Achillea Greecia, well known for the last five years as a florist at 918 South Eighth street, died last week.

Charles Durr, of Oak Lane, has a new car.

The Robert Craig Co. has been successful in finishing a fine lot of ferns in the leading Boston types.

Walter Davis finds a ready market for his well grown lilac.

The Market.

The record for the season would have been much more satisfactory if the growers could have shipped to this market a month ago a part of what they are shipping now. Except in a few items, there now seems to be a glut of stock. Beauties, of course, are far from being overplentiful; the same is true of valley. Orchids, too, are scarce. Beauties at present cut no figure in the market. Other varieties of roses are much more abundant and are not clearing as well as expected. Carnations also are beginning to bunch up in the wholesale house. Of course there are more of the red sorts than of any other color and there is less sale for them.

A large percentage of them are split. Callas and Easter lilies are none too plentiful yet. Violets are about the same as last reported. Sweet peas are in great demand and there is a limited supply of them. They are used extensively in corsage bouquets.

Snapdragons, calendulas and mignonette are in somewhat small supply. Daffodils and jonquils are at present the feature of the market and are clearing well, considering the abundance of other stock available. Narcissus poeticus is plentiful. Tulips are more than sufficient in all colors. Roman hyacinths and freesia are popular, especially the latter, which is used considerably in the making up of baskets and table decorations. Myosotis also is added to the array of spring flowers. Pussy willows are in adequate supply. Greens are sufficient in quantity and continue to sell easily.

Various Notes.

A representative of Reed & Keller, of New York, was in town last week.

Charles Butt, manager at S. A. Anderson's greenhouses, reports having some extra fine Lá Reine and Yellow Prince tulips. His lilac plants also are in excellent condition.

Hugo Burkle, on Long avenue, finds his calla lilies to be quite profitable, considering the small amount of space they use. Business at his place has been good.

John Schweichler, of North Tonawanda, has an excellent batch of Easter lilies, which will be ready for the market about the right date.

Barney Myers, of Lancaster, N. Y., is sending some extra fine snapdragon, which is in large demand.

The Buffalo Florists' Club will hold its annual banquet and election of officers at the Hofbrau, March 7. The affair has long been looked forward to, on account of the great merriment and sociability that always prevail. E. E. too, for another week would have given us fruit trees in bloom and that would surely have meant that there would be no fruit this season. As it is, no harm was done, though the ground froze an inch deep last night. The demand for flowers was sufficiently heavy so that there were not enough in the city to go around and the northern wholesalers were called upon for part of the stock. Still, increasing quantities of good stock are coming in. All of the growers are endeavoring to have everything at its best for the late Easter, and of course this means that the cut of roses is smaller at this time. Propagating is going forward rapidly, and there promise to be some pretty good stocks of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums for the trade this season. In fact, our growers are doing more of this kind of business every year.

Dutch bulbous stock has the center of the stage, as far as pot plants go. The quality is nothing to brag about, for the bulbs this year have not produced as good flowers as they should. Still, they are selling, and it would be hard to get along without them at this time of year. It is pleasing to note that more of the better varieties of tulips are grown this spring than usual.

Various Notes.

Haury & Sons had their new store looking even better than usual last week. They are offering a nice line of pot plants and bulbous stock. At the greenhouses everyone is busy getting ready for the spring trade.

The Joy Floral Co. continues to arrange the most attractive windows in the business district. This week it was a fancily decorated table, with wedding decorations containing electric light bulbs. A costumed figure, borrowed from one of the department stores, completed the picture. They say business is increasing with the publicity these windows bring.

Mr. Vantil, of Vantil-Hartman, Holland, was in this city last week. He reports that on the whole the volume of business in bulbs is fully as good as that of last year.

Joe Brown seems to be doing an unusually heavy business this spring. He is selling quantities of trees and shrubs, as well as privet for hedges.

Geny Bros. continue to have plenty of stock of all kinds. Their stock seems to be unusually well balanced this spring and they are getting their share of the business. F. B.

William Smith, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., has bought the Valentine greenhouses and ground on Dickson street.

Hugo Gross has opened a retail store on Pennsylvania avenue, and other growers will soon have to follow suit if the average prices on cut flowers in the St. Louis wholesale market do not advance, for it is impossible to make both ends meet with the low price of flowers and the advanced cost of production.

Frederick Hartmann, father of George and August Hartmann, two of Kirkwood's growers, was buried February 20.

F. W. Ude, Jr., is expected back from Vero, Fla., March 1, in time for the County Growers' meeting, of which association he is president. F. W. U.

The Market.

There was an abundance of stock last week at all the wholesale houses and the prices are gradually declining under the influence of the increasing receipts. The demand was fair, but could not consume the daily consignments. Trade this week should be excellent, as society is crowding in the social events before Lent begins. Stock classed as fancy is of excellent quality and in large supply. The prices are most reasonable. Roses are on crop and the supply is greater than at any time since the first of the year. Beauty, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst and Ophelia demand the top prices. Though the various Killarneys are in the ma-

Burlington railroad ticket office. The location is a good one. Fifteen years ago Mr. Foster opened for business in this same store.

The St. Louis county florists who consign to this market, especially the rose growers, have had a most prosperous season, with plenty of stock and excellent prices. We hear of several who will build a new house or two this summer.

The Connon Floral Co., of Webster Groves, has recently been cutting considerable fine bulbous stock, of which a lot is used for the home trade and the surplus is marketed by the Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

L. P. Jensen, gardener at the Adolphus Busch estate, reports that a lot of landscape work awaits him at Sunset Hill and Grandview park, on the Gravois road, when the weather conditions are right.

The springlike weather last week gave a lot of extra good business to the downtown florists. Riessen, Grimm & Gorly, Mullanphy, Foster and Siegel all say that transient trade was booming all the week.

Paddy Patton, of Smith's wholesale house, was asked recently which day in the week he liked the best. His answer was this: "Monday is one of the nicest little days. I like Monday

Frank Farney, traveler for the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, spent a week at the Jefferson hotel, showing a nice lot of samples in florists' supplies. Mr. Farney says when you want news from home, read The Review.

Charles Young, of C. Young & Sons Co., who selected Washington's birthday for his marriage to Miss Katherine Courtney eight years ago, celebrated the event last week at his home.

Windler's Flowers had an attractive Washington window. Red, white and blue flowers and ribbons were tastefully arranged, with a portrait of Washington in the center. The display was exceedingly artistic.

The spring flower show committee met at Bourdet's, February 24, to arrange for an interesting report to be read at next week's club meeting.

The wholesale houses of Smith and Berning handled an enormous aggregate of single violets last week. Some days as many as 150,000 were consigned to them by the Kirkwood growers.

August Hummert, of the St. Louis Seed Co., says the fine spring weather last week gave them a few days of rushing business in seeds and garden tools and they are looking for this to be their biggest year.

The meeting of the Florists' Club and the miscellaneous flower show will take place March 9, at 2 p. m. Both the meeting and show will be held at the salesrooms of Henry G. Berning, MAINE FLORISTS TO MEET.

The Maine State Florists' Society will hold its second annual meeting at Orono, March 8, in connection with Farmers' Week at the University of Maine. A short but excellent program has been prepared and a fine display of Maine-grown flowers and plants is expected. The program follows:

President's address, J. H. Stalford, Bar Harbor.
Report of the secretary, A. Lurie, Orono.
Report of the treasurer, E. Saunders, Lewiston.
"Forcing Shrubs," by A. E. Thatcher, Bar Harbor.
"Retailing Flowers," by E. Saunders, Lewiston.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The week ending February 26 was, on the whole, unsatisfactory as regards business. The last four days of it were sunless, and snow or rain fell practically the whole time. This militated against sales and, although the dark weather restricted production, flowers of nearly all kinds began to accumulate. With clearer skies this week, conditions are a little better, but not so good as might be wished. The supply of roses has increased and prices are lower, except on American Beauties, which continue scarce with little change in prices. Russell, Hadley and Ophelia bring the best prices among the hybrid teas and have cleaned up well, but Killarney, Sunburst, Ward, Killarney Queen and other varieties are not cleaning up so well.

Carnations continue abundant and are low priced. With many growers there is an unusual proportion of burst flowers now. Rosette, Pink Delight, Matchless, Ward, Alice and Benora are favorites. Violets are not selling well and are lower in price. Sweet peas, especially Spencers, are in good demand; so are yellow marguerites and blue cornflowers. Lilies are in larger supply, Formosa being the best variety. Quite a few speciosums also are seen. Callas are more abundant and lower in price.

Dutch bulbous flowers are in heavy supply and harder to move. There still is a good supply of freesias, which have been grown cool and are of excellent quality. Snapdragons are as yet somewhat scarce. There is a better supply of wallflowers, calendulas, pansies and forget-me-nots. The last-named flower now moves slowly. Valley cleans up fairly well. Cattleyas continue abundant, with only a moderate demand. Gardenias are more plentiful. Asparagus Sprengeri is quite scarce, but of A. plumosus there is an adequate supply.

Among the Retailers.

At Carbone's beautiful store on Boylston street business in plants, cut flowers and horticultural accessories has been excellent of late. Flowering shrubs, such as cratægus, pyrus, prunus, viburnums, lilacs and Azalea mollis, are seen here in quantity. Standard rambler roses are good. Pittosporum Tobira is well liked here as an evergreen shrub.

At Harry Quint's store business has picked up wonderfully since flowers dropped in price. A heavy business is done here in flowering plants, particularly bulbs in pans. This store is the only one in Boston that has a lawn in front, which is neatly planted with flowers and shrubs, and the curbing is well utilized for flowering plants, baskets, etc.

At the busy store of Wax Bros., on Tremont street, large bouquets of pansies and violets are a great feature, as are old-fashioned bouquets. Samuel Wax says the best selling roses are Ophelia, Russell and Hadley, while in carnations Enchantress Supreme, Matchless, Rosette and White Enchantress are the leaders. Butterflies are featured a great deal and large numbers are sold. Mr. Wax is a great collector of these and has a splendid assortment of home and foreign varieties.

At H. R. Comley's store, on Park street, some flowers can always be found that are not seen at the other stores. I noted here strelitzias, crinums, imantophyllums, dimorphothecas, Spanish iris, colored freesias and excellent pans of Darwin tulips.

At the Zinn establishment, on Park street, baskets of bulbous flowers with pussy willows, polyantha roses, pans of bulbs, cyclamens and Polypodium Mandaianum are meeting with an exceptionally good sale.

At Galvin's new store general business is reported good. In addition to many funeral orders, they have recently had some large decorations for balls and weddings.

The Houghton-Gorney Co., on Tremont street, always keeps its windows tastefully arranged. Here colored freesias, cornflowers in various colors, calendulas and orchids are well featured.

At Penn's, on Tremont street, I found the staff busy on funeral work February 22. For Valentine's day this progressive firm spent over $1,000 in advertising violets and their sales of this flower reached no less than 300,000 blooms. It is worthy of special note that Penn has now conducted an advertising campaign for Valentine's day for six years, offering a special heart-shaped box with a bunch of violets for $1.50. That this publicity has paid is evidenced by the increase in sales each year. The last Valentine's day was a bad one on which to make deliveries, for a foot of snow fell the previous day. Sixty messenger boys were used in addition to their delivery cars. Surely, if other concerns would follow up this advertising regularly, flower sales here and elsewhere could be greatly increased.

J. Newman & Sons, on Tremont street, one of the old reliable firms, have had a successful season to date. They specialize in funeral work and this branch in itself has shown a great development of late.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. was busy preparing for some interior improvements when I called. One of their next changes will be a tile floor. They report a good volume of business.

The North Beverly Specialist.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, is one of our largest and most skillful carnation specialists. His principal house is 60x450 and contains 35,000 plants. As a prize-winner at national and other shows Mr. Pembroke is well known. It is doubtful if any finer carnations are to be found anywhere. All are as nearly perfect as possible. In white, Matchless is heavily grown. It is slow in winter and the flowers now are more or less colored, but it sells well and produces heavily later in the season. One point in its favor is its fine keeping qualities on the plants when open. White Wonder is found to be a splendid winter bloomer, opening up quickly and being always in crop. Pink Delight and Alice are both grown in quantity. The last-named produces more flowers than any other carnation. Pink Delight here could be seen with stems from three to three and one-half feet long. Lady Northcliffe, of a beautiful salmon-pink color, looked fine in one bed, and more will be planted next season.

In scarlets both Beacon and Champion now are bursting badly. The first-named looked the better of the two. Yellow Prince flowers with wonderful freedom, but at this season nearly all flowers burst. Rosette is, in Mr. Pembroke's estimation, about the best selling carnation. He has two beds of 2-year-old plants which quite discount the 1-year-old stock. Good Cheer comes more or less off color. Pink Sensation nets a fancy price, but needs careful selection to get healthy stock. Gorgeous has done well here, but will not be grown after the present season. Benora rules supreme as a variegated. A sport here of a better color than the type and double the size, with a stout calyx, looks like a winner.

In addition to carnations sweet peas are grown; also Godfrey callas. The last-named blooms with wonderful freedom. No carnation specialist or lover should fail to call at Mr. Pembroke's establishment when in Boston. The way he grows carnations will be an eye-opener to many.

Various Notes.

J. W. Simpson, of Woburn, likes Alice carnation. Other favorites with him are White Wonder, Beacon and Benora. He is a great specialist in yellow marguerites.

William Sim, of Cliftondale, has several large houses of Spencer sweet peas, some of which are now coming into heavy crop. The quality of the peas from here needs no mention, as it is already so well known. Mignonette from here is fine, also pansies, violets and polyanthus. Next season carnations and roses will be added to Mr. Sim's specialties.

Thomas Roland at his Revere establishment is getting splendid cuts of Ophelia, Russell, Hadley, Ward, Killarney and White Killarney roses, averaging 5,000 flowers daily. His big sweet pea house will finish cropping in a couple of weeks. The sweet peas will be followed with tomatoes and later with roses.

C. B. Johnson, of Woburn, is one carnation specialist who still grows largely of Carnation Gloriosa and he now has a grand lot of it. Beacon, Matchless, Ward, Benora and Pink Delight are all fine with him now.

James Wheeler, of Natick, hopes to add a house 30x200, the coming season, to be devoted to Pink Delight. He has a fine crop of carnations and yellow marguerites.

While the Godfrey calla is steadily pushing the old calla to the wall, Lively & Bond, of Holbrook, are getting quantities of grand flowers of the old variety.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, are cutting a splendid lot of Ophelia and Killarney Queen roses.

Wm. J. Marshall, of Campello, has as handsome a lot of Formosa lilies as I have seen this season. This lily is decidedly better for cutting than giganteum.

Arthur Lipman, brother to Moses Lipman, a salesman in the Boston Flower Exchange, has opened a flower store at the corner of West and Washington streets.

William H. Elliott is cutting extra fine Ophelia, Sunburst, Geo. Elger and Irish single roses. He reports that Asparagus Sprengeri is quite scarce.

February gave us more snow than the same month for a number of years. The precipitation was 5.03 inches, against a normal of 3.56. Temperatures averaged below normal.

Leonard Barron gave an interesting lecture on "Garden Writings" at Horticultural hall, February 26. March 4, T. D. Hatfield, of Wellesley, will give "Practical Demonstration of the

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

Two of the Vilmorin family, Paris seedsmen, are with the French forces at Saloniki.

THE season of night work in the seed trade has arrived. For six weeks everybody must hustle.

THE Stamford Seed & Nursery Co., of Stamford, Conn., was adjudged bankrupt last week. Details are given under Business Embarrassments.

CLOVER seed to the value of $295,813 was invoiced at the American consulate at Havre, France, for the United States during 1915, compared with $119,554 for 1914.

ONE of the largest holders of onion sets is simply sitting tight, believing buyers will be less particular as to quality and not at all particular as to price a little later.

MARK W. JOHNSON, head of the Johnson Seed Co., of Atlanta, Ga., has been confined to his bed from severe injuries received when struck by an automobile truck.

CHARLES N. PAGE, of Des Moines, Ia., an ex-president of the American Seed Trade Association, will try to attend the Chicago meeting in June, although he now makes his home at Point Loma, Cal., near San Diego.

THE John H. Allen Seed Co., of Sheboygan, Wis., has been awarded the gold medal of the United States Department of Agriculture for its exhibit of forty-two varieties of seed peas at the Panama-Pacific Exposition last year.

THE Tucson Seed Co., of Tucson, Ariz., expects to erect two greenhouses this spring, making three at the Menlo Park range. H. P. Friederichsen, who has been employed by the company for several months, will be in charge of the new houses.

THE seed trade should urge farmers to test their seed corn just before planting, as stock of fair germinating qualities in the winter may have deteriorated sharply with the appearance of spring. A failure of the corn crop this year would be a national disaster.

AMONG the real estate transactions incident to the purchase of property for the west side terminal of the Baltimore & Ohio at Chicago figures the property

DREER'S Extra Selected SWEET PEAS

We aim to confine our list of Sweet Peas to the very best varieties and only those which can be used by florists for cutting. We have added a number of the choicest new varieties of the Spencer type to our list this season.

Orchid-flowered or Spencer Sweet Peas

This type is distinguished from the grandiflora sorts by the extraordinary size of their flowers and by the standard being crinkled and wavy. They usually bear four blossoms on a stem, and are as easy to grow as the commonest sorts. A fair crop the past season enables us to offer them at prices much lower than ever before.

at 1521 Newberry avenue, on which stands a four-story brick building occupied by the Illinois Seed Co. The transfer of title will entail no immediate change in the use of the land and, according to the officers of the seed company, no plans for the future, relative to a change of location, have as yet been formulated.

ACCORDING to A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, the onion set season has opened up much earlier than usual. Yellow and red varieties are bringing $2 per bushel, while whites are bringing from $2.75 to $3 per bushel in large quantities. He says the orders from the southern and central states are arriving in a volume that is ordinarily not expected until at least thirty days later. As a result, the office and warehouse employees of this concern have been working nights for the last two weeks.

RENNIE'S FIRE LOSS.

Although a loss of possibly as much as $200,000 was incurred in the fire, February 20, in the seed establishment of William Rennie & Co., Toronto, the concern was fully insured. The damage was principally by water, the loss on the building being estimated at only $7,000.

The fire was in the main building of the firm, at 130 to 136 Adelaide street, and started at the east end of the top floor, where the lighter and most valuable seeds were carried. The firm's stock seeds were on this floor, but were at the extreme west end and were not damaged. The grass seeds were in the Lombard street warehouse, separated by an alley, and were not damaged. The fire department extinguished the flames in an hour, but only by the use of great quantities of water that flooded all three floors and basement. Thomas Rennie stated that the fire, which resulted from defective electric wiring, caught them with practically the maximum stock for the year and burned or wet many items that it will be difficult to replace under the existing state of the market.

In Sutton's Seeds Are England's Choicest Novelties

HAD it occurred to you that this year as never before, people who have seen England's lovely old gardens are thinking of them and longing for them as never before?

Other years the annual trip abroad has satisfied them. This year the war keeps them here.

It's plain to be seen, then, that the firm who has England's choice novelties to sell, is going to scoop in a goodly bundle of new profitable business. Business that will give you an entering wedge with a number of people you have found it hard to reach before.

In Sutton's 190-page Garden Guide you will find a wonderful collection of England's choicest novelties.

Send 35c for Garden Guide. It tells you how to duplicate our Old English Gardens. With $5.00 purchase of seeds the 35c will be promptly refunded.

chairman of the A. S. T. A. committee on postal laws, Congressman Tague has introduced H. R. 11621, as follows:

A BILL

To provide for mailing catalogues, circulars, and so forth, now mailable under eight ounces in weight at the third-class rate of 1 cent for two ounces or fraction thereof, at a pound rate of 8 cents.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That on matter embraced in the third class, including circulars, catalogues, pamphlets, price lists, and other similar matter wholly in print of some form, upon which the postage is now paid at the rate of 1 cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, fully prepaid either by postage stamps affixed or without stamps under a permit number, the same rate is hereby extended to apply to the mailing of such printed matter in bulk, to varying addresses, irrespective of the individual weight thereof within a limit of four pounds, without stamps affixed, at 8 cents per pound or fractional part thereof, to be fully prepaid in similar manner as now by law provided for the mailing of matter of the second class; but such pound rate shall apply only when such printed matter is offered in quantities of one pound or more.

Sec. 2. That this Act shall take effect upon its passage.

With regard to this Mr. Therkildson writes: "This bill is identical with the proposed bill that I submitted to the A. S. T. A. in convention at San Francisco last summer and which was endorsed by them. It may be necessary to have some amendments and adjustments to this, which would be for the good of all, but the bill as a whole will be taken care of, and I now desire your coöperation both in giving this publicity and writing to your representatives and senators to use their efforts to have the bill passed. It needs immediate attention on the part of the members of the A. S. T. A. Its passage will enable us to make good catalogues instead of being penalized as under the present arrangement."

SEED TRADE IN TENNESSEE.

The seed trade at Nashville has been good thus far this spring, although not so good as was expected. The press and the various farm organizations are warning the farmers to plant less cotton and to plant widely diversified crops. The seedsmen feel that this is bound to make increased business before the season is over.

Cow peas and soy beans are both in heavy supply and the prices are the lowest seen for several years. Farmers are holding onto much of their stock in hopes of an advance in price, but no advance is in sight at present. F. B.

FREIGHT RATE COMPLAINT.

The Dakota Improved Seed Co., of Mitchell, S. D., has filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the rates assessed by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway on the shipment of 196 bags of alfalfa seed from Mitchell to Olivia, Ortonville and Montevideo, Minn., of 64 cents, 52 cents and 59 cents, respectively. The complaints hold 43 cents per hundred pounds to be the proper rate, this sum being made up of a combination of local rates. Refund has been asked in the amount of the overcharge and the commission is petitioned to establish a less discriminatory rate on future shipments. C. L. L.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

M. Crawford Co., Cuyahoga Falls, O.—"Crawford's True to Name Strawberry Plants." A few varieties of gladiolus bulbs and currant plants also are listed.

ANY DEAD FISH

can swim down stream, but it takes a live one to swim up. Ambition is dead stock, without the energy to PUSH it.

It's dead easy to tell the other fellow what to do, but it takes grit to do it yourself. Well, last week I called in twelve towns in six days, booked twenty-six orders, slept in six different beds and Gosh Ding it, I am tired, but I can't stop; if I do, I'll swim down.

I have asked one man twice a year to grow 50 lily bulbs a few times a year to get a start; he tells me each time, he's thinking about it; he is over 52 years old now and if he doesn't put a push on himself, he'll be growing lilies for the Angels, by Heck. He loses, not I. But if he availed himself of my cheap but valuable advice, he would be up to the thousand mark by this time.

Many Florists cannot start out on a large scale, but each must get a start some way.

Try a case of 150 bulbs, 50 each, Album, Auratum and Rubrum. Plant them RIGHT NOW, in March, have them in bloom in July and August, when good flowers are scarce. They are simply great for funeral work, and the bulbs give an enormous production.

Album, beautiful white and graceful flower.

Auratum, large white bloom, gold banded.

Rubrum, beautiful red and white spotted flower.

150 fine, large bulbs, $12.50 a case.

BAMBOO CANES

Tall plants ought to be staked. Easter Lilies especially should be supported by a neat green bamboo cane. It prevents injury to the plant and adds to the appearance. A 3½-foot green bamboo cane costs a trifle over half a cent, and adds considerable to the value of a plant tied with it. If you want your plants to have a nice appearance, use green bamboo canes. Immediate deliveries at the following prices:

GREEN BAMBOO CANES

3 feet long, $10.00 per bale of 2000
3½ ft. long, 11.00 per bale of 2000
5 feet long, 8.00 per bale of 1000
5 feet long, 15.00 per bale of 2000

NATURAL CANES

5 feet long, $11.00 per bale of 2000
10 feet long, 10.00 per bale of 500

NATURAL CANES
Extra Heavy

5 feet long, $12.00 per bale of 1000
6 feet long, 16.00 per bale of 1000

It is well to always have canes on hand—they keep a long while and are always useful. Order them now and have them ready.

Not how cheap but how good.

RALPH M. WARD & CO.
THE LILY HOUSE
71 Murray Street
NEW YORK

Burdell Floral Co., Bowling Green, Ky.—Wholesale list of young stock of chrysanthemums, roses, verbenas, cannas, geraniums and other plants, mostly rooted cuttings and 2½-inch pot plants.

State Nursery Co., Helena, Mont.—A well illustrated catalogue of 128 large pages, listing a wide range of stock. The first fifty-five pages are devoted to two main departments of the business, plants and nursery stock. Not only a full line of greenhouse and hardy plants, but also vegetable plants and garden roots, are included. Then follows the cut flower department, occupying four pages, and leaving a little more than half of the book for seeds, tools and general supplies.

R. H. Bath, Ltd., Wisbech, England—Special trade list of chrysanthemums, carnations, roses, dahlias, peonies, pansies, herbaceous plants, pyrethrums, cannas, etc.; a compact, accurate booklet of thirty-two long, narrow pages, in pocket form.

Willamette Dahlia & Floral Co., Portland, Ore.—Illustrated catalogue of "True to Name" dahlias and other stock. Dahlias, being the company's specialty, occupy about twenty-three of the total thirty pages, but gladioli, phloxes, cannas, perennials and annual bedding plants also are listed.

W. E. King, Little Silver, N. J.—"King's Hardy Old-fashioned Flowers," a carefully arranged, well printed and well illustrated catalogue of twenty-six long, narrow pages.

C. E. Varnum, Atco, N. J.—An illustrated catalogue of dahlias, cannas, gladioli and geraniums; eight pages, bound so as to be folded in convenient shape for the pocket or pigeonhole.

Fraser Nursery Co., Inc., Huntsville, Ala.—A 16-page surplus list, "for nurserymen and dealers only," offering extensive lines of nursery stock, fruit-bearing, nut-bearing and ornamental, including young stock for transplanting.

The Carmichael Orchards, Shannock, R. I.—An illustrated 6-page folder, containing a list of gladioli, with cultural directions.

The Imlay Co., Zanesville, O.—Thirty-third annual catalogue of seeds, bulbs, plants and general nursery stock; forty-eight compactly printed pages, illustrated.

Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, Ill.—Three catalogues, general, wholesale, and "for market gardeners only." Each book contains 112 pages, and each gives, first, condensed alphabetical lists of seeds, tools and general supplies, with the prices, but with only the briefest possible descriptions. Then follow the illustrated, descriptive lists, with unusually full and explicit cultural directions. At the end are some tables of weights and measures, and also a page of tabulated matter under the head of "Useful Information."

Burton Seed Co., Denver, Colo.—"Burton's 1916 Seed Book," offering seeds, bulbs, miscellaneous plants, vegetable plants and roots, small fruits, tools, poultry supplies, etc. Enclosed is a "Special Quantity Price Sheet."

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

THIS issue contains some excellent illustrations of the new store of the Spokane Florist Co., for which there was not sufficient space in this department.

SEATTLE'S SNOW.

Seattle is known far and wide for its mild climate; there may be rain at Seattle, but not much snow. That is, usually there is little snow. What happened there recently, therefore, was something in the nature of a surprise. In fact, it was without precedent. Nothing like so heavy a fall of snow could be recalled, even by the oldest inhabitants.

The accompanying illustration shows the greenhouses of Julius Jacobsen almost buried from view under "the beautiful." Mr. Jacobsen carries on his business under the name of the Latona Floral Co. Many houses in the locality collapsed.

But now it's spring at Seattle.

It Snows some Snow when it Snows at Seattle.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The great number of showy spring flowers now being exhibited in the retailers' windows show what a wonderful variety of stock can be grown outdoors in this climate during the first spring days. Tulips are arriving in excellent shape, even some of the earlier varieties showing far better stems than usual. Besides the bulbous and hardy herbaceous flowers, there is a great variety in the peach, almond and other shrubs and tree blossoms. Acacia Baileyana, now getting past its best, will be followed by A. floribunda and various eucalypti. All these help the retailer in making pretty displays, though the business done in them is not great.

Roses are greatly improved in quality and increased in quantity, and some really excellent Beauties now are arriving. Prima Donna and September Morn are both fine, while Hadley, Hoosier Beauty and the old Mme. Chatenay, which still is grown by one concern here, are first-class. Carnations are excellent, but the price is not as good as it should be, especially on the splendid greenhouse-grown stock now being sent in. Violets are not standing the hot weather well, losing a good deal of their fragrance and keeping qualities. Orchids are in fairly good demand and some nice Cattleya Trianæ are being shipped in. Phalænopsis is coming into use considerably for corsages and other bouquets. Valley seems to be about equal to the demand, several small growers having gone into the growing end of late. Their stock, with that shipped from the north, prevents any shortage excepting in the case of an unusual demand. The pretty buds of Cecile Brunner are coming in, but only a few as yet. By the time these notes are read, there will be a big supply. Sweet peas come in slowly and are not of particularly good quality. Freesias are holding out well and all classes of bulbous stock are good. The market for greens is good and the only shortage appears to be in Asparagus plumosus. Pretty plants of Primula malacoides, P. Kewensis and P. obconica hybrids add to the display.

Various Notes.

John Morley, superintendent of the parks and exhibition grounds at San Diego, was in town last week buying stock for his big charge. It is said that he is going to plant considerably of the small baby and polyantha roses that H. W. Turner is making a specialty of. Mr. Morley says that business is keeping up well in San Diego, much better than could be expected, considering the flood damage there.

J. M. Grant, late county forester for Orange county, has had charge of the planting of the new polytechnic high school grounds at Santa Ana, and has achieved considerable success in moving big stock. Notable in this direction is the removal for several miles of some large Cryptomeria elegans, of which he has not lost two per cent. Mr. Grant expects to return to Lost Angeles on the termination of his contract there.

Rather an unusual order was given to Frank Lichtenberg last week. It was for a blanket of red roses, and Mr. Lichtenberg used Francis Scott Key roses. He reports business as record-breaking, both in funeral work and decorations.

F. Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., says that they are rushed with busi-

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

San Francisco is basking in its February summer, and the movement of flowers is heavy. Stores handling seeds, nursery stock and plants for bedding are doing a thriving business, rose plants, pansies and daisies being the most popular items. Funeral work and decorations keep up well. For some reason there was a stronger demand for roses last week and with no increase in the supply the market was closely cleaned up, with prices ruling high on all varieties. Carnations, after a fortnight or less of real abundance, have fallen off, but this is only temporary. The heavy crop of freesias is off, but there still are plenty, including liberal shipments from Santa Cruz. The earlier daffodils are about gone, and the later varieties are appearing in abundance, with heavy offerings of narcissi. Ranunculi and anemones are increasing rapidly. Snowdrops are in fair supply and popular. Tulips and hyacinths in pots are plentiful and easy, the former being of better quality, and Darwin tulips are beginning to appear. Hardly any are cut as yet, all being forced stock. It looks as if the tulip crop would be short. Valley is hard to obtain. Easter lilies are coming in freely from some growers, but funeral work requires all of them. The movement of violets is heavy, both locally and for shipment, but there is plenty of fine stock for everybody. Sweet peas are almost too scarce to be of commercial importance. Forget-me-not, stocks, marigold, etc., are improving steadily. Phalænopsis Schilleriana and P. amabilis do well, and cattleyas are plentiful, with many small ones selling at low prices. Fruit blossoms are seen in greater variety. Azaleas are rather slow and plentiful, and it is perhaps well that few rhododendrons are offered. A few spiræas are seen, but they are rather poor as yet; also a few small hydrangeas. Cinerarias have sold well, and Primula obconica is popular. The demand for Boston ferns has decreased greatly, but small ferns find a good market, and the call for adiantum and asparagus is good.

Various Notes.

Newspapers and public-spirited people at Sacramento are doing much to bring flowers and ornamentals into greater popularity. An example is the plan to celebrate the opening of the Yolo Causeway with a spring festival, May 11 to 13, when it is planned to cover every vehicle and, as far as possible, the principal buildings of the city with flowers. The trade is sure to derive some immediate benefit.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society will hold its monthly meeting on the evening of March 2, and has arranged to have a social evening, to which the members of the society are invited. The meeting will be in Red Men's hall, which is conveniently located, and, in view of the enjoyable nature of previous occasions, a large attendance is expected.

H. Plath, proprietor of The Ferneries, says this year has opened even better than last year, with an active shipping business that is steadily growing. He has cleaned up a large lot of hyacinths, getting most of them in before the prices dropped, but he says many of the tulips are blind. He says that the primulas this season are unusually good, and has several houses of them coming on, while a new shipment of German primula seed has arrived. For Easter specialties, Mr. Plath has a few rambler roses and a large crop of Lilium giganteum.

Mr. Lichtenstein expresses great satisfaction with his progress on the Embarcadero.

N. E. Lincoln is opening a flower shop at 1604 Devisadero street, near Post street.

Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, arrived in San Francisco last week and showed his line at the St. Francis hotel.

Thomas Fenton, who has for some time had charge of the Foster estate in Marin county, has taken a position as foreman on the San Mateo county establishment of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., succeeding Wm. McMillan Brown.

The bright weather was a rushing time for all the nursery-stock stores, and Mr. Piccetti, manager for Chas. C. Navlet at the Emporium, is one of the busiest, his run beginning early in the morning. Rose plants are one of the leading lines there, with increasing attention paid to pansies, etc., for bedding.

Jack Olson, of the New Roserie, at Sacramento and Devisadero streets, has put in a large line of ornamental pottery, which he finds extremely popular with his trade. His location is convenient to a large district of new homes, most of which have some garden space, and this means a growing trade in such lines.

Domoto Bros. brought in a large cut of Lilium giganteum last week.

G. Rossi & Co. are preparing to install a new 80-horsepower boiler for their heating plant at the range on Derby street, Berkeley.

Frank Pelicano has been working on his dahlia tubers and will soon have the different selections priced and ready for market.

Joseph's shop last week showed the first California poppies that have appeared this season. S. H. G.

and this condition is likely to continue well into the spring season. Locally grown violets of excellent quality are in fairly good supply. Asparagus and smilax are scarce, with no prospect of an ample supply for some time. Forced daffodils are nearly all gone and the market will have to wait until the outdoor blooms appear. All other bulbous stock is plentiful and there is some complaint that it is not selling so freely as usual, especially the potted stock. The quality of carnations and roses has been improved by the recent sunshine. Landscape gardeners are busy with early spring work and pruning the wreckage produced by the ice storm. It is found that rose bushes were not injured by the cold and that little damage was caused to them by breakage. The price of glass has advanced about fifty per cent and greenhouse repairs have increased in price to the same extent.

Various Notes.

Another prospective florist arrived February 9 in the family of A. F. Lalane.

The Tonseth Floral Co. displayed some splendid azaleas last week. The stock was carried over from last year.

Gustav Teufel went to southern California for the winter. His sons are managing the greenhouses during his absence.

H. F. Richards, whose carnation range is located on the crest of Mount Tabor, felt the full effect of the cold east winds that prevailed during the bad weather. He lost some glass, but none of his stock was damaged. He said he was well pleased with his experience with Herald carnations. They held their color well and did not split.

Woolworth's branch 5, 10 and 15-cent store is selling cheap blooming plants. The most of them are of a quality that would not move them in any regular flower store.

William Martin, of Martin & Forbes, who has personal charge of the firm's range at Haynes, Ore., is successful in propagating new varieties. For two years he has developed a sport of Gorgeous carnation, which has a deep red color somewhat similar to Champion. A small bench of the new flower has held its color perfectly through all the unfavorable weather. In length of stem and size and shape of bloom it follows the original type. He has brought in the first bloom of a sport of White Killarney rose, which is more than twice as large as the original. At the store was seen the first red amaryllis of the season.

William Dunham, superintendent of school gardens, is preparing ground for planting. The use of many tracts near the various schools has been donated.

R. M. Bodley has benched a lot of gladioli. S. W. W.

THRIPS ON CALLAS.

I am enclosing some diseased buds from callas. What is the disease and what is the remedy for it?

J. N.—Mo.

Your callas are badly infested with thrips. Keep them well syringed and fumigate them once a week. To help to get rid of these thrips I would suggest spraying thoroughly with Aphine, at the rate of one part Aphine to twenty-five parts water. Use a fine spray nozzle and repeat the operation a week later. Feed your plants well with liquid manure; also top-dress with fine bone once in ten days. Never allow the plants to become dry at the root. Such plants are always easy prey for insects. C. W.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE fruit tree grower is feeling much better than he was last autumn.

E. RUNYAN, president and treasurer of the Elizabeth Nursery Co., Elizabeth, N. J., is at Guanajay, Cuba, where he has investments.

THERE has not been a year for a long time when the wholesale growers of nursery stock in Tennessee were so nearly sold out this early in the season as they are this year. Everything is selling better than apples. There promises to be a surplus of apple trees this spring. Ornamentals are practically all sold at the present time.

CONNECTICUT ASSOCIATION.

Officers Elected.

The tenth annual meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association was held at Hotel Garde, Hartford, Conn., February 18. The meeting was called to order at 11:25 a. m. by President W. E. Campbell. After the president's address of welcome had been responded to, minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The report of the treasurer, showing the finances of the association to be in first-class condition, was rendered, his books audited and report accepted. The reports of the standing committees showed that nothing had come up during the year to cause them any great annoyance or much work. F. B. Kelly, of Manchester, was elected to membership.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. E. Campbell, of the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, reëlected; vice-president, F. S. Baker, of New Haven; secretary, F. L. Thomas, of the Pequod Nursery Co., Meriden, reëlected; treasurer, W. W. Hunt, of the Blue Hills Nursery Co., Hartford, reelected. The president appointed the following committeemen for 1916: Legislative, E. F. Coe, of New Haven, chairman; Stephen Hoyt, New Canaan; J. R. Barnes, Yalesville. Executive, W. W. McCarthy, New Haven, chairman; Gustave Minge, Hartford; F. S. Baker, New Haven. Entertainment, Paul Hubbard, Bristol, chairman; Charles Turner, Hartford; E. A. Brassill, Hartford.

The Afternoon Session.

At 2 o'clock the meeting was again called to order. The following papers were read, followed by lively discussions:

"Standardization of Nursery Stock," by W. W. McCarthy.

"Results of Our Appearance Before the Federal Board at Washington," by Ralph C. Hawley.

"Possibilities of Machinery for Reducing the Cost of Labor in the Nursery Business," by J. R. Barnes.

"Heterocerous Rusts Found in Connecticut Nurseries," by George P. Clinton.

"Is the Motor Truck Practical for Our Business?" by Stephen Hoyt.

"The Problem of Inspection Quarantine," by W. E. Britton.

All of the speakers were applauded and answered questions relative to their subjects. The members were greatly disappointed by the absence of Alexander Cumming, Jr., of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, and W. B. Hatch. Mr. Cumming was to speak on "Commercial Handling of Roses," and Mr. Hatch on "Suggestions from an Experienced Landscape Gardener."

PALMER'S PENTSTEMON

Hardy Pentstemons

The hardy Pentstemons of the Rocky Mountains constitute a most showy genus of American plants, nearly unknown to American gardens, but greatly valued by British and Continental horticulturists.

These plants are hardy and persistent, standing much neglect, yet responding in great beauty to a little care and attention. The flowers vary greatly in color, period of bloom, size and shape.

From a large list of species we offer the following in the belief that all will prove thoroughly satisfactory to American gardeners, and be found welcome acquisitions to the hardy border:

PENTSTEMON PALMERI (Palmer's Pentstemon) (illustrated). A magnificent species indigenous to the Great Basin. Flowers very large, white, streaked with pink, and having the odor of almond blossoms. Highly recommended.

PENTSTEMON CYANANTHUS. Flowers brilliant blue in a close compact spike. Always in bloom for Decoration Day. You cannot be disappointed with this lovely, easily grown flower.

PENTSTEMON EATONI (Eaton's Pentstemon). Flowers clear scarlet, long, slender, scarcely bilabiate. Planted with cyananthus the contrast is very effective.

PENTSTEMON UTAHENSIS (Utah's Pentstemon). An enlarged cyananthus; flowers vary in shade, generally blue. Exceedingly hardy and very beautiful.

PENTSTEMON PARRYI (Parry's Pentstemon). A lovely species, having bright pink flowers, delicate and sweet.

PENTSTEMON AZUREUS (variety). Flowers violet-heliotrope in great masses. When staked, very showy and effective.

Any of the above, separately or in assortment, $1.50 per doz.; $6.00 per 100, prepaid in the United States.

We gather and disseminate from the Rocky Mountains and Great Basin hardy perennial flowering plants, trees, shrubs, ferns, bulbs, cactuses and seeds. If interested in any plant from this region, write us.

LANCASTER, PA.

Thursday, February 24, a number of members of the Reading Florists' Club visited the Lancaster florists' establishments. In the party were Fulmer Lauck, J. Stanley Giles, J. C. Bauder, Fred Frank, Layton Butts, Arthur Smith, Harry Heck, Ferdinand Heck, Lee Arnold and Paul Blackman. The first call was on W. B. Girvin, at Leola. In the vicinity of Lancaster H. D. Rohrer, L. S. Landis, the Wheatland Greenhouse & Aquarium Co., Thomas R. Fries, B. F. Barr, Albert M. Herr, Rudolph Nagel, Peter Brown and Fred Ritchey were visited. It was a pleasure to have the Reading Florists' Club members with us and we trust they will arrange another trip in the near future.

Mrs. George G. Goldbach has sold her greenhouses on East Orange street to Aaron H. Wissler, of Rossmere. Mr. Wissler has been operating the houses for some time. The change will take effect April 1. Mrs. Goldbach will retain the downtown store, continuing the retail end of the business.

Efforts are being made by the Iris Club to have Maurice Fuld, of the Knight & Struck Co., New York, give an address on "Old-fashioned Gardens."

Thomas R. Fries is cutting choice bulbous stock. He is an authority on ferns and his stock is in fine shape.

Walter Mott, representing Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., called on the trade last week.

The Rose Shop opened for business March 1.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., will lecture before the Lancaster County Florists' Club March 16. He will show fine views of the Holland bulb fields. The ladies are invited, and every florist should make an effort to be present. H. K. R.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—The Fisher Floral Co. has been taken over by James and John W. Jackson.

Moline, Ill.—A suit for $20,000 has been started by J. Staack against the city for damages by water to his greenhouses during the heavy rains of 1915. He also has an action pending against the Tri-City railway for a similar amount. The drain which the city installed near the Staack greenhouses was not large enough to carry away the water and the overflow went into the greenhouses.

Our Specialty is Grafted Roses

WE grow many other young plants for the shipping trade, but "Grafted Roses" is the specialty. A visit to Cromwell will prove to you that we can back up our offers with stock that is of the highest quality. We are growing 700,000 this season, for we know that this year we will see much replanting that was not done last year. A good part of this quantity is already sold, and orders have been very gratifying.

If you are going to plant or replant, get in touch with us now. Give us a chance to give you the best plants that can be grown. Our prices are graded to suit the quantity, and the quality graded to be above competition. Write us now, or, better still, come and see what we have to offer.

Belle Washburn

THE BEST RED CARNATION

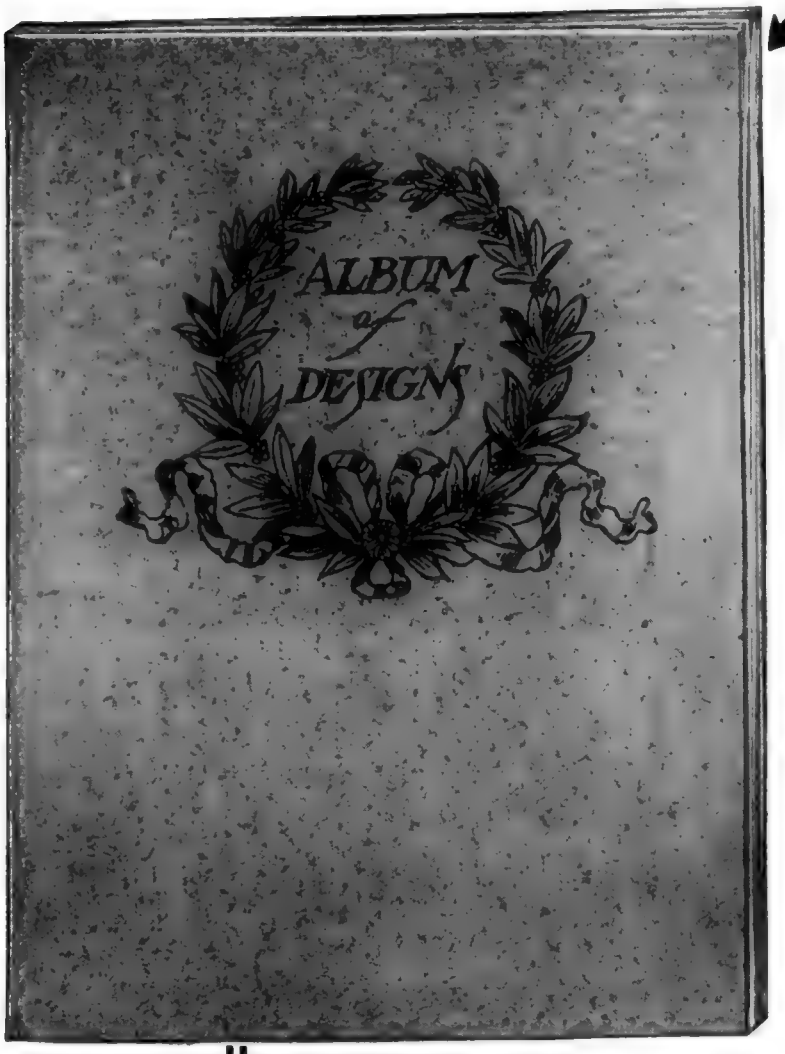
RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT!

WINNER of the Silver Medal of the American Carnation Society, at Buffalo, 1915; also WINNER of the SAME MEDAL in the same class at ST. LOUIS, 1916; also of Silver Medal of S. A. F. and O. H., at St. Louis, 1916. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is 3½ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.



We have 1500 plants growing in our greenhouses at Hollywood, Cal., devoted exclusively to rooted cuttings.

Orders for Pacific Coast States will please be sent to our Western Branch, care of E. B. Washburn, 252 South Orange Grove Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

The Market.

Sunshine has increased the supply of flowers, especially in bulbous stock. Roses still are insufficient to meet the demand. Russell, Shawyer, Sunburst, Ophelia, Killarney and Richmond predominate. White roses are hard to obtain. Carnations are more plentiful, a large number of buds opening under the steady sunshine. In bulbous stock, tulips are great favorites and move quickly. Poeticus narcissus and jonquils are in good demand. Freesias are used extensively for corsage work, while forget-me-nots, primroses, sweet peas and swainsonas are used in conjunction with the smaller varieties of roses, such as Aaron Ward and Sweetheart roses, for colonial bouquets, which are popular now for weddings. Valley was exceedingly scarce last week, one florist being able to obtain only a small quantity of Canadian valley. Violets are plentiful and sell well. Cattleyas are in good supply and blooming plants have been selling well since Valentine's day, the heavy advertising evidently being a stimulus to this line. The growers are busy planning and preparing for Easter, which requires special forethought this year on account of its lateness.

Various Notes.

Miss Rhoda Doswell is in St. Louis this week in the interests of the Doswell Floral Co. This concern is wholesaling some fine single violets and is cutting a heavy line of bulbous stock, carnations and sweet peas.

A. J. Lanternier has finished remodeling his store at 1018 Calhoun street. The store was enlarged and redecorated and new office fixtures and tables were installed.

Herbert Zur Muhlen, of the Auger Flower Shop, discontinued his business March 1 on account of his inability to renew his lease.

The Flick Floral Co. had the decoration and bouquets for a large wedding last week. Southern smilax, roses and spring flowers were used in great quantities.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting fine Shawyer, Ophelia and Sunburst roses, but have not nearly enough of them to supply the heavy demand. A large shipment of orchid plants was received by this firm last week.

Visitors to the trade last week were Thomas Knight, of the Knight & Struck Co., New York; O. C. Justus, representing the Kemper-Thomas Co., Cincinnati, O.; Robert Greenlaw, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia.

The New Rose, MRS. BAYARD THAYER,

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large-flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front, since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell, of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal, over a strong class of competitors, at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

With fine, springlike weather last week, and business exceedingly good, everybody seemed satisfied. Considerable funeral work was done and a large number of spring plants were sold, to be used for birthday occasions or sent to the sick.

Probably the greatest opening in which the florists here ever had a share was the opening of the new 10-story Citizens' National Bank building, situated at Fourth and Main streets. The opening was held on Washington's birthday. Thousands of people passed through the building and up to the roof to get their first bird's-eye view of the city. The banking rooms were profusely decorated with pot plants and baskets of cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons enjoyed a big week. They had large cuts of roses and carnations, which were cleaned out. They had a big demand for cut flowers and pot plants for the opening of the Citizens' National Bank.

C. L. Niednagel has been cutting a fine lot of Russell, Killarney and Milady roses. He has added a small house, to be used for propagating and growing on small rose plants.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. had charge of the decorating for the opening of the Citizens' National Bank and also furnished about forty baskets of cut flowers sent by friends of the bank. Their cut of roses and carnations is extra good and they find sale for all of it.

J. C. Elspermann has been unusually busy of late. He has had a large amount of funeral work and is disposing of a lot of pot plants.

Karl Zeidler is having plenty to do, with the funeral work and the spring work together.

Royston & Fenton say that indications are for a busy spring.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held Wednesday evening, March 8, at Louis Fritsch's residence.

Miss Nellie Goodge is improving in health. E. L. F.

Lima, Ohio, Jan. 19, 1916.

Mr. Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.

Dear Sir: We thought it might be interesting to you to receive a report of your new carnation "ALICE," as grown in this territory. "ALICE" has made a wonderful showing with us. We are growing some twenty different varieties of carnations. To date we have cut more blooms per plant from "ALICE" than from any of the other varieties. The blooms come almost 100 per cent perfect. This carnation has proved all that you claimed for it, and we do not hesitate to say that we believe this variety to be the very best carnation of its color being offered the Trade today.

You are to be congratulated on "ALICE." Very truly yours,

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Washington's birthday brought a heavy demand for cut flowers and decorations. Clouds prevailed during the week and somewhat checked the supply, roses continuing to be short in this market. Carnations are in larger supply than during previous weeks and the receipts of bulbous stock are heavier.

Various Notes.

W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., president of the National Association of Gardeners, will speak at Manning hall, Brown University, March 3, on "Beautifying the Home Grounds."

At the March meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, at the Elysium, the speaker will be H. A. Emerson, of the New York state department of foods and markets.

Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, was awarded high honors and a couple of prizes at the trap-shooting contests at Wellington, Mass., February 22.

Raphael Chambers, of Pawtucket, has entered suit in the Superior court against Charles Lapham, of Pawtucket, to recover $3,500, which he alleges is due him from Mr. Lapham as a result of the partnership transactions between them. According to Mr. Chambers, the partnership was formed October 1, 1914, and continued for about nine months, as florists. After the dissolution an accounting, it is alleged, showed that Mr. Chambers was entitled to $3,500.

Joseph Lewis, of Tiverton, is receiving congratulations from his numerous friends on the arrival of a son, February 20.

The trade last week received a visit from W. E. Marquardt, representing Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York.

Thomas Curley, of Harkness street, has dismantled a house from which he has finished cutting a crop of bouvardia.

William A. Peckham, of Little Compton, was in Lewiston, Me., last week on business. He is preparing to grow chrysanthemums on a large scale and is having several of his houses overhauled for that purpose. He is contemplating the erection of a number of new houses.

Frank O'Reilly has been elected tree warden of Pawtucket, and George A. Saunders, superintendent of parks.

Frank Bush, with Joseph E. Koppelman & Co., is confined to his home at Riverside with a severe attack of the grip. W. H. M.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

February was a peculiar month as far as weather was concerned. Valentine's day the weather was so bad that one could scarcely venture out. We did not have one good Saturday during the month, but February nevertheless will go on record as the best February of years.

Last week stock of all kinds was plentiful and cleaned up nicely. Violets and bulbous stock seemed to fare the worst in regard to prices. There were no Beauties worth mentioning, but all other kinds of stock did well. The wholesale houses seem busy and clean up fairly well each day, with little left over for the street boys.

Various Notes.

March 6 is the date of the next club meeting, at Fort Pitt hotel.

There is much talk about the Philadelphia National Flower Show. It appears as if everyone is going to see the "best show ever," according to the Philadelphians.

De Forest Ludwig, who has been seriously ill for some time, is recovering slowly.

Miss Jane McDowell, of Steubenville, O., is taking a much needed vacation, Miss Agnes Wells taking charge during her absence.

The department stores are all handling arrangements of artificial flowers and seem to be doing a nice business. I wonder if the florists are not missing an opportunity. The florist should know how to sell them. Clarke.

Rochester, Minn.—A downtown store has been opened by the Rochester Floral Co. The store at the former location, which was damaged by fire, has been discontinued.

Ottawa, Kan.—"Business during December and January was splendid, the demand exceeding the supply, but coal has been hard to buy," says B. Romstadt, in speaking of conditions in eastern Kansas.

Minot, N. D.—According to George E. Valker, of Valker's Minot Greenhouses, business in northwestern North Dakota since January 1 has been rather quiet, largely on account of the severe snow storm and poor transportation. Mr. Valker says that during the last seven weeks $400 worth of coal per week has been consumed.

Miscellaneous Stock for Florists

Craig Quality Ferns, Primulas and Cyclamen

NEPHROLEPIS JOHN WANAMAKER
Introduced August, 1915

The Wanamaker Boston has more than made good. Everyone who has received early shipments from us has been greatly pleased with the variety and repeat orders have been coming in daily. We have a very large stock. A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis. The following prices are for immediate and spring delivery:

2¼-inch pots, strong plants, $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.
4-inch pots, strong plants, $25.00 per 100; $225.00 per 1000.
6-inch pots, strong plants, $50.00 per 100.
8-inch pots, strong plants, $12.00 and $15.00 per doz.
Large specimens, $2.50, $3.00 and $4.00 each.

NEPHROLEPIS TODEAOIDES

The Market.

Business last week was fair. The general supply is not quite so large as it was, but it is sufficient for present requirements. Shipping business is good. Roses now are arriving more freely than for some time, including good Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Shawyer. Long-stemmed American Beauties are exceedingly scarce, but offerings in short ones are large and good. The carnation supply is shortening somewhat. Easter lilies continue to be plentiful. Small bulbous stock, including tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and jonquils, is of fair quality and sufficient for present demands. Sweet peas have a large sale. Violets, valley and orchids are plentiful. Other offerings include callas, rubrum lilies and snapdragon. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Theodore Cobb, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., entertained customers and friends at a dinner at the Cuvier-Press Club February 23. Mr. Cobb gave an interesting talk on the 700-acre trial farm of the company near Detroit. Messrs. Charles Weber, Pyles and A. J. Shoemaker responded to toasts. It was decided to form a social club for seedsmen of Cincinnati and vicinity.

C. E. Critchell has been having a good call for the Butterfly sweet peas he has been receiving.

The Shoemaker Seed Co. has removed to its new store at 441 Main street. The principal business is in retail seeds, nursery stock, shrubbery and landscape work.

Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., have been shipping excellent Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Shawyer roses to L. H. Kyrk.

The death of Max Rudolph, which occurred February 22, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

DIRT BANDS

Very soon every grower will be making free use of dirt bands for the growing of all plants. Certainly, no florist can afford to pass them by. They are time and money savers, producing better plants at less cost and with less labor. It simply is a question of getting the best band.

Our new READY-USE dirt band tells its own story. Send a postal for free samples and see how it does it. It comes to you ready to set the plant in, which means saving of very valuable time required to fold the ordinary strips of paper commonly offered for bands.

We make plain bands, too, from high-grade, hard finish stock. Samples will be sent. Compare them with others and put them to any test. It is not how cheap, but how good, is our motto.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

COAL IN SPECIAL CARS.

Modern greenhouse establishments are equipped with sidetracks to the coal shed, to do away with cartage, and many of them have elevated tracks, so that the coal can be dumped and will move into the bunkers by gravity, doing away with much heavy labor. But to work the dumping act the coal must be loaded in a hopper-bottomed car. And now, seeing a chance for a few extra dollars on top of a freight rate on smokeless to Chicago nearly double the value of the coal at the West Virginia mines, the railroads will make an extra charge of 15 cents per ton in cases where the consignee specifies the special kind of car he wants the coal loaded in. Of course, if one does not so specify, it may come in a hopper-bottomed car anyway, but the charge applies as well to the man who specifies that hopper-bottomed cars be not used!

FLOW PIPE IS TOO SMALL.

My greenhouses are piped for hot water heat. The main house is 17x65 and is exposed on both sides. The walls contain two feet of glass and three feet four inches of double board siding, with paper lining between. The front gable is exposed; the other gable is protected by the boiler room and workshop. The boiler, which is a 6-section Lord & Burnham, stands three and one-half feet below the floor of the workshop. A 2-inch flow runs to the front of the greenhouse. This pipe hangs about five inches below the purlin and slopes slightly to the front. It is connected with twelve 1½-inch return pipes, six on each side of the house, under the benches. The water in the 1½-inch pipes runs back into a 2-inch main return at the rear of the house.

I also have a glass-covered room, 10x18, located between the greenhouse and the barn. The pipe used in this room is all 2-inch. I also have a lean-to house, 10x17, which contains a 2-inch flow and six 2-inch returns.

I find it necessary to fire the boiler too hard in cold weather, in order to maintain the required temperature. Are there too many returns for the flows? How should I arrange the piping so as to have a temperature of 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero?

T. H. M.—O.

There are two reasons why it is not possible to heat the greenhouse 17x65 with the radiation as now arranged. One reason is that while 550 square feet of radiation should be provided in order to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees, the amount now in use does not exceed 450 square feet. The other error is in endeavoring to supply even the present amount of radiation by means of a 2-inch main flow pipe. We would suggest the substitution of two 2½-inch flow pipes for the single 2-inch flow now in use. Even this will not bring the radiation up to what is needed for the highest efficiency, but will probably answer with careful attention to firing in severe weather. The main returns should be of the same size as the main flow pipes.

The lean-to house seems to have an ample amount of radiation and if it is not giving good results it is evidently due to some defect in the arrangement of the system. To get the best results in the covered room, 10x18, about fifty additional feet of pipe are needed.

STEAM FOR SMALL RANGE.

I have a steam boiler that contains thirty-two 3-inch tubes, ten feet long; the shell is three and one-half feet in diameter and the grate surface is 3x4 feet. In zero weather I can carry only about thirty or thirty-five pounds of steam on this boiler. Is it large enough to heat three houses 20x50 and two houses 10x50? Please inform me how many 1-inch returns will be needed in each house, to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. For the mains I shall use 2-inch pipe in each one of the houses.

M. B. S.—Ky.

With everything properly arranged and with proper attention to the firing, there should be no difficulty in maintaining 60 degrees in the houses described with from three to five pounds of steam. Unless there is glass in the side walls, we would use ten lines of 1-inch pipe in each of the 20-foot houses and six lines in each of the 10-foot houses, in addition to one 2-inch overhead main. For glass wall surface add one pipe for each two feet of glass in height in each wall.

CAPACITY OF BOILER.

I should like to know the number of feet of 1¼-inch pipe that a boiler of the following description will care for: The shell is 4x12 feet; the grate surface is 4x5 feet, and the boiler contains fifty 3-inch flues.

C. J. H.—Colo.

A boiler of the size indicated should supply 5,000 to 6,000 linear feet of 1¼-inch pipe without difficulty, and even more than that with careful attention to the firing.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24¼ inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

The Market.

The report of the week shows that business was fair. For Washington's birthday trade there was plenty of stock and every florist was busy for the occasion. Toward the end of the week business dropped off a little. Prices remain about as usual. The supply of roses meets all demands, but, as usual, the short-stemmed stock is not plentiful and the demand for it is large. There appears to be a steady call for the better grades of roses. The red varieties sold well last week. Carnations are plentiful and range in price from $2 to $3 per hundred. There is a good supply of callas daily, but Easter lilies are not so far advanced. Valley is of good quality and there is a fair demand for it, even at the advanced price of $5 per hundred. Orchids are not overplentiful, but they meet the demand. Cut bulbous stock is plentiful and used considerably in funeral work. Tulips in white and yellow, Paper Whites, Roman hyacinths and single and double daffodils sell well. Violets are good and are disposed of fairly well. Sweet peas are used more for corsage work and good stock is seen in pink, white and lavender. Lilacs move slowly. Calendulas sell fairly well, but the demand is not large. Pussy willows sell easily and are a great attraction. Greenery of all kinds is scarce. Blossoming plants sell splendidly.

Various Notes.

John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, was a recent visitor to St. Thomas, Ont., where he addressed the St. Thomas Horticultural Society on "The Influence of Public Parks on Civic Life."

H. E. Wilson reports a good business on Washington's birthday. Booming plants sold nicely during the week and there was a large quantity of funeral work.

W. A. Elder, of the Lord & Burnham Co. Rochester office, has returned from the Boston office and will be, as formerly, with the Rochester branch. He is on a business trip through western New York.

The Rochester Floral Co. reports good business during the last few weeks. This company is advertising the dollar box of flowers as a Saturday special. The plan brings good results.

The Lord & Burnham Co., H. E. Bates manager of the Rochester branch, reports unusual business along all lines during the last several months. Inquiries for big houses greatly exceed those of last year.

George Hampton, of the J. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

George T. Boucher reports business as being brisk. He has been busy of late with several decorations. At the forthcoming police ball Mr. Boucher expects to use 1,000 palms and potted plants, and about twenty-five cases of wild smilax. H. J. H.

The Market.

The condition of the market has changed considerably. Cut flowers are plentiful; in fact, the supply far exceeds the demand. Business last week was good. Roses are plentiful and some varieties are being sold as low as $4 per hundred. There was a heavy demand for tulips and jonquils. A glut of bulbous stock is expected this week. Freesias are gaining in favor, especially for use in boxes of cut flowers. Sweet peas are of excellent quality, but the supply is too large for market needs. The same may be said of violets. Some fine double violets were sold at an extremely low price February 26. Carnations of every color are in large supply. Prices on these have declined. Although Easter lilies are plentiful, they still bring a fair price. Snapdragons and other miscellaneous stock are in heavy supply. Paper Whites are clearing well, but the supply is somewhat small.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. displayed some well grown bougainvilleas last week. Butterfly sweet peas arranged in different styles were a feature of the window display. This concern reports a heavy run of funeral work.

A. F. Barbe will start the erection of his new range of houses March 10. He now is busy filling his old houses with spring stock.

The Rosery is showing some especially well grown bulbous stock in pans, of which a large quantity is being sold.

W. J. Barnes has excellent rhododendrons, cinerarias and spiræas in bloom and finds a ready sale for this kind of stock.

Mrs. R. E. Everett, of Pawhuska, Okla., was here last week buying supplies. She reports business satisfactory.

The Alpha Floral Co. last week was busy both day and night on funeral orders. A large order for wirework was placed by this company with a local wholesale house.

Biedermann & Son are busy filling their greenhouses with spring stock. They report business good.

T. J. Noll & Co. report stock of all kinds plentiful. The demand for supplies has increased so fast that additions to the force were necessary.

Arthur Newell reports the best week of funeral work he has had since he started in business.

Mr. Nugent, of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., was a visitor last week. W. J. B.

MOLINE, ILL.

A special meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at Turner hall, Moline, Ill., with only one member absent. The good attendance, no doubt, was due to the near approach of the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, which will be held March 7 and 8. A. Anderson, a recent benedict, received the hearty congratulations of the members present.

Harry Bills, president, called the meeting to order, and, in addition to other business connected with the state meeting, the entertainment committee outlined a sight-seeing trip in automobiles for those in attendance at the annual meeting. The trip will include points of interest in Moline, the Government island if permit can be obtained, Davenport, Davis Garden, Bettendorf and Rock Island, where lunch will be served at Ludwig Stapp's place; then back to Moline, including stops at the various parks and greenhouses.

Two new members, J. W. Davis and Frank Davis, were elected to membership. The following committee was appointed to meet visitors at the 1:50 p. m. Rock Island train: A. Anderson, Wm. Knees, Sr., Ludwig Stapp, H. Pauli, H. Bills, C. J. Reardon.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Arthur W. Potter, Jr., won the $5 gold piece offered as a prize by A. Rickard, of New York, for the best essay by an assistant gardener, at the regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, February 22. Mr. Potter, who is in charge of one of the best rock gardens in this country, submitted an essay on "Rock Gardens and Rock Plants." Preceding the reading of Mr. Potter's paper an address on "The Culture of the Grape" was presented in an interesting and instructive manner by William MacKay, former president of the society.

WHEN it is GUTTERS you need—remember

GARLAND'S CAST IRON GUTTERS—

THE LIFE OF A GREENHOUSE IS THE GUTTER

Garland gutters that were put up unpainted 20 years ago are as good as new today (we can prove this) and are good for 100 years more.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago's largest growers, are using 14 miles of Garland gutters and will use no other. Altogether we have hundreds of miles of our gutters in commercial ranges all over the country and can refer you to the owners.

LET US FIGURE WITH YOU ON YOUR NEXT HOUSE.

We supply everything for the greenhouse and can save you money, as we operate our own foundry, wood mill and machine shops.

Garland Manufacturing Company

DES PLAINES, LOUIS WITTBOLD, President (Suburb of Chicago) ILLINOIS

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Business was quiet in Newark last week. There was considerable funeral work, a few decorations and some extra business Washington's birthday, but the volume was not as large as it should have been at this time of the year. On the other hand, business was not dull. Bulbous stock is plentiful and reasonable in price. Its abundance has forced the prices of other flowers down to some extent, though the lower price for carnations is due to the fact that they are now more plentiful. Roses remain the same. Valley is of good quality and lower in price than it was. Orchids continue to be cheap and tulips are quite popular. Pussy willows are arriving in large quantities and are used in window displays.

Various Notes.

Ladies' night was observed by the Essex County Florists' Club at the February meeting. There was a large number present and everyone had a most enjoyable time. There was an interesting entertainment by three professionals, followed by a social hour. The committee in charge consisted of Richard Youell, chairman; J. McLaughlin, J. Pfeufer and G. Davies. No business session was held.

McLaughlin & Murphy have been unusually busy since the first of the year, the volume of trade exceeding that of the corresponding period of last year. This firm furnished some of the decorative material for the auto show.

George Muller reports business as fair. He has had considerable funeral work during the last few weeks.

R. B. M.

MAMARONECK, N. Y.

The entertainment committee of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society deserves great credit for the splendid entertainment and dance furnished the society Wednesday evening, February 16, at the Town hall, Greenwich, Conn. A minstrel troupe of twenty performers kept the party in good humor for about two hours. The members, their families, friends and a large representation of the seed and nursery trades filled the spacious hall. While the floor was being cleared for dancing a splendid buffet lunch was served. The dances, both old and new, kept everybody going until 1 a. m.

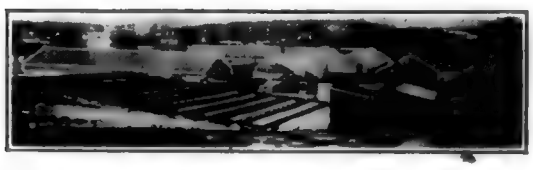
MUNCIE, IND.

The Riverside Floral Co. had one of its boilers give out during the recent cold snap, the temperature of the houses dropping to the freezing point, but little stock was damaged. This concern is giving more space to bedding plants this season, geraniums heading the list. There is a fine lot of well done cyclamens and the carnations are above the average, some fine blooms with 3-foot stems being cut. Mr. Stakemper, the grower, has the place in good condition and it shows his ability as a grower of first-class stock.

Henry Patompkie, the seedling specialist, reports a big demand for salvias, verbenas and pansies. His stock is in fine shape.

C. Baker, who has charge of the Miller greenhouses, has a big demand for the newer varieties of pelargoniums. He has a fine lot of them in 3-inch and 4-inch pots for the store trade. The bedding stock at the Madison street greenhouses is in good shape.



Miss Helen Longfellow, who has been with the Williams & Clark Floral Co., went to Oregon to visit her mother. It is rumored that she is to become the bride of a U. S. navy officer. The men at the store report satisfactory business. Funeral work has been heavy.

If one of our girls is missing in the near future we shall conclude that the young Austro-German has found his ad for a wife in The Review successful. The Review brings results!

PAPER WHITES FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will you please tell me how long the bulbs of Paper White narcissi should be in the ground before they are forced? When should the bulbs be put into the ground to be forced for Christmas? When should they be brought to the heat, and what temperature is required? Can the bulbs be planted in a solid bed and the house be kept cool and dark until heat is wanted, or should the bulbs be put in trays?
W. H. F.—Pa.

Paper White narcissus bulbs usually arrive about the last of August, and the best policy is to place them in flats at once, rather than leave them lying around in bags or boxes. After placing them in flats you can either stand them on the floor of a cold, frost-proof cellar or keep them outdoors, covering the flats with two or three inches of sand. The sand is preferable to coal ashes, as its weight prevents the roots from heaving the soil.

It is a comparatively simple matter to flower Paper Whites for Christmas. They may be had as early as the first week in November. If growth is well started, four weeks in an average night temperature of 60 degrees will suffice to flower them for Christmas. They require less time as the season advances. You can, if you prefer, plant the bulbs in solid beds. The trouble with this method of culture is that unless you make different plantings the bulbs will all flower together and, as has already been said, the shorter time the bulbs are out of the soil the better results they will give. C. W.

TRY BEGONIA VERNON, WHITE.

We have a fountain with a concrete circular wall about twelve inches high. What kind of a bedding plant having white flowers nearly all the time can we plant around this wall? We had this same order last year and we used sweet alyssum, but it did not grow high enough. S. B.—N. Y.

Begonia Vernon, white, growing twelve inches high, is a persistent bloomer; so is B. gracilis, white. Vinca rosea alba is another continuous bloomer. Others are white verbenas and white petunias. C. W.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

ILLINOIS FLORISTS VISIT TRI-CITIES

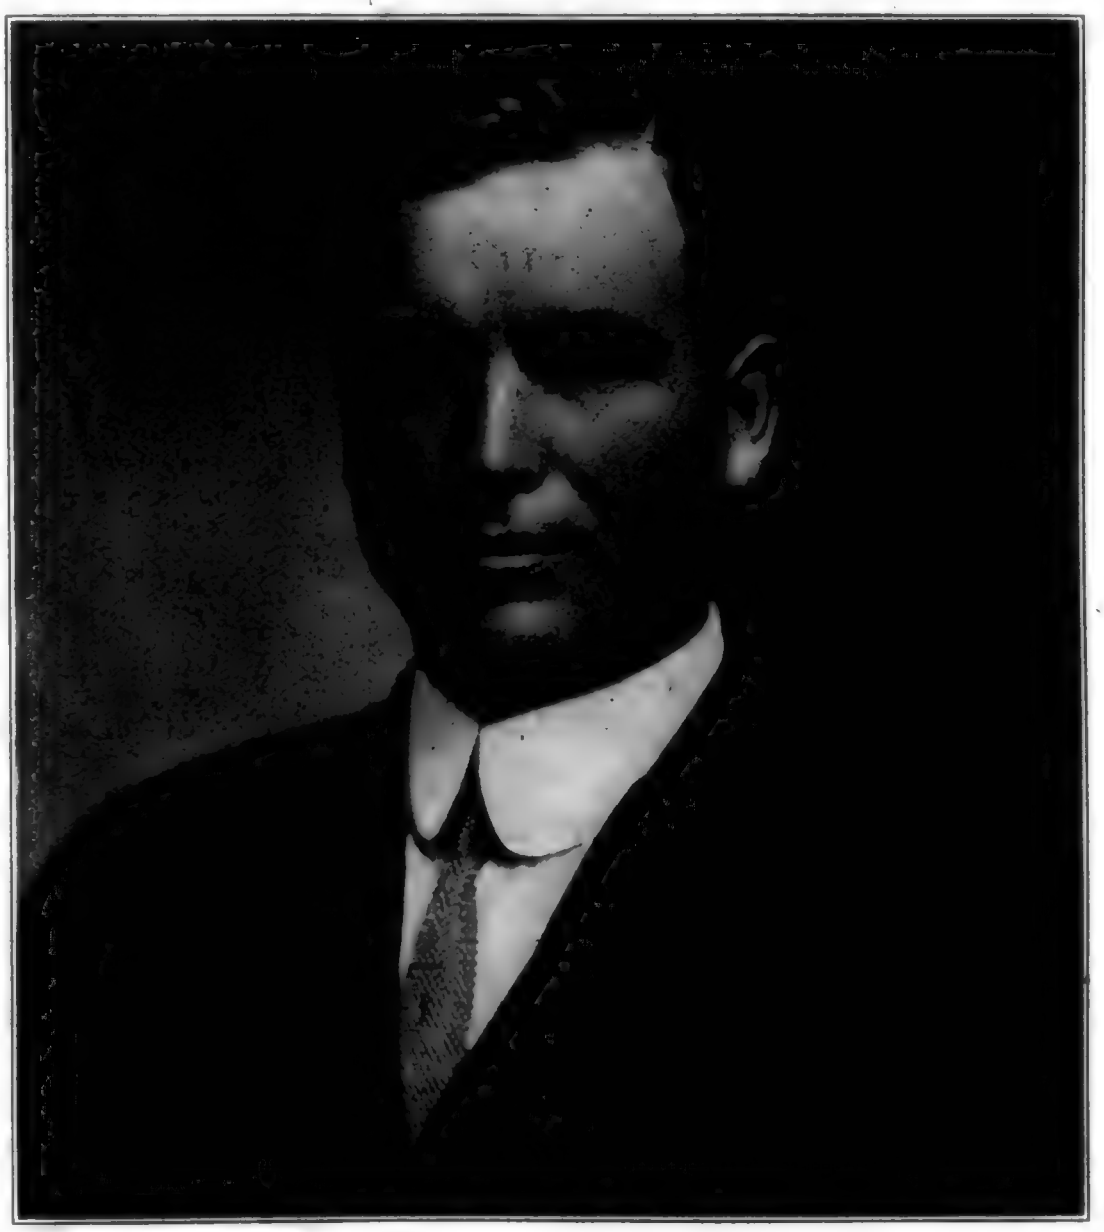
For the first time in its eleven years of active life the Illinois State Florists' Association this week met at Moline, one of the famous Tri-Cities on the Mississippi. Many activities planned, including a show at Bloomington and a meeting at Urbana.

IT is doubtful if any convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association was ever attended by a more alert and enthusiastic body of tradesmen than that called to order by President Johnson at 2 p. m., March 7, in the Turner hall at Moline, Ill. It is probable there have been larger state gatherings, but more aggressively progressive—never. Both the business session and the banquet were conducted with a gusto that added much to the general success of the meeting. It was noted that a considerable part of the attendance was from Chicago, although a special effort is made to secure the active participation of florists from all parts of the state.

As many of the florists were late, the session was opened in the exhibition hall. After the address of welcome by Martin R. Carlson, mayor of Moline, I. L. Pillsbury, vice-president of the association, replied on behalf of the florists. This was followed by the presentation of the officers' reports, which are printed in this issue of The Review. The books of the secretary and treasurer were approved by the auditing committee, consisting of A. C. Kohlbrand, I. L. Pillsbury and John Staack.

The suggestion made last year that two meetings a year be held was again brought up. It appeared to be the popular will that a November show be held in Bloomington and a spring convention be held in Urbana. The matter was not decided, however, but referred to the executive committee for action.

A letter from O. E. Steinkamp, secretary of the Indiana State Florists' Association, was read, inviting the Illinois organization to the next annual convention of the American Carnation Society, to be held at Indianapolis next January. Secretary Ammann, president-elect of the American Carnation Society, talked briefly on the work of that society and urged the Illinois growers to make an effort to show the world what Illinois carnation growers really can do when they try.



OFFICERS ELECTED.

President.
C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park.

First Vice-president.
I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg.

Secretary.
J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville.

Treasurer.
F. L. Washburn, Bloomington.

President Charles W. Johnson.

Election of Officers.

There could be no more eloquent commentary on the work of the association's officers during the last year than the action of the organization in the matter of selecting its leaders for the ensuing year. President, first vice-president, secretary and treasurer were unanimously reëlected.

The committee on the president's address made a report during the evening approving the recommendations contained therein. The committee consisted of George Asmus, C. L. Washburn and H. B. Dorner.

W. J. Keimel, Allie Zech and George Jacobs, constituting a committee on the secretary's report, approved of the recommendations of the secretary as to life membership.

Unfortunately, G. L. Peltier, of Urbana, was unable to be present. His report on pathological work was read by E. Lauterbach, of the Department of Floriculture of the University of Illinois. This paper and the one read by F. W. Muncie, of Urbana, on fertilizer work were productive of a most interesting discussion, during which the question of rust on snapdragons came in for a fair share of attention.

The Banquet.

Over 100 florists and their friends sat down in the evening at the tables in the large banquet hall of the Moline Commercial Club. After a most satisfying repast, the company was regaled with a paper on Christmas and Easter flowering and foliage plants, read by W. E. Tricker, of Western Springs. The banqueters showed their appreciation by a rising vote of thanks. Then came a treat in the form of a serenade by a local glee club.

Prof. Dorner's talks are always most welcome, and his remarks on what the Division of Floriculture is doing were received with close attention. He spoke briefly of the development of the floricultural department of the university and of the instructional methods. There are now twenty-three undergraduate and two graduate students in his department, and seven will receive their degrees this year. W. K. Palmer, a graduate of 1913, is now in charge of the greenhouses and is also doing instructional work. E. Lauterbach is assisting G. L. Peltier in plant pathology.

The talk by W. E. Taylor, M. D., proved to be one of the most entertaining features of the evening. He declined to confine himself to the topic assigned and indulged in highly interesting bits of florist and floricultural history. His talk throughout was interspersed with wit and humor.

Before closing the evening session, the association offered a vote of thanks to the Tri-City florists for their efforts in promoting the success of the convention and for their royal entertainment.

The following morning the visitors met in the Manufacturers' hotel at 9 o'clock and proceeded on a motor tour of inspection through the three cities.

The Exhibits.

It was generally agreed that the display this year was fully equal to that of former years, and though not large, it made up in variety and excellence whatever it lacked in size. The display of blooming plants and novelties was particularly striking.

The judges were C. Loveridge, of Peoria, H. E. Smith, of Danville, and J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, who reported on the exhibits during the course of the evening and made the following awards:

Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, staged an excellent exhibit of Ophelia, Sunburst and Shawyer roses. A large vase of their carnation, Belle Washburn, occupied a prominent place in the exhibit. They also sent a vase of calendulas, several vases of fancy sweet peas and a number of young grafted rose plants and Belle Washburn cuttings in 3-inch pots.

J. Staack & Sons, Moline, showed some fine pot-grown lilacs, azaleas and boxwoods. Received special mention.

William Knees & Sons, Moline, had an attractive display of retinospora, begonias, lilies and amaryllis.

The Davis Floral Co., Davenport, Ia., exhibited palms, ferns, cinerarias and cyclamens of excellent quality.

A large and well-grown group of flowering plants was staged by Henry Gaethje, Rock Island. His exhibit was highly commended.

From Henry Baer, Peoria, came several vases of carnations, among them Ward, Philadelphia, Enchantress Supreme, Benora, Pink Sensation, Commodore, White Wonder and White Enchantress.

Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Ill., sent a vase each of the following: Red seedling No. 24-12A; white seedling No. 140.09; white seedling No. 140.09A; pink seedling No. 39.12A; pink seedling No. 1.12A. White seedling No. 140.09 scored 87 points, entitled to association's certificate of merit.

Firebird, the new canna sent by Vaughan's Seed Store, attracted much attention.

A vase of Mrs. C. H. Deere, a new red carnation, was staged by Arvid Anderson, Moline, together with a white seedling No. 100. Mrs. Deere received honorable mention and seedling No. 100 scored 88 points. Entitled to certificate.

A center of interest was created by several vases of Alois Frey's Rainbow freesia, staged by the E. C. Amling Co., of Chicago. They also exhibited several vases of excellent roses grown by Wendland & Keimel Co., of Elmhurst. They were Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Milady and Sunburst. Vases of Killarney Brilliant and Ophelia roses, grown by Meyer & Dramm Co., of Elmhurst, also found a place in the exhibit. Special mention was awarded.

Its new pink seedling carnation No. 1 (12) was shown by the floricultural department of the University of Illinois. This scored 90 points. Entitled to certificate.

C. Loveridge, Peoria, showed two vases of forget-me-nots and snapdragons.

A table of well-grown violets and sweet peas belonged to A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington.

F. B. Smith & Sons, Danville, staged their pink seedling carnation, No. C. 208. Scored 88 points. Entitled to certificate.

H. G. Pauli, Davenport, Ia., was represented by a well-chosen display of miscellaneous plants.

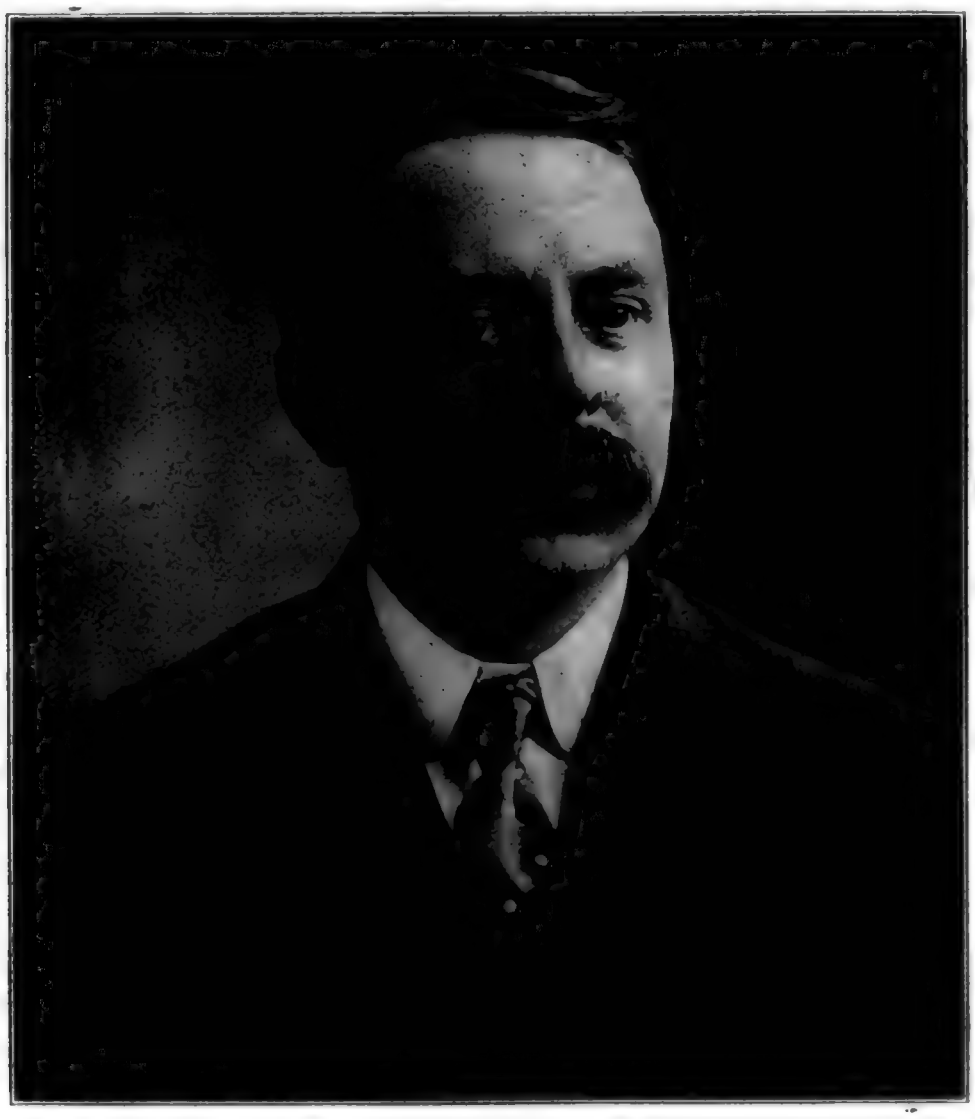
Not to be outdone, the City Park Greenhouses, Davenport, exhibited a splendid lot of cyclamens and primroses. Considered worthy of certificate of merit.

A group of cinerarias of excellent quality was shown by C. D. Wiman, of Moline.

Not satisfied with one exhibit, Henry Gaethje, of Rock Island, had a completely equipped house and garden in miniature, which proved one of the striking features of the exhibition.

The Gordan-Van Tine Co., of Davenport, displayed a number of hotbed sashes and greenhouse material.

A full line of pots and hanging baskets represented the Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich.



The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. exhibited paints, insecticides, glass and putty.

A wide assortment of baskets and florists' novelties and accessories was on display in the booth of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

Self-watering flower boxes were shown by the Ideal Lighting Co., of Davenport.

Florists' baskets in many shapes were exhibited by the Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.

Philip Foley, of the Foley Mfg. Co., of Chicago, was there with a table full of plans, illustrations, circulars and parts.

Frank L. Washburn.
(Treasurer of the Illinois State Florists' Association.)

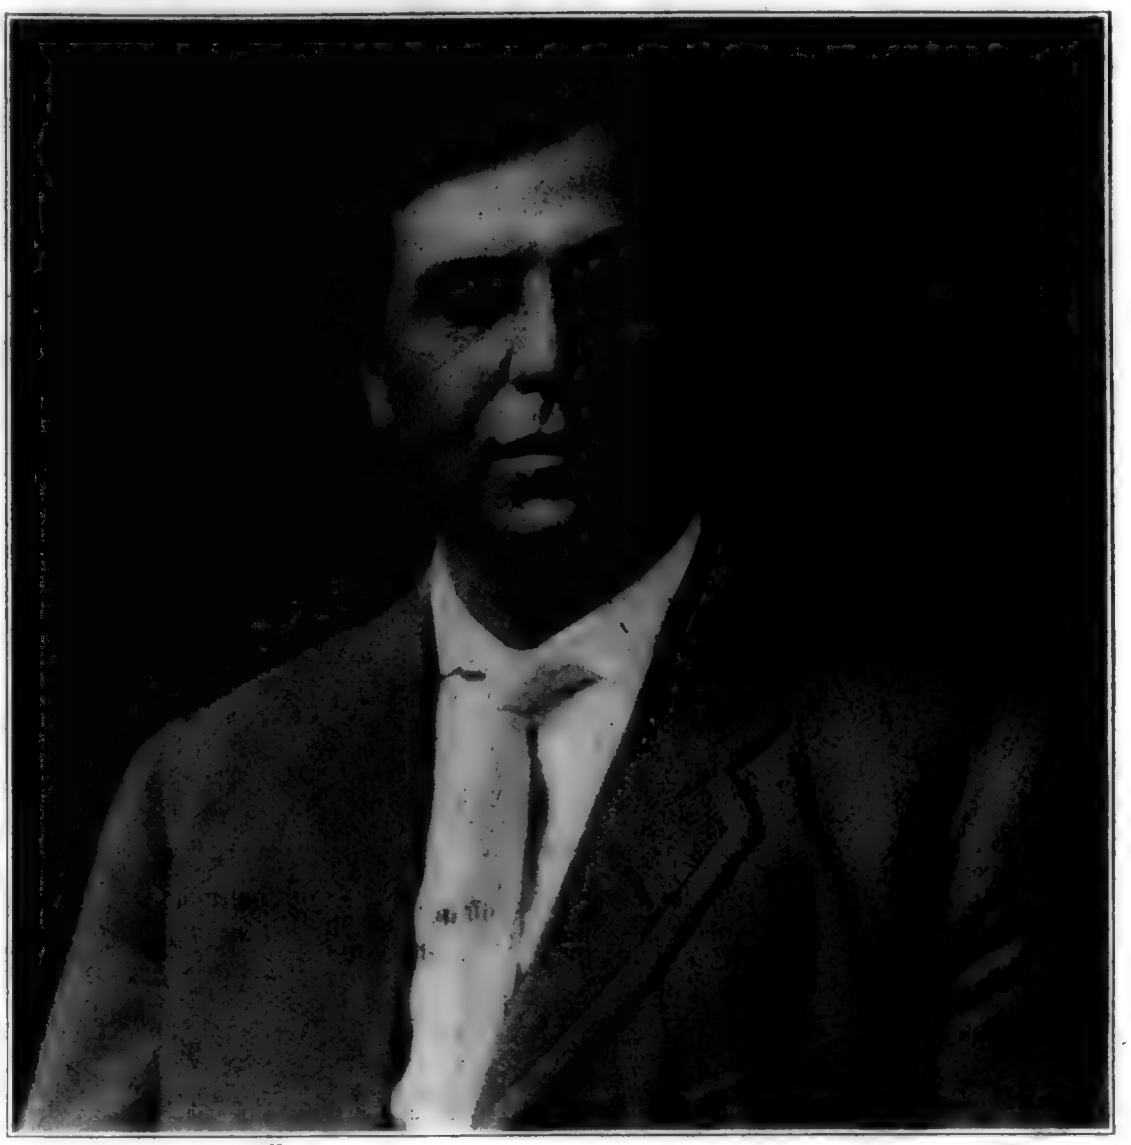
The A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., Chicago, was represented by Joseph Marks with a full line of travelers' samples.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, was on hand with blueprints, folders and illustrations.

Cohen & Hiller, New York, had an excellent display of ribbons and chiffons. Honorable mention.

The W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; A. Henderson & Co., Chicago; John C. Moninger Co., Chicago; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and Bassett & Washburn, also of Chicago, had wall space.

Visitors.



Of course all the florists of Moline, Rock Island and Davenport were present all the time. Those from outside points present at the opening of the meeting were:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[The report of J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, presented at the convention at Moline, March 7.]

Your secretary is pleased to report the addition of eight annual members and one life member during 1915. The matter of unpaid dues is of such importance that I feel something should be done about it. Our constitution does not provide for the suspension of any member for nonpayment of dues, nor do I recommend any such provision. In lieu of it I would suggest the elimination of annual membership dues, and instead amend the constitution so as to have two classes of paying members as we now have, except that the members with $1 dues be associate members only, with no further dues to pay. All those paying or having in the past paid the sum of $10 as dues shall be made active life members. This would eliminate the bother of collecting annual dues. The interest from a life membership fund and the associate membership dues would pay the running expenses of the association. I recommend this for your earnest consideration.

J. F. Ammann.
(Secretary Illinois State Florists' Association.)

Three members preceded us into the great beyond last year, D. U. Augspurger, of Peoria; Albert C. Rott, of Joliet, and John Zech, of Chicago. May those bereaved by their passing find solace in the words of our great Comforter.

Secretary's Financial Statement.

Amount received from annual dues	$59.00
Amount received from life members	10.00
Total	$69.00
Paid for secretary's expenses	$31.62
Paid for printing	17.75

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[Report of J. F. Ammann, secretary of Illinois State Florists' Association, presented at convention at Moline, March 7.]

Your secretary is pleased to report addition of eight annual members one life member during 1915. The tter of unpaid dues is of such importance that I feel something should done about it. Our constitution s not provide for the suspension of member for nonpayment of dues, do I recommend any such provision. ieu of it I would suggest the elimion of annual membership dues, and ead amend the constitution so as ave two classes of paying members we now have, except that the mem with $1 dues be associate members , with no further dues to pay. All se paying or having in the past paid the sum of $10 as dues shall be made active life members. This would eliminate the bother of collecting annual dues. The interest from a life membership fund and the associate membership dues would pay the running expenses of the association. I recommend this for your earnest consideration.

Three members preceded us into the great beyond last year, D. U. Augspurger, of Peoria; Albert C. Rott, of Joliet, and John Zech, of Chicago. May those bereaved by their passing find solace in the words of our great Comforter.

COCHRANE'S NEW STORE.

The accompanying illustration affords a view in the newly equipped store of J. M. Cochrane, in West Pullman, a suburb of Chicago. Mr. Cochrane has done a successful business in the town for a number of years, at first under the name of Cochrane & McKay, but the partnership was dissolved in 1910. Two new greenhouses were built that season and sales have increased steadily until now two stores are operated, one at 434 West One Hundred and Nineteenth street, the other at 11405 Michigan avenue, retailing the pot plant output of the greenhouses and much cut stock from the Chicago market. The new equipment complete was installed by the store fixtures department of the A. L. Randall Co., being built to order.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

[The address of C. W. Johnson, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, at the convention at Moline, March 7.]

We now are assembled for our eleventh annual convention and exhibition. At the annual meeting held a year ago at Urbana, Ill., it was proposed that we hold two meetings each year—a fall meeting at the Illinois State Floricultural Experimental Station, Urbana, and the annual meeting and exhibition in March at some other point in the state, to be designated each year. It also was decided at that time to accept the invitation of the Tri-City Florists' Club and meet with them in Moline at this time. Your executive committee held a session in Peoria August 31, 1915, at which time the secretary reported he was informed by the officials in charge of the experimental station that the month of March was the most suitable time for our association to meet with them, so the fall meeting of 1915 was dropped and the committee decided to go ahead with this meeting, as proposed, and invite the Iowa florists to meet with us.

I am sure that we all recognize the good work that is being done at the experimental station and the personal interest it should have for every member, but I do not believe that the best interests of the association can be served by localizing our annual meeting at any one particular point. I therefore suggest to you the careful consideration of this matter. This is the first time that we have met in the far western part of the state and I feel sure that the association will greatly profit by it, and that every member will be benefited beyond measure for any sacrifice he has undertaken to attend this meeting. It will enable us to become acquainted with the florists of this part of the state, as well as with those from our neighbor state of Iowa.

Research Work.

I know that you will agree with me in saying that a good program has been arranged for our benefit. After the reports of the officers of the association have been given, Prof. F. W. Muncie will report on the work on fertilizers, which has been carried out at the experimental station, and Prof. G. L. Peltier will report on the pathological work. I doubt if many of us fully appreciate what is being done to solve some of the problems along these lines. They are of great importance and will continue to become more so as the time goes by. Investigation and research of this character require time to arrive at any definite results, such as it would be safe to advise the average florist to follow, but I firmly believe that the different lines of work now being carried out by these gentlemen are going to be of the greatest value not only to the florists of this state, but also to those who live in other parts of the country. Therefore, permit me to ask of each member his earnest thought and consideration of the reports presented by Professors Muncie and Peltier.

Three Interesting Papers.

"Christmas and Easter Flowering and Foliage Plants" is the topic of a paper to be read by W. E. Tricker, of Western Springs, Ill., and I feel sure it will be listened to with the greatest of interest by everyone present. A new era appears to have been opened up for these plants, the demand at the holidays for first-class stock being greater than the supply, and I know that Mr. Tricker will give us many helpful pointers on the growing of these plants.

Prof. H. B. Dorner is to speak to us on what the division of floriculture is doing at Urbana. Prof. Dorner informs me that there are more students taking up the study of floriculture than at any other time. I have had the privilege of having some of these students work with me during the summer months, and have found them to be clean-cut, earnest young men, and the question that presents itself to me is: "How are these young men going to be received by the trade after they are through with their studies? Will they receive salaries commensurate with the study they have put in and thus make their efforts worth while?" These young men, trained to the conditions of this country, surely ought to be able to show better results than men of more mature years who have not had the same advantages.

A talk on "Soils" by Dr. W. E. Taylor, of Urbana, should prove of special interest to all growers, and I would urge that every member enter into the spirit of the meeting, take part in the discussion and give us the benefit of his experiences.

Unpaid Dues and Affiliation.

Just a few words for the good of the association. The first matter is the nonpayment of dues. The secretary advises me that he is at his wit's end to find a way to induce the members to pay their dues regularly. It certainly cannot be the annual amount of $1 that is standing in the way; it seems simply to be neglect on the part of the members to attend to the matter on time. I am not sure whether our association is eligible to affiliate with the Society of American Florists under its rule of 100 paid-up S. A. F. members, and I would suggest that the secretary take the matter up with Secretary John Young of the S. A. F. To my mind a representative from every state society on the board of directors of the national society would be an ideal arrangement. If it can be done, let our association be one of the first.

As a state association I believe our work should cover a more extended field than the florists' clubs of the cities, and that we should aim to get into close relations with the commercial bodies of the state. Permit me, therefore, to suggest that a committee be appointed to bring this about. Also permit me to suggest that a certificate of membership be prepared, signed by the president and secretary, and given to each member to hang in his place of business. There is a growing interest among improvement societies and women's clubs throughout the state in holding local flower shows during the summer months, and I believe that we, as an association, could help in this work by contributing a display through our membership and assisting in the judging of the exhibits.

Newly Fitted Up Store of J. M. Cochran, West Pullman, Ill.

The Carnation Shortage.

The wet summer of 1915 was a bad season for the carnation plants in the field, and to it can be traced, to a great extent, the reason of the short supply of carnation blooms during the winter, but it would seem that growers are not watchful enough of their plants and fail to govern themselves according to the conditions of the weather. The grower who brought in his carnation plants early and thus saved them from much of the wet weather, has been well repaid by being able to supply a good lot of flowers at a high price.

I wish that every member would feel himself duty-bound to give us his views on any subject for the good of the association and our work. I wish to thank the secretary for his work during the last year and the local committees and members of the Tri-City Florists' Club, who have done much to make this convention and exhibition a success. As a closing word of appreciation to my fellow members of the Illinois State Florists' Association, I thank you for your confidence and presence here and trust that our association will continue to grow in strength and usefulness as the years come and go.

BAILEY'S CYCLOPEDIA, VOL IV.

["The Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture," by L. H. Bailey. Published by the Macmillan Co., New York. Volume IV, containing pages 1,761 to 2,422, fully illustrated with engravings in the text and with full-page plates, several of them colored. To be completed in six volumes. Price per volume, strongly and neatly bound in cloth, $6.]

Four of the entire six volumes of Bailey's new cyclopedia are completed, and thus we now have much more than promises, even the most sincere and reliable of promises, in regard to the excellence of the work. We have two-thirds of the cyclopedia before us, as a convincing ocular demonstration.

Of course, mere promises from such a source might safely be accepted as worth their full face value—promises from an author and publishers of so high a character as those engaged in the making of this cyclopedia. Indeed, irrespective of promises, the simple fact that such an author and such publishers have been coöperating in the task would generally be regarded as an absolute guarantee of the superiority of the finished product. Now, however, the product itself is here—two-thirds of it—and it is not at all likely that the final one-third will be allowed to disgrace the first two-thirds.

In its comprehensiveness, in its accuracy, in its practical usefulness, in its general preëminence of quality, the cyclopedia is proving itself true to its name, "The Standard." It is for sale by The Review on the same terms as are offered by the publishers.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

H. R. FISHER.

At Marysville, Kan., is a thriving little greenhouse owned by a man who has followed the trade for twenty-eight years and during that time worked for others in eighteen different states. He commenced business for himself five years ago without a cent and now owns, free of debt, the greenhouse, a comfortable home, and the four city lots they occupy. Not only has H. R. Fisher prospered in a business way, but in the five years he has resided in Marysville he has joined the church and become one of its influential and faithful officials; has joined the Masonic Lodge, Chapter and Commandery and holds office in each; is an officer of the Y. M. C. A.; leader of the Gospel Team; teacher in the Sunday school, and has served as city councilman. As he reviews his life, with the success of recent years, he will tell you it pays to hustle and to apply the Golden Rule.

A REMEDY FOR MEALY BUG.

My coleus are infested with mealy bug and all efforts to get rid of the pest seem to be futile. I have used lemon oil, one-half pint to three quarts of water, and fir tree oil soap, one ounce to one gallon of water, which was used as a dip, but neither of these has had any effect on the bugs. Any information on this matter will be appreciated. P. C. E.—Md.

There is nothing better than a good pressure of cold water from the hose, directed so that it can hit the pests. Dipping in the solutions you name may burn the coleus foliage without harming the bug in the least. Mealy bug is worst on old, carried-over coleus. For that reason throw away such plants once you have taken a crop of cuttings from them. C. W.

MR. TRICKER'S TRI-CITIES TALK

PLANTS FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

[A synopsis of a paper by William E. Tricker, read before the Illinois State Florists' Association at Moline, Ill., March 7, 1916]

The average florist takes the matter of Christmas and Easter plants much as a man buying a spring or fall suit. It has come to be habit, in most instances, without forethought. I think the florists of this country should endeavor to get out of the beaten track of the usual stock used for these different occasions and try to present something to the public that is a novelty, that will increase the plant trade in the same way that the disseminators of new roses and carnations are pushing their wares forward. I do not mean to disregard the staple plants that are selling year by year and that we have educated the public to call for. But perhaps it is not the growers' fault, as, with the exception of one or two retail florists, they are cautious about taking hold of a new line. If something new is brought to their notice, the predominant thought relates to price, with the purchase of six or a dozen plants, instead of enough to make a large display. The result is the new plants are hidden among the general stock and unless a live salesman pushes them, often are left to the tender mercies of the knock-out price or the garbage can. I am afraid we have not taken advantage of our best opportunities to present to the public other stock than the plants that grow with the least attention.

Growers' Problems.

The pot plant business is discouraging to most florists for the simple reason that it costs about three times as much to produce the same income per square foot as it does with plants benched for cut flower purposes. Many growers expect all profit and no loss. There must necessarily be waste and cull plants, no matter how successful a grower may be. You cannot take the hose and water pot plants in the same way you treat the rose bed. The guiding rule with all stock to be finished ahead of its natural time is that root action must be vigorous before the plant may be expected to break forth. For instance, take azaleas. Many consignments last season were not received from abroad until December 1, but many growers had stock for Christmas! But what credit, what benefit, is that to the trade? After such excessive forcing the plant lasts only a few days. The customer is dissatisfied, the retailer is dissatisfied and we are not satisfied, ourselves, that we did the right thing. I believe that if we were to sell only plants well finished and hardened off, the public, instead of buying only at holiday seasons, would be more intent on having flowering plants at all seasons and that this would become a flower-loving nation.

We are moving too fast in these times. One instance in particular impresses me. When my illustrious parent determined that I should have a similar experience to that by which he had gained knowledge, I entered the Veitch establishment at Chelsea, London, England. The man in charge instructed me to take over certain houses. He gave me two watering cans, a boy to carry water, and a long-handled wooden hammer to tap the pots to ascertain if they were dry. Imagine my feelings later when he insisted I tap every pot, whether I thought it was dry or not! I mention this to explain how thorough the old-fashioned method was. A plant was more carefully nourished, more carefully handled, and I think we can attribute the success of the foreign firms to this painstaking care.

Who's He?

A traveling salesman leaving a retail florist's establishment after booking a good-sized order. No prize is offered for his name, as we might not be able to handle the mail.

The Leaders for Christmas.

Poinsettias, azaleas, cyclamens, liliums, etc., are the Christmas plants most florists will stock. Begonias in recent years have not been popular. They are bad shippers and, if they receive the slightest check or chill at any stage, represent loss. Melior, of recent introduction, supersedes Lorraine and Cincinnati. Among foliage plants, dracænas, crotons and pandanus in the various forms are the staples. In speaking of dracænas everybody's thought flies to terminalis, undoubtedly the most popular and easiest to produce. But Lord Wolseley, providing the weather for ten to twenty days before Christmas is bright, is much superior in color and general effect. Amabilis is attractive.

There always has been a call for red-berried stock for Christmas, and the various types of solanum, especially Melvinii, have filled the gap on the cheaper-priced stock. It has been my experience with all solanums and peppers, that while the planting-out process is cheaper, a grower is doubly repaid by growing this stock in pots throughout the season and plunging the pots in the open ground over the rim. There are few growers who can lift stock and pot it without its suffering materially. Skimmia Japonica has come to the front again the last two years, being imported. It seldom arrives here with the quantity of leaves it should have as a finished plant. Another fault is that the berries are not bright enough to be conspicuous with the foliage carried on these plants. Ardisias are extensively grown in the east and will become more popular as growers learn the methods of growing them.

A Good Novelty.

Among additions to the list that would be beneficial to the trade at Christmas is Azalea Kæmpferi. This is a scarlet Japanese variety, producing a lustrous mass of bloom, and, to the writer's mind, much prettier and more effective than Mme. Petrick. Red tulips in pots have not gained the popularity that one would expect for Christmas. I think possibly the fault lies in the growing. Scarlet Duc Van Thol, if handled rightly, will finish nicely for Christmas in pots or pans nine to twelve inches high.

In recent years there has been a large demand for 4-inch stock to be used in making up baskets. These, providing the linings are deep enough, give the retailer excellent scope for originality and should teach the grower that there are large possibilities in the medium-sized plants.

The palm section, for decorative purposes, seems somewhat on the wane. I cannot help thinking that the Boston fern has to a large degree been responsible for this change. Large specimen plants of Asplenium Nidus-avis, Dracæna Massangeana and the better varieties of crotons, such as Readii, are now used extensively for home decorations.

That Variable Date.

Leaving the Christmas plants in this unfinished condition, and before your patience is entirely exhausted, we will consider the more extensive variety for Easter. The public little realizes the trouble the grower has in producing stock for this occasion. Easter coming on a variable date, it seldom comes to please all growers. It is either too late or too early. For instance, this year Easter comes just at the time when everybody is getting ready for the spring trade. It has been a serious proposition. It has been one continual cramp, unless a lot of foresight has been utilized.

For Easter, lilies have been the predominant item for years. It was first the calla lily, but longiflorum, Harrisii, Formosa and giganteum have completely ousted the calla. There is something further interesting in the lily line. Lilium myriophyllum, introduced from China, has proven to be an excellent forcer and bids fair to be an acquisition for the Easter trade, especially as it is not the dead white of other lilies. It is white, slightly suffused with pink and canary yellow at the base. It has an odor similar to that of jasmine. There is also Lilium Sargentiæ. It is a stronger grower than Harrisii, six to eight feet, with from five to ten flowers on the stem, a greenish white color with a shading of purple, but pure white within the flower.

Pot Lilies Deeply.

Many florists have had their troubles with lilies. There are few growers who place the bulbs in the flowering pot to allow for the extended root action of the stem. They pot them too high in the pot. Often the lily, forced in this manner, does not get the nutrition necessary and the tips of the leaves turn brown, the flowers are of immature size and at once the verdict is that the bulbs were diseased, which is unfair to the importer. The lily bulb should be placed practically at the bottom of a 5-inch or 6-inch pot, according to the size of the bulb, and covered with only enough soil so that the top of the bulb will be apparent. After root action and the growth of stem has begun, about two to three inches above the top of the pot, the pot should then be filled up with a good, heavy, well mixed compost. Then you have every particle of root action that it is possible to get, you have better plants and, naturally, more flowers.

Hydrangeas and Rhododendrons.

At this season the hydrangea is to the fore. Great work has been done in developing this plant and we have Mr. Dupuy, of Long Island, to thank for much of this advance. There are many florists who do not realize the value of the newer varieties of the French type. It is not only possible to have them in for early Easter, but also possible to produce these plants for Christmas. Lilie Mouillere is probably the best white variety. Mme. Maurice Hamar is an early-flowering pink. Radiant, to my mind, is the best pink, but inclined to be a poor grower if not handled in the proper manner.

There has been a controversy regarding hydrangeas. Many growers do not realize that the bud has to be formed the season before forcing, and if the bud is not there it is impossible to get a flower the following season. A great deal of this stock in recent years has been imported, but our American growers seem able to produce a better grade of stock, well finished and budded, cheaper and delivered at a better time than the imports are. While the French varieties are indeed an acquisition, I do not want to disregard Otaksa, which has served us well.

William E. Tricker.

Rhododendrons of various types, mostly the Himalayan, have not been grown much more extensively than they are at the present time. They are not hard to time, but they have a tendency to drop their foliage and take so much bench room that the grower cannot be compensated for handling them. The camellia, deutzia and kalmia are waning on account of the room they take and the small return a grower receives for the risk in producing this stock.

Roses Are Leaders.

Roses are a main feature for Easter and, with the advance of the baby ramblers, it appears that the demand increases materially each year. The polyantha types can all be imported as late as Christmas and be brought into flower for Easter with little trouble. The newer varieties of this type include Mme. Jules Gouchault, Ellen Poulsen, Erna Teschendorff and Mme. Turbat. These have replaced Phyllis and types that have not proven so satisfactory to the public. In the various types of climbers, Hiawatha and American Belle held full sway for a season or so, but the single-flowered types of this class do not give the satisfaction that the semi-double varieties do. Tausendschon has without a doubt been the queen of climbing roses. It is probably the best forcer of all climbers for early spring. We all know that the other climbers, such as R. excelsa, Dorothy Perkins, etc., make excellent plants, but through starting them up a little too quickly and a little too hot they have made wood instead of buds.

In speaking about azaleas I omitted Azalea mollis, which at one time was the leader with all growers who force stock for Easter, but it did not retain the favor of the public. There is a new type of mollis, introduced, I believe, by Koster, that I think will reopen the demand for this class, as it includes a golden yellow and a dark cerise that seems to be much in favor, holding the bloom for a long period.

Bougainvilleas and Andromedas.

Bougainvilleas seem to be less in demand in the east than in former years. The public there is tiring of them, but I find through the middle west people are beginning to call for them. Gardenias have been extensively grown in some sections for Easter trade. These require such delicate handling that there are few who experiment in trying them. Andromeda Japonica and A. floribunda, to all intents and purposes a hardy shrub, will last in bloom from eight to twelve weeks in as perfect a condition as when the flowers opened. They are showy and attract a great deal of attention. Spiræas have been greatly improved by the varieties of recent introduction, Peach Blossom, Queen Alexandra and other types of the Arendsi form. The trouble with this stock is that the plants require as much as three feet square to finish properly and they do not pay.

Hyacinths, tulips and other bulbs are generally a wind-up for Easter, including the new colored freesias, the noted Rainbow hybrids of which have been exploited with great success.

There are scores of other subjects. The collection of possible plants to be grown for Easter is so great that one cannot in a short space enumerate them all.

CARNATION DISEASES.

[The report of George L. Peltier, floricultural pathologist, University of Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, presented before the convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association, at Moline, March 7, 1916.]

Branch-rot of carnations was more serious last season than formerly. This condition was due, in part, to the peculiar weather conditions which were prevalent during the summer. The excessive rains produced plants that were large, bushy and soft. As they made such rapid growth, a large amount of topping was necessary, which increased the number of wounds and so increased branch-rot. Also, the plants being bushy prevented them from drying out completely after the rains, and this factor also induced this trouble.

The fungus causing branch-rot cannot attack a healthy plant below the surface of the soil like stem-rot, but it is more in the nature of a wound parasite, attacking branches where the flower stems and shoots have been broken off and slowly working its way down into the stems and finally killing the entire plant. The fungus also is able to get in at the nodes and kill the young shoots even before they are visible. In bad cases of node infection the nodes become discolored and split and in a short time the whole branch dies. It was observed for the first time this season that the fungus is the principal cause of the dying off of the lower leaves of the plant, especially in cases where the plants have yellows.

To Control Branch-Rot.

To control this trouble, I would make the following recommendations:

It is better, for several reasons, to use a medium-sized sturdy plant than a large, bushy one to set in the bench.

In planting do not set the plants too close together. Overcrowding will increase branch-rot considerably.

As in the case of the control of stem-rot, keep the temperature down, especially during the first three months.

It is always better to syringe early in the morning of a clear day, so that the plants will dry out by evening.

In topping be careful not to leave stubs and broken parts on the plants, for these are open doors for branch-rot to enter.

In gathering flowers, experiments have shown that carefully breaking off the flower stems at the node is to be preferred to cutting the stems between the nodes. Branch-rot will enter a stub more easily than it will at the nodes.

Of the utmost importance in the control of branch-rot, as well as other diseases, is cleanliness. Adopt for your slogan, "Keep the houses clean!" which means under, as well as on top, of the bench.

Carnation Yellows.

Carnation yellows appears to be increasing in seriousness rapidly, and now is to be found on all the standard varieties in the market. While the cause of this disease still remains unknown, I would make a few suggestions, at this time, which, if carefully followed, will help to eliminate this trouble from your greenhouses.

Always bear in mind that anything that will lower the vitality of your plants will increase the yellows; also, that any check the plants receive will, likewise, tend to increase yellows.

Before making your cuttings select and mark the strongest and healthiest plants in the benches. Watch them closely and if they develop yellows do not take cuttings from them.

Make your cuttings from plants in bloom in preference to stock plants. In this connection, when you grow a new variety, remember the plants are generally propagated from stock plants and, in many cases, weak cuttings, due to overpropagation, are used. Therefore it is well worth your while to select the best and strongest plants of the new varieties the first year and watch them closely. Then make your cuttings in the manner I have outlined above.

Root your cuttings early in the season and do not leave them in the sand after they have rooted. It is better to pot up cuttings with the root system fairly developed than to wait until the cuttings have a great mass of roots. From my observations I have found that the later cuttings are made, the longer they take to root; also, that the late-rooted cuttings will be troubled with yellows much more than the plants rooted early in the season.

Although the more plants are shifted, the more yellows will increase, never let the young plants become potbound or stunted.

Antirrhinum Rust.

Antirrhinum rust, like the carnation rust of old, has spread over the whole country and now is found in the east as well as in the west. Like carnation rust, it will run its course and the ultimate result will be that the antirrhinum breeder will give us rust-resistant varieties, as in the case of the carnation. However, this time has not yet arrived and the question now before the grower is to know how to control it at the present time.

This rust, as well as anthracnose, another disease of the snapdragon, can be prevented by applying Bordeaux mixture every two weeks from the seedling stage until the spikes form, followed by a weekly application of ammoniacal copper carbonate during the rest of the growing season. A weekly application of the ammoniacal copper carbonate is also effective. Bordeaux mixture discolors the foliage, so it cannot be used through the season.

In my former reports I recommended the use of seeds instead of cuttings. I have learned from experience, however, that suitable plants for commercial purposes cannot be obtained from seeds. Therefore I would modify my recommendation to this extent. Do not use cuttings if you must send for them. Start your first batch from seed and then select cuttings from the most promising plants. Rust cannot be introduced in your establishment through seed, but infected cuttings can be easily overlooked. It has been proven rather conclusively that the rust was spread over this country during the last three years on infected cuttings.

Aster Wilt and Yellows.

Last summer work was started on aster wilt and yellows, two of the most serious troubles of this crop. About 10,000 plants were used in the experiments. Twenty-five varieties, representing all the commercial types, were grown from seed obtained from various states in this country and different localities in Europe. All the plants used were more or less infected with yellows, showing that the variety or origin of the seed has no influence on the amount of yellows. The more young seedlings were shifted, the more loss from wilt occurred. This was true to some extent with yellows also. The lowest percentage of loss occurred where the seeds were sown directly in the field, although the plants bloomed later. Disinfecting the seed with mercuric chloride, one part to 1,000 parts of water, for five to ten minutes, and the use of clean seed beds, with a minimum of shifting, or transplanting, will materially decrease the loss from wilt. No recommendation can be made for the control of yellows at this time.

Besides the studies reported on above, which are to be considered major problems, we have under observation a number of minor troubles, which it is hoped will be brought to your attention through circulars issued by the division of floriculture, or through the trade papers.

FERTILIZERS FOR ROSES.

[The report of F. W. Muncie, of Urbana, Ill., on fertilizer work at the Agricultural Experiment Station, University of Illinois, presented before the convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Moline, March 7.]

I am giving as a report to the association this year a summary of our bulletin, "Commercial Fertilizers for Roses," which now is in the hands of our editor and soon will reach you.

The soil in the vicinity of the experiment station is a brown silt loam. On such a soil applications of phosphatic fertilizer yield greatest increases in crops. Nitrogenous fertilizer also is needed, but applications of potassium sulphate not only give no increased crop but even decrease the yield.

The periods of heavy feeding should be during the periods of most rapid growth, viz., in fall and spring, when sunshine is abundant enough not to limit growth. Fertilization is particularly needed in spring, when the soil mixture is to the greatest extent depleted of its readily available content of plant food. While keeping this in mind, attention should be paid to the periods of heavier production by the plants, when more fertilizer is needed. Phosphate gives an increase in production continuous throughout the year.

Specific Kinds of Fertilizer.

Acid phosphate, used in these experiments, was found a satisfactory form of phosphatic fertilizer. No comparison was made, however, between it and bone meal, basic slag, and other phosphate-containing fertilizing materials. Dried blood and ammonium sulphate may each be used as nitrogenous fertilizers. The care necessary to prevent overfeeding with ammonium sulphate is so great, however, that its use is hardly to be recommended. The same precaution is necessary, but to a somewhat less degree, with sodium nitrate.

Applications of dried blood at the rate of five pounds per 100 square feet of bench space are safe, if put on only during periods of bright sunshine and of heavy production by the plants, and if not made oftener than four to six weeks apart. The amount of nitrogen in such an application corresponds to that contained in 270 pounds of manure of the average nitrogen content (fifty per cent moisture); it is somewhat more readily available than part of that in good manure. These comparative figures give a basis for the use of either material, however, and show that the need for nitrogenous fertilizer may be supplied as manure, quite as well as by the use of a commercial fertilizer. The symptom of nitrogen starvation—lightening of the color of the foliage—is so evident to every rose grower that there is no difficulty in determining when applications of a nitrogen-containing fertilizer should be made.

The Need of Phosphorus.

Plants do not show such marked signs of the need for phosphorus, and experiment alone can determine its need. Applications of acid phosphate up to twenty pounds per 100 square feet of bench space, or forty pounds per 100 cubic feet of soil, were found to give marked increases in production. The quantity of phosphorus contained in this application is equal to that contained in an application of 2,800 pounds of manure of average composition (fifty per cent moisture) to 100 square feet of bench space or twice this amount mixed with 100 cubic feet of soil. Since manifestly it is impossible to use such a mixture, the need for phosphate in form of a commercial fertilizer is evident. Acid phosphate, the only form of phosphatic fertilizer used in the experiment, is, as stated, satisfactory. Since the benefit from its use is continuous throughout the year, it should be mixed with the soil before the benches are filled. Top-dressings with it are not so satisfactory, since surface root growth is stimulated in this way, resulting in the roots having contact with the soil particles only in an upper layer of the soil in the bench. There is no danger from overfeeding with acid phosphate, for four times the quantity here recommended has been applied without injury. In this respect acid phosphate possessed an advantage over bone, which cannot be mixed with soil or applied as top-dressings in excessive amounts without injuring the plants. The same is true to a greater extent with high phosphate tankage, and blood and bone.

Use of Lime.

With such a need for phosphorus by rose plants, the use of lime or limestone with acid phosphate is to be discouraged, since the solubility of the phosphate would be decreased by its use. The decrease in production from sections in which limestone was used in the soil mixture, compared with that from sections receiving no lime, is fully proven by the data. The mixing of lime or limestone with the soil, though quite a common practice among growers, cannot be recommended. In case an application of lime is needed to prevent the growth of algæ and molds on the soil surface, finely ground limestone applied as a top-dressing at the rate of ten pounds per 100 square feet of bench space and lightly cultivated into the surface, will accomplish this without being carried down into the soil further than an inch below the surface, during the year.

The benefit of fertilizing is found to be in number of flowers produced and to a slight extent in the average stem length; no measurable change in length of petal follows fertilization with acid phosphate.

Comparisons of Soils.

The soil used in the experiment described in the preceding pages was of the type known as the brown silt loam. A description of the various soil types of the state of Illinois, with their fertility, is given in our Bulletin 123, which should be studied by every florist in connection with these experiments. The significant facts of the table on page 196 of the bulletin, giving the fertility of the different types, are, firstly, that the nitrogen content varies from 1,440 to 8,900 pounds per acre, six and two-thirds inches deep, and, secondly, that practically every type of soil has a low phosphorus content. Peat soils alone show a low potassium content. The need for nitrogen may be judged from the appearance of the plants, and the loss made good by the addition of manure or dried blood. An even better method is to obtain, at the beginning of the season, a soil of higher nitrogen content, by selection of sod soil, heavy manuring, or turning under of green manure. These experiments have shown a need for the addition of a phosphatic fertilizer and with a low phosphorus content, a property common to practically all Illinois soils, the recommendations are applicable to any of these soils. Since acid phosphate produces no injury when applied in large quantities, there is no reason to fear making an excessive application of it.

On peat and sandy soils alone is there danger of a lack of potassium, and considerations of watering and proper soil texture prevent the use of these soils in the growing of roses.

Recommendations.

On the basis of these conclusions the following recommendations are made as regards the growing of roses:

Keep up the nitrogen content of the soil by turning under green or farm manure before use. If roses show signs of nitrogen starvation—a lightening of color of the foliage—make up the need with applications of liquid manure, mulches of manure, or top-dressings of dried blood, the last in applications not exceeding five pounds per 100 square feet of bench space and applied not oftener than four weeks apart. Feed only during sunshiny weather and most generously during periods of heavy production.

Use generous quantities of acid phosphate in the soil. It may be added either at the rate of four to eight tons per acre in the field; in a compost with soil at the rate of forty to eighty pounds per 100 cubic feet of soil, or mixed with the soil at the same rate, just previous to filling the benches.

Do not mix lime or limestone with the soil. If needed for sweetening the soil and preventing the growth of algæ, make a top-dressing of finely ground limestone at the rate of ten pounds per 100 square feet of bench space.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW ANNOUNCEMENTS

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Executive Board to Meet.

By direction of President Daniel MacRorie, a meeting of the board of directors of the society has been called, to take place at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, Tuesday, March 28, at 2 p. m., to continue until all business to come before the board is completed.

Notice to Members.

The Proceedings of the Society for 1915, a volume comprising 364 pages, has been mailed to all members of the society.

Members of the society in good standing visiting the National Flower Show in Philadelphia will be furnished with a season ticket of admission, upon arrival at Convention hall. It will facilitate the work of the secretary's office, and prevent confusion and delay upon your arrival at the Exhibition hall, if you will remit your 1916 assessment at this time. The 1916 badge button will be sent you by return mail.

Department of Plant Registration.

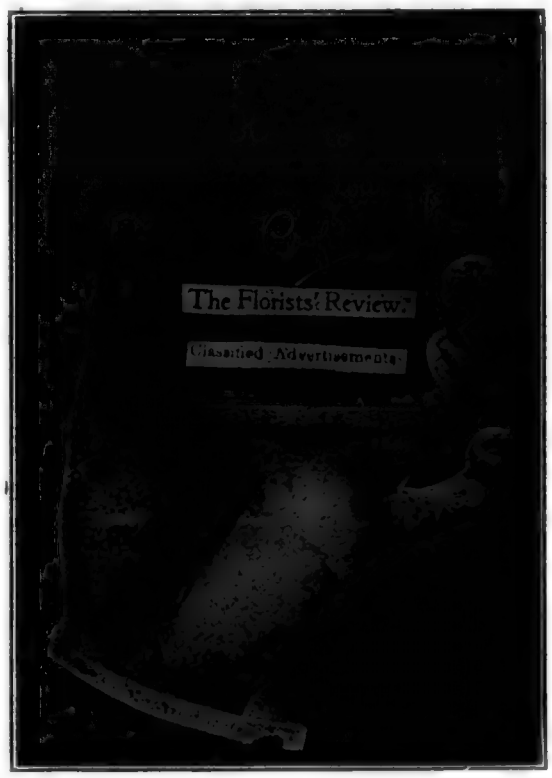
Public notice is hereby given that the Bedford Flower Co., Bedford Hills, N. Y., offers for registration the rose described below. Any person objecting to the use of the proposed name or registration is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Description: A pink sport of Double White Killarney. Has the same habit of growth and is equal in production; same foliage; color light pink, becoming deeper to the center as it opens. Flower is long and opens in perfect form. Name, Bedford Belle.

John Young, Sec'y.

SHOW PLANS COMPLETE.

The final schedule of premiums covering the classes for competition at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, has been distributed and all contemplating making entries are urged to place them in the hands of the secretary at once. The closing date for entries is March 20 and entries after that date must be accompanied by a fee of $2 and will only be received subject to acceptance by the National Flower Show committee.



Practically all of the space set apart for trade exhibits has been reserved, excepting a few blocks on the main floor extension, which doubtless will be taken up within a few days.

Exhibits, or exhibition material, should be forwarded wherever possible by Pennsylvania railroad connection to North Philadelphia Station, which is two blocks from Convention hall, where the show is to be held. Arrangements have been made whereby all shipments arriving at that station will be hauled to Convention hall at the rate of 15 cents per hundred pounds and all shipments arriving at other stations will be hauled at the rate of 20 cents per hundred pounds. Packages should be marked "Oberholtzer Transfer." Shipments by Adams Express should be marked "North Philadelphia Station," which is a depot of the express company.

All arrangements for the show are about completed, and at this date the prospects for the success of the undertaking are particularly bright.

The show will open at 2 p. m. March 25 and the opening ceremonies will take place at 3 p. m.

Anyone requiring a copy of the final schedule can obtain same on application to the secretary at 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city.

John Young, Sec'y.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The carnation exhibition at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, will be known as the Silver Jubilee exhibition. A special silver medal has been struck for the occasion and will be awarded to each winner of one or more first premiums in the competitive classes. These medals will be given in addition to the regular cash prizes.

Another feature at this exhibition will be the class for the largest twelve blooms. The Kroeschell Bros. gold medal, valued at $50, will be offered in this class and should bring out an extraordinary display.

The regular A. C. S. judges will officiate, except in the retailers' section, which will be judged by W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo; W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, and F. C. W. Brown, of Cleveland. The regular judges are C. W. Johnson, of Morgan Park, Ill.; William Nicholson, of Framingham, Mass.; R. Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, O.; E. Dailledouze, of Flatbush, N. Y.; E. A. Stroud, of Strafford, Pa.; W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo, N. Y.

All entries for the carnation exhibit must be in the hands of the secretary not later than March 20. A fine of $2 will be placed on each entry arriving after that date. Prospective exhibitors will confer a great favor on the clerical force by sending in their entries at the earliest possible moment. There is much detail work in connection with an exhibition of this size and nothing should be left that can be done early.

All members of the A. C. S. who have paid their dues for 1916 will be entitled to a season pass to the show. Certificates are being mailed out to those whose dues are paid, which will be exchanged at the show for the passes. Please send in your dues at once and a certificate will be mailed to you.

A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

LADIES' S. A. F.

On account of the secretary not attending the National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia March 25 to April 2, the president has authorized Mrs. Albert M. Herr to receive dues, and give receipts for the same.

Mrs. Geo. W. Smith, Sec'y.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

All members of the American Gladiolus Society in good standing will be given free season tickets to the National Flower Show, which will be held at Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2. It will be necessary to have a certificate, which may be had upon application to the undersigned at 538 Cedar street, Syracuse, N. Y.

Henry Youell, Sec'y.

BOWLING AT WASHINGTON.

Washington florists interested in the bowling tournament of the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association, to be held in the national capital, are planning to interest the florist bowlers who will attend the big flower show in Philadelphia. Florists' night during the tournament is to be made a grand occasion. William F. Gude, of Washington, is president of the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association. Entries in the tournament close March 25 and florists who can participate should get busy at once. As the Philadelphia show closes April 2 and the tournament starts April 3, Florists' day at the national capital could be worked in as a side trip and allow florists to get back to their business in ample time to care for the Easter rush.

Further information concerning the A. C. B. A. tournament can be obtained from Secretary Tom Grant, of the Chamber of Commerce, 1202 F street, northwest, Washington, D. C.

UHL THE UNUSUAL?

No, It's the Editor.

Here is a column from the Republican of Greenfield, O., sent in by the Mount Gilead Floral Co. It occupied the full right-hand column of the front page and it's worth reading. Apparently it is a manifestation of the editor's great good nature and the facility with which he wields his pen, but it might be the work of the advertising department. Anyway, it's easy to read and worth reading; perhaps even worth using for advertising copy in another country paper afar from Greenfield.

MR. UHL, THE FLORIST.

Emil Uhl is an enthusiastic florist. Emil Uhl is enthusiastic, for that matter, anywhere and at any time.

When he walks downtown he puts enthusiasm into every step. When he says "good morning" he says it enthusiastically, and the smile that accompanies ripples his countenance as the pebble dropped in the pool ripples the placid surface.

When Alsace-Lorraine cradled Emil Uhl in the late fifties she was nursing a ray of sunshine that has lost none of its warmth through the processes of age.

If Emil ever had a care, or if fate ever double-crossed him she got none of her delight out of the publicity that he gave to the incident. He's one of those rare specimens that refuses to follow your hard-luck story with one of his own.

Whenever there is a holiday on, Emil is out with the bloom from the houses of glass. Somehow or other America will always associate a flower with every gala day, religious, social or patriotic.

Easter brings the lily in all its loveliness for our admiration.

Memorial day, as a matter of tribute, brings out all varieties.

Thanksgiving gives us the chrysanthemum, big and fluffy and in all the shades which the specialists are able to produce.

When Christmas comes, then the poinsettia makes its appearance, natural, artificial, or both, and on all these days and others of lesser import, Emil Uhl is on hand with a downtown store that flower lovers may step in and admire and buy for themselves or their friends.

That's a fine practice of Mr. Uhl, and people should encourage the enterprise. Whenever Mr. Uhl opens up a place downtown people should patronize, even though they bought but a single bloom, or a blooming plant in pot for table decoration.

Did you ever take a blooming plant as a little surprise to the queen of your household? Well, as a surprise, it is unmatchable. Try it.

The next time you have a chance to buy a plant in bloom, take it home and say to friend wife: "Saw this downtown and thought it would look awfully pretty in the center of our dinner table. Fix it up kind o' tasty like."

Better have a bottle of smelling salts in your pocket, for she might faint. Better, also, set the plant down before you make your little speech, then you can have the use of both arms to catch her as she falls.

When she recovers she will forthwith become your press agent. She'll run all over the neighborhood to tell the neighbors that you brought home a blooming plant as a table decoration.

Of course she won't say it is the first one you ever brought home. She'll tell it as if it was your daily practice. Therein is the sting for the poor woman next door, who is married to a cold-hearted mutt that wouldn't think of a plant for the table in a million years.

The next day when you walk downtown the children next door will part the lace curtains and point you out as the man who bought a blooming plant and took it home as a gift to his wife.

Now don't spill the beans by telling friend wife that the next time Mr. Uhl brings some flowering plants downtown you'll buy one and bring it home. Act wise when you read this and exhibit a rank indifference. Might say by way of comment, that you've got other use for your money. That will sound natural to friend wife.

But down deep in your heart make an eight by ten resolution that the next time Emil gives you a chance, plunk goes two-bits or a half for a pretty plant in bloom, and don't forget the smelling salts.

CALLA FOLIAGE SCALDED.

I am sending you some calla lily leaves which seem to be affected, but I cannot find the cause of the trouble. I have not had any good flowers from these plants, but the foliage looked all right until about two weeks ago. These plants became dried out at one time and I turned the hose on them, and since then they have looked as if scalded. When I put the bulbs in the bed last August I did not cover them as I usually do. Perhaps that had something to do with it.

E. H. M.—Ia.

The leaves have every appearance of having been scalded by the sun. I think your plants are probably standing where the sun's rays strike them through some defective glass. A light shade over the glass would remedy the trouble. Give the plants an abundant water supply, feed liberally and they should still give you a good number of flowers. C. W.

Huntington, Ind.—George Pastor recently suffered a loss by the seepage of illuminating gas from a main broken by sewer diggers. He has brought suit against the sewer digger and also against the gas company.

Secaucus, N. J.—The will of August Junge, of Secaucus, who retired from the firm of Komitsch & Junge a year ago and who died February 16, has just been probated. After making twenty-two bequests aggregating $32,000 he directed that "all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate I give and bequeath to the imperial government of Germany to be used for the benefit of the wounded soldiers and the soldiers' widows and orphans in such manner as the imperial government of Germany shall see fit and proper."

Johnsville, Pa.—Fire partly destroyed the upper range of greenhouses of James Moss, early in the morning of March 4. The prompt arrival of the fire company made it possible to save part of the greenhouses and the service buildings, but it was zero at the time and nearly everything in the houses was ruined. The loss is especially unfortunate from the fact that Mr. Moss was behind in the shipment of many wholesale orders for young stock and now will be required to refund a considerable sum to those whose orders he can not fill as expected.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

The Imlay Co., of Zanesville, O., has remodeled its store to meet the requirements of a combined flower and seed business. The new plan is excellent in arrangement and saving of space. Along the entire counter and facing the customer is an extension of about six inches, divided into sections and covered with what are best described as miniature greenhouse ventilators. The seeds are arranged in consecutive order, plainly labeled with the percentage of germination, which gives the buyer a correct estimate of the quantity needed. Arranged in drawers and on shelves opposite, the stock is carried in packet and package to correspond with the seed compartments, as far as possible. This plan does away with bins and bags, so often seen, and insures stock from getting mixed, as is often the case in busy times. Both branches of the business are steadily increasing.

T. M. Fitzgerald, of Beaver, Pa., has noted the cut of carnations from the range built last year and is positive it pays to keep the houses as light as possible by cleaning and painting. A branch store has been opened at Beaver Falls, and as there are several promising junior Fitzgeralds, it is possible a chain of stores may be established in nearby towns, to be supplied, in part, by the home range.

Thomas Bolton, of Beaver Falls, Pa., reports a good season. A local club patterned after Pittsburgh is a possibility, with Mr. Bolton as its hustling president.

J. S. Hennon & Sons, of New Castle, Pa., owing to the heavy demand, will be unable to make a display at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, but they intend to hold a local spring show. Funeral work keeps all hands busy.

Butz Bros., of New Castle, Pa., were arranging to fill an order at San Antonio, Tex., through the F. T. D. when I called.

B. F. Engle, of Rochester, Pa., says the French and Dutch bulbous stock certainly was never more welcome than this season. It has helped in many a pinch.

George Huscroft, of Steubenville, O., is devoting all of his time to his new store. His many friends will be sorry to know that he suddenly has become deaf, which affliction, it is hoped, may be overcome.

The Bell Floral Co., of Franklin, Pa., has adopted "Bells" for a trade-mark. Valentine's day orders caused a merry jingle.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, of Cincinnati, are enjoying a good share of the season's prosperity. Mr. Peterson, accompanied by Miss Peterson, is at French Lick Springs for a rest previous to visiting the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, for which Roger Peterson says he is getting in his best licks to produce some prize-winning stock.

In Cincinnati I met S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, who incidentally was booming the National Flower Show and prophesying a positive success. We both were reminiscent, as old travelers from the Quaker City, and agreed with John E. Angle, of Mansfield, O., that at whatever angle one looks at the business prospect, it points upward and onward. W. M.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cyclamens.

Young cyclamen plants are still mostly in flats. Do not neglect them. Keep the surface soil stirred and the plants will grow much better than when you allow a coat of slime or moss to cover it. Shift into 3-inch pots before they have time to become too much crowded in the flats. Use plenty of leaf-mold, not too much decayed. This should form half the potting medium. Add a little old, dried manure and sand and let the balance be loam, light rather than heavy. Continue to keep the plants in a fairly warm house; 52 to 55 degrees at night will be a good temperature. Flowering plants which it is intended to retard should have a cool house, not over 45 degrees at night and 40 degrees on cold nights. The glass must be shaded and do not use any more fire heat than is necessary. Damp on floors and below the benches freely when the heat is on, to guard against any possibility of attacks of thrips.

Rhododendrons.

Rhododendrons for Easter flowering can be brought into a cool greenhouse. They will not need much forcing if started now, but if left until the middle of March, they should be given a temperature of 55 degrees at night and be kept freely syringed until the buds show color. Undoubtedly the finest Easter rhododendron is Pink Pearl, and these are all splendidly budded this season. The price is higher than that of the ordinary hybrids, but the flowers and trusses are so much larger and finer that they always readily command a higher price. White Pearl has flowers of the same size as Pink Pearl. It is not pure white, as its name might signify, but delicate pink. It is a lovely variety, but, unfortunately, it is a poor shipper, losing much of its foliage en route from Europe.

Bougainvilleas.

For Easter, bougainvilleas always meet with a tolerably good sale. Their color cannot be classed as exactly a pleasing one, but associated with white or pale yellow flowering plants it shows up well. Give the Easter bougainvilleas a warm house, 60 degrees at night will do, and syringe them freely. They will come along fairly rapidly, but it takes some time to get the flowers developed and, once open, they can be easily kept in good condition a week or two in a cool house.

Rambler Roses.

Any rambler roses not yet started must be got under way at once. It is an advantage to start all dormant roses cool and gradually advance the heat. The season is now so advanced that any unstarted plants should have 55 degrees at night from the start, or they will probably be too late. Use care in syringing roses that they get dry before nightfall, and do not wet them over at all on dull, dark days. Be careful with the ventilation. Any cold drafts are likely to start mildew and once this gets a fair foothold it is hard to stamp it out. Prevention is always better than cure, and with no plants is more care necessary while the growths are young and tender than with roses.

Spiræas.

There still is time to start the old Spiræa Japonica and have it in bloom for Easter, but it must have a temperature of 65 degrees at night from the start. Such varieties as Peach Blossom, Queen Alexandra, Gladstone and astilboides should be started into growth before now, for they require a longer season to flower than the old Japonica. All the spiræas want a copious water supply and it is well to remember that their foliage is tender, and for that reason fumigate lightly where they are, and never use the one-time popular tobacco stems as a fumigant.

Easter Lilies.

The Lenten season began Wednesday, March 8, and your lilies should show their buds plainly at this date in order to have them on time, in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. If they seem a little late hustle them along at once rather than adopt the sweating process nearer the festival. Throw away any diseased or sickly looking plants. They are absolutely valueless and only occupy valuable space needed by the healthy stock. Either spray or fumigate the plants regularly to keep aphis in check.

Dutch Bulbs.

The narcissi, tulips and hyacinths wanted for Easter must be kept as cold as possible for some weeks yet. All these bulbs come along quickly in April and from three to four weeks will be ample time to allow for them after housing. As Easter comes so late, this stock will come much better if flowered in coldframes and kept close to the glass, as in the frames the plants will be stockier and can easily be shaded to retard them.

Deciduous Shrubs for Forcing.

Deciduous shrubs are always popular at Easter. They will need less forcing than usual this season, owing to the late date of the holiday. Allow lilacs, prunus, malus, snowballs, wistarias, laburnums, cratægus and deutzias an average of not over six weeks in a temperature of 50 degrees. The apples and plums come more quickly than the other varieties. All these varieties are much improved by being grown cool. The flowers are of better color and possess more substance.

MODERN WINTER SWEET PEAS.

[A paper by Howard M. Earl, read before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, March 7, 1916.]

To arrive at the development of the winter-flowering sweet pea, we must go back to the introduction of that fine old variety, Blanche Ferry, for undoubtedly the American winter-flowering sweet pea can be traced back to that variety, or to the early-flowering mutations which have since arisen from it.

Introduction of Blanche Ferry.

The history of Blanche Ferry is exceedingly interesting and, strange to say, the name of its originator is not known. Over fifty years ago a quarryman's wife in Jefferson county, New York, procured some seeds from a bright-flowered plant of that old variety—in fact, one of the original varieties—Painted Lady (this variety was introduced in 1700), and for many years afterward she sowed and selected the best plants from her original selection, thus carefully and painstakingly improving her stock of what was in later years to be known as Blanche Ferry.

W. W. Tracy, Sr., who was then connected with the firm of D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, in passing that way saw the plants and was immediately impressed with their distinct character and obtained a small stock—only, I believe, about 100 seeds. The variety was named by the firm Blanche Ferry and was introduced by them in 1889. In 1895 Messrs. Ferry introduced an earlier-flowering type of the same variety, calling it Extra Early Blanche Ferry. In 1898 W. Atlee Burpee & Co. introduced Earliest of All, a still earlier type than Ferry's Extra Early Blanche Ferry, and this variety is what is known on the market and grown so extensively as Christmas Pink. There is a much earlier-flowering variety of the same color which blooms some time before Christmas Pink, but the growth is smaller and it is questionable whether under glass the flowers attain quite the size of its rather later-blooming counterpart.

Undoubtedly, all our winter-flowering sweet peas have the Blanche Ferry blood in them. Although the crosses later may not have been made on that variety, still, the originals of the type all emanated from it.

Blanche Ferry in North Africa.

The Telemly sweet pea, which originated with the Rev. Edwin Arkwright at Telemly, Algiers, Algeria, Africa, also sprang from Blanche Ferry. Mr. Arkwright explains that a sport from Blanche Ferry showed itself in his garden, blooming in February, when he promptly marked it, and the seed saved from this plant showed flowers the following January. From this time on he got various sports from this and also crossed them with some of the best of the summer-flowering sorts. He explains that he sows all his peas about the end of September, and while the summer-flowering varieties do not bloom until May, these early varieties come into bloom in January.

As soon as Countess Spencer was introduced, in 1904, Mr. Arkwright procured it and has been crossing his original type with the new waved or Spencer varieties, and I believe he has now a number of Spencer early-flowering varieties quite fixed to color.

Work of Engelmann and Zvolanek.

Mention should also be made of the early-flowering type known as Engelmann's. Mr. Engelmann explains that about 1903 some plants of the regular summer-flowering type sported with him, producing plants of the true winter-flowering habit. These he grew for some years under glass in England, where he is located, but, on account of the dull weather usually experienced there throughout the winter, he has ceased to grow this type, as he can get the original summer-flowering Spencers to bloom under glass in April.

The first of Zvolanek's varieties of winter-flowering Spencers to be introduced are, we believe, the direct results of crossing the winter-flowering grandifloras with the summer-flowering Spencer type, but there have also been introduced several varieties of true Spencer form, but winter-flowering type, which we understand came as direct sports from the summer-flowering varieties; namely, Yarrawa, Rose Queen and Anita Wehrman.

Experiments in Australia.

The origin of that great Australian variety, Yarrawa, is interesting. Arthur Yates, of Sydney, explains that for many years the sweet pea was looked upon as one of the most difficult plants to grow successfully in the warmer sections of Australia. The regular summer-flowering types bloomed in the late spring, when they were liable to be subjected to sudden bursts of hot weather and heavy winds, which often shortened their flowering season to a few weeks. Occasionally they entirely failed to bloom. However, the introduction of such varieties as Earliest of All, Mont Blanc and later the Telemly and newer American varieties quite revolutionized sweet pea culture in Australia, as these early varieties flowered in the winter and early spring, giving a supply of flowers for several months when practically no other flowers were available.

This was a great advance and the sweet pea in Australia soon became one of the most popular flowers. However, the quality of the winter-flowering varieties was so much below the standard of the modern Spencers that the Australian growers were not satisfied and efforts have been made with considerable success by a few enthusiasts to raise by selection and cross fertilizing a superior type of the winter-flowering varieties of the grandiflora section.

Yarrawa and Its Descendants.

However, a decided advance was in view, as in 1908 there appeared in the garden of John Young, of Sydney, in a patch of new summer-flowering Spencers, one plant of true Spencer type, but quite distinct from all others. It was different in its vigorous habit and upright growth, earliness and color; it was in full bloom when the others were only a few inches high and it had gone to seed before the normal type had commenced to show flower buds. The seeds from this plant were carefully saved and sown the following autumn, when it came quite true to the parent and, instead of remaining more or less dormant all winter, as the original Spencers do, it commenced to bloom in the late autumn and continued to flower right through the winter, going to seed in the early spring, as Telemly and American winter-flowering varieties do in Sydney, the winters there being comparatively mild, with only light frosts.

This early Spencer is quite distinct in habit from any of the previous early-flowering varieties. It is an extremely vigorous grower. With good cultivation it will, in the vicinity of Sydney, top a 10-foot trellis, while the Telemly and older American varieties, grown alongside, only attain half the height. The Australians have been working on Yarrawa as the seed-bearing parent of many crosses, using the best of the summer-flowering Spencers, and I believe they have now quite a family of Yarrawas in the best colors, but, so far as can be judged from reports, they are as yet far from being properly fixed, though doubtless in a year or two this will be remedied, and, as I consider Yarrawa the easiest doer of all winter-flowering sweet peas, if these Australian children of Yarrawa embody the characteristics of the parent, they will be well worth having.

Difficulties in Fixing Types.

My experiences and observations have indicated that in all lines of plant breeding the experimenter has to admit many times that nature's own crossing produces a type that is far more easily fixed than when one sets about to try to obtain a given color or type, and to no other flower does this apply more than to sweet peas.

Florists were quick to recognize the superior qualities of the Spencer sweet pea which Burpee first offered in America in 1904, under the name of Countess Spencer, and with the distinct new type came an earnest desire on the part of those interested to produce, if possible, a strain of the proper growth and flowering characteristics for forcing under glass.

The first to endeavor to place a type of winter-flowering Spencer on the market was Anton Zvolanek, of Bound Brook, N. J., and later of Lompoc, Cal., but Mr. Zvolanek's experience, judging from trials I have made, must have been quite similar to those which Morse, Burpee and other growers had when trying to fix crosses or sports of the original or grandiflora types.

As a summer cut flower the Spencer so quickly superseded the grandiflora type that it was only natural for florists to be most eager for a winter-flowering strain producing the same beautifully waved flowers that today appeal to all flower lovers during practically the entire twelve months of the year. To me it seems that this extreme eagerness was solely responsible for some selections being placed on the market in an unfixed condition. Such a demand had been created for the seed of the Spencer type for forcing that many growers were satisfied to pay what might be called fabulous prices for seed which did not represent a fixed type, realizing that the high prices obtained for the waved flowers would permit a severe roguing in the bed or bench, or a careful assorting of blooms after they were cut.

Making Haste Slowly.

The field of sale for seed of forcing sweet peas is limited, and while watching the work of George W. Kerr at Fordhook I always had in mind the fact that it was better to "make haste slowly" and arrange to place on the market only those selections which are of a pleasing color and which came absolutely true to type.

One of the strains of the modern winter-flowering sweet pea which I have had the pleasure of watching develop represents practically six years of hard and patient work on the part of G. W. Kerr, and after repeated trials we were forced to concede that it was better and more sure to start at the bottom and work up slowly in this way than to attempt to fix some of the strains offered to the trade.

As in all other lines of horticultural work, the seedsman is forever on the lookout for something better, and those firms who maintain extensive experimental grounds always have a great number of selections coming on, the majority of which the public will never hear of. This applies to sweet peas as well as to other blooming plants.

To those present who are interested in the development of the modern sweet pea, whether for forcing or growing outdoors, I extend an invitation to visit the trials at Fordhook Farms during the latter part of June next, when we should have a fine display of all types.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

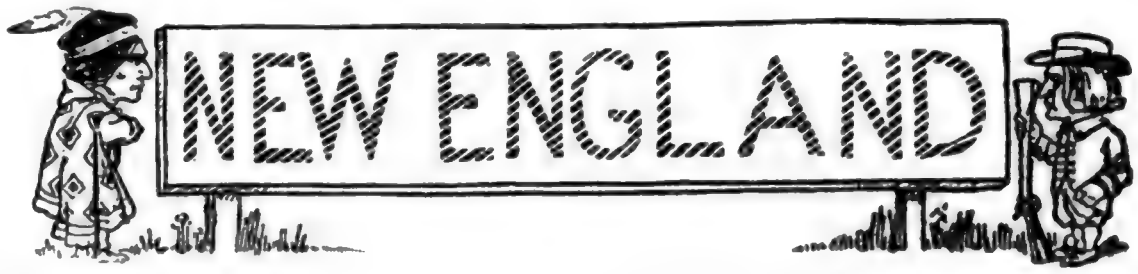
MR. GLOECKNER STANDS PAT.

I read with much interest your criticism of our St. Valentine's day advertisement, which was reproduced in The Review of February 24, and I must say that your point is well taken, but we had the same point in mind before the advertisement was inserted. If the advertisement appeared in the large cities of the country, such as New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, we would need the word "flowers" in the ad, but in a city of 125,000, Albany, I am of the opinion that in this case it was unnecessary. Moreover, we could not put the word in without spoiling the appearance of the entire ad. In this connection I might say that there is no other Danker, Eyres, Travison or Rosary within fifty miles of Albany. There is one other Gloeckner, in the furniture business, but he is the only one that would in any way conflict. I am pleased that you criticised our ad rather than praised it, because in future advertising we can guard against anything of this kind if we think it necessary. William Gloeckner.

HOW HAYS GROWS CANNAS.

Last year I purchased my canna bulbs divided, but this year I bought them in clumps and intend to divide them at the end of March or April 1. When dividing canna clumps, if any of the roots are turning brown on the inside, it is a sure sign that they will rot. It is best to have not less than two eyes to each root, for these will produce stronger plants. Under my top bench I make another bench, using 4-inch boards for the sides and ends. I fill the bench with dry sand and set the cannas in it. I do not water them for several days, and if some of the roots are too wet or damp, the sand will dry them, thus avoiding decay. The cannas have sufficient light under the top bench and do not dry out as they would if exposed to the sun's rays. It is wonderful how rapidly they grow in the sand, making fine stalks and leaves, the latter frequently measuring from twelve to eighteen inches long after a few weeks' growth.

In making the canna bed I first spade and grade the soil, building the bed higher in the center. Then I make holes two feet apart. I place horse manure in the bottom of the holes, then some soil and then the cannas. I try to leave as much stalk above the soil as was above the sand. A good fertilizer is bone meal, using about two handfuls to a plant. It will do no harm if one-third of the soil is clay; sometimes the soil is too rich and makes spindly growths and inferior blooms. The cannas in the bed should have an abundance of water when well started and at the time of blooming.



I have found that Uncle Sam is one of the largest and best red-flowering varieties. In variegated, Queen Charlotte cannot be excelled. The petals are of a rich pomegranate-red, bordered with a broad band of canary yellow. Queen Charlotte is an exceedingly free bloomer. C. E. Hays.

SEEDS IN FLOWER STORES.

There are many hardware stores that handle seeds as a side line and find the annexation to the regular business highly profitable. I have often wondered, therefore, why florists located in country towns that have no regular seed stores have not grasped this opportunity of additional profits. Surely the florist can give better and more satisfactory service in this respect than the hardware dealer. Next to the seedsman, the florist undoubtedly is the best man for the business. The objection that the florist would require an extra man is easily disposed of; if the hardware dealer can afford an extra man for the seed department, the florist can.

I have charge of a seed department in a hardware store, and it is a big paying business, too. I am a seedsman and eight years ago I saw an opportunity in the town in which I live. I went to a "most progressive" florist and laid my proposition before him. I wanted to sell seeds in his store. He, however, could not see things my way at all. Now there are two flower stores in town and my seed and poultry department. The "most progressive" florist quit business long ago. I would rather have opened my seed business in connection with the flower store, because seeds surely go better with flowers and plants than with nails and paint. Being a seedsman, I like to see growing things about me rather than hardware.

Every florist doing business in a town in which there is no regular seed store should think this over. If there is a hardware store in town that has a seed department the florist need not fear competition, for seeds in a hardware store, without a seedsman in charge, are no competition whatever. In one of the finest hardware stores in Lancaster there is a seed department, but I know that any man or woman with some consideration for his or her garden would not buy seeds in that store if there was a flower store in town with a properly handled seed department. There are two other hardware stores that handle seeds, each evidently doing enough business to make it worth while. What couldn't a wide-awake florist do! And such conditions exist in many good towns that have no stores exclusively devoted to seeds. S. Mann.

New Haven, Conn.—The store of John N. Champion recently was entered by burglars, who emptied the till of its $15.

West Medway, Mass.—A recent fire destroyed the boiler house and part of the greenhouses of A. L. Smith. Much damage was done to stock.

Woburn, Mass.—A greenhouse 50x300 feet is being erected by Anderson Bros. This firm specializes in sweet peas, chrysanthemums and cucumbers.

Pittsfield, Mass.—The distinctive green and white interior of the new F. I. Drake & Co. store was designed by the McCray Refrigerator Co., of Kendallville, Ind.

Westerly, R. I.—When George L. Stillman mailed his 17,000 dahlia catalogues he included a boom circular issued by the Westerly board of trade, with each of the books. A customer in New Jersey, who received one of the town boosters, wrote to Mr. Stillman as follows: "I gave your town boom circular to our mayor, and he said it was just the thing we wanted for our own town."

Worcester, Mass.—Sydney Winter has leased the Sunnyside Greenhouse.

Norwood, Mass.—The Norwood Floral Co. store, Washington and Day streets, was damaged by fire February 6.

Amherst, Mass.—A. F. Johnson is building an addition of thirty-five feet to his house devoted to bedding plants.

Taunton, Mass.—Messrs. Sandland and Pitcher are the proprietors of the Pinehurst Greenhouses, at 132 Tremont street.

Milford, Mass.—H. W. Austin has awarded a contract for a greenhouse 40x200 to the King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y.

New Haven, Conn.—Crossed wires are thought to have been the cause of the fire that damaged the John Champion flower store to the extent of several thousand dollars, January 25.

Woonsocket, R. I.—Alonzo M. Vose, who trades as Vose the Florist, recently put a new Studebaker delivery car on the street and finds it of much advantage, especially when the going is heavy or when long hauls are to be made.

OBITUARY

Albert Roper.

Albert Roper was attacked in his greenhouse at Tewksbury, Mass., March 1, and beaten to death. There were evidences of a terrific struggle. The identity of his assailant has not yet been established, but the police are holding one of Mr. Roper's sons. The news created a great sensation in trade circles in Massachusetts. On every hand expressions of sympathy and deep regret are heard at the untimely passing of one of our ablest growers and most skillful carnation hybridists.

Mr. Roper was born in England fifty-five years ago and came to America in 1880. He first worked for John Jones, Madison, N. J., later going to John N. May's, Summit, N. J. For a time he managed a commercial plant in Albany, N. Y. Later he went to Tewksbury, Mass., as grower for M. A. Patten; from there he went to Shepard Gardens, Lowell, Mass. He started in business at Tewksbury twenty years ago and has always specialized in carnations.

Fair Maid and other novelties were raised here. Alice Coombs, the winner of quite a number of gold and silver medals, originated here, as did Grace, Commonwealth and other varieties not yet in commerce, but all of merit. A cerise-pink seedling, which was to have been introduced next season, is a wonder and will easily put all existing varieties of that shade in the background. Other novelties were coming along, and the writer spent several hours with Mr. Roper the day before his death examining and commenting on these.

The deceased was a most unassuming man. He was ever ready to impart information regarding his favorite flower. He seemed to have an intuition for desirable crosses and a surprisingly large number of his crosses were valuable ones. The quality of his flowers was well known and he always secured a fancy price in Boston, where his produce was sold at the Flower Exchange. Mr. Roper was a member of the American Carnation Society and a regular attendant at its conventions. He was at the St. Louis convention and later visited Richmond, Indianapolis, Chicago and other carnation centers. He was a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, and a regular attendant and exhibitor on carnation nights. He leaves a widow, five sons and a daughter. Three sons are in the business and it is hoped they can successfully carry on their father's establishment, on which he had labored so hard. Funeral services were held in Tewksbury March 5, and, at the wish of the family, were private. There were many beautiful floral tributes from the wholesale flower markets, Gardeners' and Florists' Club, retailers and many others, testifying the esteem in which he was held. The bearers were Peter Fisher, of Ellis; William Nicholson, W. R. Nicholson and S. J. Goddard, of Framingham; Lewis Smith and Louis E. Small, of Tewksbury.

W. N. Craig.

In the news of the death of Albert Roper, and the manner in which it came about, we have suffered a shock the like of which we have not felt for many a day. Genial, unassuming Albert Roper, we can hardly realize that we are not to see him again at our conventions. We cannot recall a meeting in recent years that he has not attended and he surely will be missed. Truly, the carnation has lost an ardent advocate and the American Carnation Society a loyal member and a stanch supporter. May his soul rest in peace.

A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

Fred. W. Bruenig.

Mrs. J. A. Pettigrew.

Mrs. J. A. Pettigrew, widow of J. A. Pettigrew, for many years park superintendent of Boston, died February 26 at the home of one of her daughters, in Brooklyn, N. Y., after a short illness from pneumonia, and was interred in that city February 28. All her family, Dr. R. R. Pettigrew, of Youngstown, O., Mrs. Geo. T. Sisson, Mrs. G. W. Hinckley and Mrs. R. W. Curtis, were present before her death. Mr. Curtis is assistant professor of landscape architecture at Cornell University and had just moved for a three months' stay at Jamaica Plain, Mass., a few days before the death of Mrs. Pettigrew.

WANTS BLOOMS AT CHRISTMAS.

When should the seed of Primula malacoides, Schizanthus Wisetonensis, Freesia Purity and F. refracta alba be sown to have plants in bloom for next Christmas? C. W. P.—Can.

Seeds of Primula malacoides should not be sown earlier than from June 15 to July 1. This primula is a rapid grower and will become of unwieldy size if started earlier than the date named. You can have plants in as large as 8-inch pots or as small as 5-inch pots from sowings made at the time mentioned. It is well to state, however, that while you can have a few flowers of P. malacoides for Christmas, it is not possible to have presentable plants at so early a date. This variety will not tolerate a warm house. A temperature of 45 degrees at night is ample and in such a temperature it is at its best from January 25 to March 15.

Schizanthus Wisetonensis is another plant needing cool treatment all the time. For Christmas flowering sow the seed August 1. This is not a good Christmas subject. From February 1 to April 15 it is to be seen at its best.

Probably you mean bulbs and not seeds of the two freesias named. Plant the bulbs in 8-inch or 10-inch pans as soon as received in July. Keep in a coldframe until September, then place on a shelf in a house kept at 55 degrees at night to flower for Christmas. You will not flower all, but a fair proportion should be on time. C. W.

Humboldt, Ia.—Charles E. Louwerse has moved to Cedar Rapids, where he has hung out his shingle as a landscape gardener. Mr. Louwerse has purchased forty acres of land, part of which will be planted to roses in the spring.

Fowler, Colo.—Miss Josephine Bigelow, who has been associated with Mrs. M. Coleman in the business of Coleman & Bigelow, has purchased her partner's interest and is doing business under the name of Fairview Greenhouses.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

A TEXTILE trades authority states that the ribbon market has advanced thirty to forty per cent from the low point of last year.

GROWERS who can supply rooted cuttings of Pink Delight carnation should tell the trade about it through The Review; there are plenty of buyers.

AMERICAN BEAUTY is dropping out of the cut flower markets one by one. In several important cities the supply of this erstwhile leader has become so small and irregular that prices can no longer be regularly quoted.

NEARLY everything the florist uses, except advertising to the trade, is going up in price. But advertising actually grows less costly year by year because of The Review's success in giving steadily improved service without raising its rates.

CONDITIONS change. In the days of not so long ago a new carnation, or any other novelty, frequently had its largest sale in its introductory year. Now it is quite the usual thing for a novelty to have its largest sale in its second or third year.

FATHERS' DAY IN OKLAHOMA.

Fathers' day has broken out again. This time it was in Oklahoma, and what do you think they chose as father's flower? The violet!

It is reported by Oklahoma florists that the demand for violets on Fathers' day much exceeded the supply, but we never yet have seen anyone who was able to make a serious proposition of a day for father. It always is a joke.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Bonnet & Blake obtained judgment February 14 against the firm of Dusmanes Bros., who have been doing business at 257 Duffield street and 260 De Kalb avenue. The amount of the judgment was $800. Two days after this judgment was obtained, the firm filed a petition in bankruptcy, assets, $8; liabilities, $1,800. The stock in both stores was sold March 2 by the referee.

AGAIN, CAN YOU BEAT IT?

The ease with which a plantsman may dispose of surplus stock through The Review depends not at all on the location of the advertiser—it works as well for the east and the west. Like this:

East—"Please cut out our canna ad; as we are sold out and don't like to return so many checks; isn't it sad to have to part with money just because one can't fill any more orders!"—Fairview Greenhouses, Milton, Pa., February 27, 1916.

Central—I have sold my entire surplus of geraniums through my ad in The Review; your ad columns are sure business getters.—W. T. Johnson, Momence, Ill., February 28, 1916.

Far West—We are much pleased with the results obtained from our plant advertisements in The Review; orders have come in freely and from a wide range of territory.—Germain Seed & Plant Co., Los Angeles, Cal., February 25, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

FORGET IT.

Florists at Shreveport, La., have sent The Review a number of clippings from local newspapers dealing with the subject of the use of flowers at funerals. It appears that someone there has suggested that the sending of flowers to funerals be abandoned and that the money be applied to some purpose close to the interests of those starting the "crusade." That's one way to raise money! And of course flower lovers and those who approve "the graceful custom of sending flowers" have been writing letters to the newspapers. With the inevitable result of prolonging the discussion.

Every little while this opposition to funeral flowers breaks out in some town or other. Almost always the agitation is started by one who wants the money diverted to some other use. If florists and flower lovers rise to the defense of the custom the result is that the discussion becomes quite warm and is considerably prolonged. If the florists and friends of flowers keep nice and quiet the agitation promptly flattens out. The message flowers carry to the bereaved is too eloquent for any agitation against it to make any headway unopposed. Forget it.

WHAT D'YE MEAN, EXPERT?

The federal experts are in trouble in Iowa. The seedsmen of the state and the experts do not agree on the proper time for planting grass seeds. This was taken from a Des Moines, Ia., newspaper:

"Plant your lawn right now."—United States Department of Agriculture.

"Don't do anything of the kind. There's nothing to be gained in Des Moines by it."—Local seed dealers.

While neither front nor back yard shows any signs of thawing, and there are ashes on the lawnmower in the cellar, along comes the United States Department of Agriculture and says it is time to seed a lawn.

No, it does not mean that you shovel off the lawn, put in the grass seed and then shovel the ice back on again. Not at all. Just put it on the ice.

"It is too early for seed sowing in Iowa," said the seedsman in the Iowa Seed Store yesterday. "For best results I would not advise sowing of grass seed for several weeks."

At Minneapolis, Winona and Rochester, Minn., the seedsmen, nurserymen and florists unanimously disagree with the flower seed specialists of the government over a bulletin urging the public to start flowering plants at once. "They are nearly thirty days too early with their advice," declared T. C. Rogers, secretary of the Minnesota Florists' Association. Perhaps the bulletin was mailed by mistake. There is much excitement at Washington these days."

UNCLE SAM NOT SATISFIED.

The government is not satisfied that the duty on tulip bulbs should be 50 cents per thousand as ordered in the decision of the Court of Customs Appeals handed down January 28 and published in full in The Review for February 3. The action of this court is final, except that sometimes when the Treasury Department is not satisfied as to the correctness of a decision it simply ignores the action of the court until other cases can be brought up and a reversal of judgment secured. This is being done in the tulip case. The order of the Treasury Department, instructing collectors to continue assessing duty at $1 per thousand, will be found on page 66 of this issue.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

A few days of nipping cold weather had a most salutary effect on the Chicago market, producing a change of conditions quite unlike those existing a week ago. An appreciable shortening of supply in staple items and a regeneration of demand, both shipping and local, has again caused a stiffening in prices and a more generally satisfactory state of affairs. Some of the shipping demand is probably attributable to the Mardi Gras.

Beauties alone seem to constitute an exception to the general rule of change. They remain equally short in supply and weak in demand. Other roses are moving well, and, regardless of variety, are proving good property, although prices were low last week. Russell is the leader now.

Really first-class carnations are de-

Fancy Spencer Sweet Peas

YOU CAN PUSH Sweet Peas for corsage and other work with the assurance we shall be able to keep you supplied from this time on. We have all colors in quantity, long, medium, short, and the prices are reasonable. Use them in quantity; they will sell splendidly.

Easter Lilies, $8.00 to $10.00

Our Giganteum Lilies are home-grown, from the best bulbs money will buy; cut so you can keep them several days if necessary. Better arrange for shipments of a certain number per week.

Emperor Jonquils

Emperor is the best Jonquil on the market today. We have a large supply and offer them at prices no higher than you may be asked for inferior varieties. Also plenty of Daffs and Tulips.

Carnations

The quality of our Carnations is extremely good and the supply is the largest of the season to date—we can fill all orders.

Freesia

You will like our Freesia, especially the Rainbow Freesia, offered in a dozen bright colors. Try a shipment at $3.00 per 100; you'll be back for more.

The Newer Roses

You can order of us all the Roses you need—after an unprecedented winter shortage we can again fill all orders at moderate prices. On fancy long Roses we are specially strong on Russell, Killarney Brilliant, Ward, Ophelia, Killarney and White Killarney.

Beauties

As good as the market affords; a large supply.

Violets

A very large supply; prices extremely reasonable.

FANCY FERNS

We pride ourselves on the quality of our hardy cut ferns. If your supply is not entirely satisfactory, try ours.

cidedly short of the demand. Enchantress, of all the varieties, is available in quantity. Splits still form a disagreeably large proportion of the receipts. However, the wholesalers are experiencing little difficulty in disposing of their carnations, but the buyer must be up betimes and on the job if he wishes to secure good stock for his customers.

Bulbous stock is erratic in supply, one day plentiful and the next day short. Taking it by and large, though, there is always enough available to satisfy the demand. Paper Whites are almost a memory. Callas are reveling in a season of unwonted popularity. Easter lilies pursue the even tenor of their way, undisturbed by the change about them, and finding their place on the unusually large number of funeral orders. Violets are sufficiently numerous to meet the demand, to say the least; the average price last week was the lowest of the season. The sweet pea situation is much easier, as there is a large supply of excellent stock on the market. Calendula remains short. Snapdragon is arriving in quantity and moves readily. Cattleyas are short enough to be much sought. Valley growers, following their usual "safety first" policy, have their product well on the short side of the market this week.

Greens, in harmony with the general market, are moving in a highly satisfactory manner.

Various Notes.

The interest of C. L. Sherer in the wholesale cut flower house of the John Kruchten Co. has been sold to Nicholas Kruchten, Jr., who will succeed him as secretary. Mr. Sherer will hereafter be identified with the firm of Kyle & Foerster.

Prepare for War When Peace is Here

Now is the time to shop around. Don't do your shopping while the holiday rush is on.

If you have bought from us, you know. If you have not, now is the time to try us. True, stock is a bit less plentiful, but we are still well supplied.

A trial order now, just a small one, will put us both in the position where we will know what to do when the holiday rush is with us, and stock is scarce and costly, and time is valuable.

A house that has stood for over thirty years is worth trying.

At a meeting of the Retail Florists' Co., in the offices of Payne Jennings & Co., 123 West Madison street, the evening of March 6, the following directors were elected: George Walthers, George Stollery, A. Vanderpoel, C. Frauenfelder and Joseph Michal. After a report had been made by those who have held office the last year, a vote was taken and it was decided to reëlect the same officers for another year. "A representative gathering," was the term used by Payne Jennings, the secretary, who also says that everyone is well pleased with the showing made in the last twelve months. Haeger, who has been acting in the capacity of manager, was read and accepted. Meetings will be held at regular intervals in the future, the dates to be announced later.

The scarcity of good tulips is commented on by John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., who says he never has seen a year in which they were so much sought at this season.

At Park Ridge Otto Starnitchy, who is not a large grower but a painstaking one, is having excellent success with carnations this season. His White Perfection are unusually good.

The sales force of the J. A. Budlong house has been increased by the addition of Henry Weis, formerly with the Poehlmann Bros. Co.

While there are many local growers who are cutting good Russell, none has better stock than the extra long-stemmed flowers in Emil Buettner's crop. Mr. Buettner has revised his ideas about this variety.

The telephone service of the A. L. Randall Co. has been increased to eleven trunk lines. The switchboard has thirty house lines. Henry Neighbour, chief accountant, is feeling like himself again, after a stay in hospital for a minor operation and a period of convalescence. R. G. Parker again is a member of the sales force. Eric Johnson is back from West Baden.

A. T. Pyfer comments that few growers are having better success this year than are Kirscht Bros., at Morton Grove. They specialize on carnations, Enchantress, White Enchantress, White Wonder and Victory.

Among those who will attend the National Flower Show in Philadelphia three weeks hence will be W. J. Keimel, Paul Klingsporn, Emil Buettner and W. N. Rudd.

The idea of the firm is to get every member of the office and sales force thoroughly acquainted with the smallest detail in material, construction and heating. Mr. McKee plans to make these talks or lectures a part of the weekly program, believing that a salesman should know the why and wherefore as well as the how much.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Owing to the bright, warm weather, the supply of stock in general is increasing and there is a sufficiency of most kinds to take care of the demand, which is not extra heavy at this time. Roses are coming in more plentifully and their quality is good. Russells seem to be the only variety that is scarce, and the shorter stock especially is not sufficient to fill all orders. Carnations are in fine shape and are not so plentiful. They realized better prices last week than during several previous weeks.

There is an abundance of bulbous stock on the market, which is being disposed of at fair prices. The warm weather is bringing in sweet peas and violets in large quantities, and the surplus is not moving as readily as one would like to see. The quality is fine, but the extremely large supply is keeping the price down below normal. Valley still is somewhat scarce, but it is coming in better than it has for some time. Greens are not plentiful and the shortage of adiantum and Sprengeri is especially felt. The sale of pot plants is extra good and this end of the business is doing well.

Various Notes.

Alfred Schiller, who has been ill for some time following a serious intestinal operation, is about again, though extremely weak. It will be some time before he can attend to business as usual, but he has every reason to be thankful that he is already convalescing.

William R. Schroeder and C. C. Pollworth, who went to Madison, Wis., representing the Milwaukee Florists' Club, had a conference with the state fair board, making arrangements for the display at the annual state fair. They report that they were successful in their mission and the club is planning a banner exhibit at the fair.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club, Thursday, March 2, Mr. Cranefield, of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, spoke at some length, and, before the meeting closed, the Milwaukee Florists' Club joined the state society in a body. This affiliation should redound to the benefit of both organizations. The club gave a dance at the West Side Turner hall Wednesday, March 1. C. C. Pollworth unfortunately broke his arm March 1. In going to his automobile, his foot slipped and he fell on his arm. It is rather a coincidence that this accident should happen at this time, for H. V. Hunkel broke his arm at his automobile February 22. Two wholesale florists with broken arms at the same time, and both connected with automobiles, makes the—shall I say?—unfortunate people who do not own machines think that their lot is not so bad after all.

Milwaukee last week handled one of the biggest bazaars in the history of the city, for the benefit of the German war sufferers. A. Kellner had the decorations and had fourteen men on the job for some time to complete the work. Milwaukee florists and those from the surrounding towns donated liberally to the flower booth. A mock police force was inaugurated and brought much added revenue. William R. Schroeder, of the Schroeder Floral Co., was made judge and fined all those brought before him by the policewomen, for they had girl "cops." N. Zweifel was chief of police and saw to it that few escaped the police dragnet. The bazaar was a huge success and the florists played no minor part in making it so. H. J. S. complaint. The abnormal cold of February ate into the coal supply unexpectedly, but the end of extremely cold weather is in sight.

American Beauties are short in supply and few are long in quality. As high as $75 per hundred was paid last week for first-class flowers. Hadley is retaining its splendid record and so are Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Prima Donna. The other novelties are holding fairly well. Of the older varieties, the prices for the long-stemmed are lower. For the short-stemmed there has been nothing offered under $2 per hundred.

Only the novelties in carnations have sold above $2 per hundred. The best hundred of these could be purchased at any time for $3. Large shipments of carnations are anticipated for the week and present quotations are likely to be maintained. Orchids are steady at last week's figures, which are more satisfactory to the growers than during February. Gardenias have not been in surplus at any time and the prices maintain their regular winter average. Valley has been strong, some extra stock bringing as high as $4 per hundred. Lilies must be perfect to secure $10 per hundred. Most of the arrivals sell from $8 down to $5. Violets have been stronger, dependent upon quality. Better values are likely during March and until after Easter. The street merchants easily absorb the overflow, which has not been excessive at any time this year.

The Spencer sweet peas are superb and the market takes care of them easily. Callas are lower and abundant. Freesia, too, is unlimited, and most of it is excellent, especially Purity. Daffodils are abundant and the prices are steady. It will be several weeks before the south begins its shipments. Of tulips there is no end; this week there will be a flood of them. Only the best are in favor. Daisies, forget-me-nots, pansies, stocks, primula, bouvardia and wallflowers, all these harbingers of spring, are here.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will take place Monday evening, March 13, and will be known as rose night. There will be novelty exhibits, refreshments and some special features by the essay committee, and full particulars as to New York day at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, March 28, which Chairman Miller is booming in anticipation of an attendance of 1,000. The annual dinner of the club will take place during the local flower show.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. postponed its opening sale from Tuesday, March 7, to March 14, at which date the big auction rooms will be in readiness for the season.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were like those of the week previous. There did not seem to be any decrease in the glut, and what was scarce before is scarce now. Beauties were in great demand last week and few were to be had. There have not been enough Beauties in the Buffalo market during the last two weeks to convince anyone that there were any at all. Other roses are in ample supply, although no one color appears to be too plentiful. There was no decrease in the carnation supply. The blooms of inferior quality certainly were overabundant.

Bulbous stock continues to move nicely. Jonquils and daffodils hold their own, although they seem to predominate in their class. Paper Whites are on the wane, while poeticus narcissi are becoming more of a feature. Single white and yellow tulips continue along the same channel. Couronne d'Or is in great demand and selling at a good price. Easter lilies advance one week and recede the next, not, however, making much difference in price. Callas are not arriving so heavily. Some excellent peas now are finding their way into the market and are enjoying a great sale. Many of the inferior grades, however, are overlooked. Cattleyas and valley remain decidedly scarce. Miscellaneous stock, such as daisies, myosotis, mignonette and calendulas, was in great demand and scarce about three weeks ago, but now it is abundant and little in demand. Greens move with the rest of the market. Asparagus is again in good shape.

Various Notes.

Robert Scott visited David Scott, at Corfu, last week.

While visiting the greenhouses of A. A. Erckert, on Bird avenue, I saw a splendid bench of Easter lilies. The snapdragons and cyclamens are in first class condition. The men are proud of the results of their work.

After totaling up everything, Theodore Frank finds that there is a fair increase in business over that of the corresponding period of last year.

On my visit to the South park conservatories, I found a decided change for the better. Mr. Elbert, the manager, has devoted a house to exhibitions. He expects to print pamphlets to inform the public when certain features will be at their best. All of the houses have been numbered, and a classified directory is at the entrance.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The pre-Lenten season has closed, leaving the market meagerly supplied with flowers. There has been no especial rush. A few large affairs, some smaller ones, and the general run of business have consumed the stock coming into the city, at good prices. Lilac and valley have been quite scarce. Sweet peas were more plentiful, the orchid variety monopolizing the business at good figures. Cattleyas are firmer; the winter variety is nearly over and the spring sort has gradually taken its place. Daffodils are passing from the Golden Spur, or early single, sort to Emperor, now fine, and a few Victoria, also of high quality. Carnations have been in short supply. Oddly enough, the finest really command more than the select; $4 per hundred appears to be about the limit in price now. Cornflower is arriving in moderate quantity; it meets a good demand. There is no other marked feature outside of roses, of which white are less plentiful and more eagerly sought than pink, commanding a better average price on all grades. Red is scarce. Beauties are particularly difficult to obtain. Easter lilies and callas have been used in large quantities. The 100 days of the season, covering the time from Thanksgiving to Ash Wednesday, have been very satisfactory, considering the terrible war conditions in Europe, with their effect on this country. Good judges believe that there will be an active market for flowers during Lent as long as the present wintry weather prevails.

The National Flower Show.

There are a number of interesting announcements regarding the coming show. One of these is that Joseph E. Widener has sent his check for $500 to pay for 5,000 school tickets, to be used in admitting all the members of the Garden Club in our public schools. Another is that William Graham has arranged to come to this city from Chicago one week before the opening of the show, to take personal charge of the decorations and to act as floor manager during the show. He will work as personal representative of John P. Habermehl, chairman of the committee of decorations. Two more retail florists, Miss Nora Ohl, of Ardmore, and J. J. Connelly, of Rosemont, have entered the retail classes, making ten entries in all. There are a dozen entries so far in the floral art gallery for retail florists, with more in prospect. The opening hour has been set for 2 p. m., March 25. Mayor Thomas B. Smith has promised that four electric signs, one at each entrance, will be hung at the City hall, bearing these words: "Visit the Flower Show." The

A Decoration of Today.

The flower shop of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, in the Bellevue-Stratford, was a brilliantly lit scene of activity. There was that tense air of absorption that denotes a press of work that must be finished on time. Despite that fact, John P. Habermehl was as quiet and as cordial in his welcome as though there was nothing on his mind. No, he was not too busy; he would act as escort himself to the ballroom upstairs. A short trip through wide corridors, up in the elevator, then a short walk past private dining rooms, where snowy cloths covered with plate and silver and flowers were receiving final touches, to the handsome ballroom beyond. Edward N. Habermehl stood in the center, critically surveying the results of two days' hard work for himself and a large corps of assistants. The effect was beautiful. Rather more elaborate than usual at the second assembly, the great closing ball of the great social season; elaborate with a definite purpose. The floor was intended exclusively for dancing and promenading between the dances. The decorations were intended not only for beautiful backgrounds but also to give the impression of distance. That is, to convey the idea that the handsome palms and araucarias extended far away, as in a tropical garden. This was done by means of plants and vines in the balconies so arranged as to form a dense yet graceful stretch of green that extended from the floor to a considerable height, receding as it rose. The flowers used were most effective. It was not so much what they were as how well they were brought out. Pink lilies graced the columns. Pink carnations, Mrs. C. W. Ward, hung from above. Pink azaleas occupied a vantage point in front of the music. The crowning feature was the fountain of real water, with its peach blossoms that came and went and changed in glowing colors. A self-feeding fountain that required two motors, one for the water, the other for the lights.

F. W. ROCHELLE & SONS, Chester, N. J.

Then John P. Habermehl led the way from the ballroom to the clover room. The way was over a rustic bridge so cunningly contrived that an involuntary glance over the side was needed to make sure there was no brook beneath. The path over the bridge led to the garden beyond, a dream of delight. The vine-clad arbors, the blooming, giant azaleas, the great bed of tulips around the fountain, the soft grass mat walks—all were perfect. The paths led in and out among beds of flowers to rustic seats half concealed by foliage—"For holding hands," Mr. Habermehl gaily remarked. The whole formed a decoration, in beauty, conception and execution, in every detail, surpassing anything ever seen in this city.

The Club's Sweet Pea Night.

A large and extremely enthusiastic meeting of the Florists' Club was held at Horticultural hall on the evening of March 7. National Flower Show affairs were discussed and Howard M. Earl delivered his talk on the sweet pea. It was sweet pea night and a wonderful exhibition of orchid-flowering varieties was staged.

The Gude Bros. Co., of Washington, D. C., exhibited eighty-one orchid peas. A. Harvey & Son, of Brandywine Summit, Pa.; Walter Scarlett, Yeatman & Way, both of Kennett Square, Pa., and others staged vases of fine peas. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., of Pittsburgh, sent Rose Antoine Rivoire and the Gude Bros. Co. also showed Mock, Radiance and Red Radiance.

Various Notes.

R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., did not receive a notification that he was expected to speak before the Philadelphia Florists' Club, on the newer carnations, Tuesday evening, February 1.

Walter Davis closed his wholesale florists' store at 1713 Ranstead street Tuesday, February 29. Mr. Davis, who is suffering from the effects of an injury to his head, received some time ago when struck by a wildly driven motor, is in the hospital for treatment. While the injury did not seem serious at the time, the pain resulting from it has been persistently annoying.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. is handling the consignments and business of Walter Davis. There are shipments of exceptionally fine lilac and Yarrawa sweet peas.

Fred J. Michell, Sr., accompanied by Mrs. Michell and Miss Michell, left March 1 for a short sojourn in Bermuda. This is Mr. Michell's first real holiday in many years of hard work. His friends, one and all, wish him a delightful time.

The M. Rice Co. is perfecting plans for its 3-square move to 1220 Spring Garden street, next summer. The company is pleased that the director of work plans turning Spring Garden street, from Twelfth to Broad, into a modern boulevard.

William Swayne, of Kennett Square, during the closing days of the season sent some superb apple blossoms and yellow and white snapdragons to William J. Baker.

Jacob Duetscher, that genial commoner, says that March 4 was a red-letter day for the P. W. F. E.

George S. Hampton, the happy bridegroom of the supply world, is hard at work getting out the Joseph G. Neidinger Co. orders.

READING PA.

Since the first of the year the meetings of the Reading Florists' Association have been held at the homes of various members—a new departure that has met with considerable success. The meeting of March 2 was held at the residence of Frederick Frank. After the routine business had been disposed of, Layton Butts gave an account of the members' recent visit to the Lancaster growers. This proved so interesting and enjoyable that it was decided to have similar outings from time to time, one to Allentown being planned for April 1. The offer by the National Association of Gardeners to supply essays for reading at meetings having been accepted at a previous meeting, a

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is heavy, with funeral work easily in the lead. Roses have been coming in more plentifully and their quality is good. There is a scarcity of yellow at times, but as a rule the colors even up about right. Beauties have been scarce and the demand for them has been light. Carnations are in heavy crop and some cut prices were in evidence last week, but most of them have brought a fair price until this time. Bulbous stock is abundant and cuts a big figure on the market. It is, however, cleaned up nicely. Sweet peas are plentiful and there have been cuts in prices. The quality has been extra good. Valley has been scarce in this market, with the demand heavy at times. Lilies are more plentiful and the demand is fair.

Various Notes.

Stephens & Son report business at Greenlawn as being heavy, with a continual round of funeral work.

T. J. Ludwig has had a run on carnations and sweet peas to good advantage.

The Livingston Seed Co. has everything in order for the spring rush, which is not far distant. The store has had special sales on carnations and bulbous stock.

The Columbus Floral Co. is cutting rather lightly of roses and carnations, but has a good line of blooming plants moving nicely.

Louis Elsass, of Chillicothe, was a visitor here last week. He is planning to erect a store and conservatory at Chillicothe, on the main street. J. M.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The cold, cloudy days last week had a marked effect on the production of flowers, and there was a scarcity in many lines. It was found impossible to fill all orders for single violets and the double violets from the north were received in bad shape. Business is good and the retailers are using a majority of the flowers received. American Beauties are more plentiful, although not in sufficient quantity to meet all demands. White roses have been scarce. Sweet peas are more plentiful and the price has dropped as low as $7.50 per thousand in large quantities. The supply of carnations has slackened, but the price remains at $4 to $6 per hundred. Quantities of white lilac are being offered in the stores and, with purple lilac and forsythia, find a good sale. Jonquils have improved in quality. Some fine rambler roses are being offered. Orchids are scarce but are in light demand. Gardenias still are in short supply.

Last week was noted for the number of dinners, teas, receptions and other social events calling for flowers. Many of these were elaborate and the florists are well pleased with results. The shipping orders from out-of-town points were heavy and one concern furnished 450 old-fashioned bouquets for use in a Virginia city.

Various Notes.

William F. Gude has been elected exalted ruler of the Washington lodge, No. 15, B. P. O. E.

George C. Shaffer is planning to organize a bowling team to attend the Philadelphia flower show to compete with the florists' teams from other cities. The Florists' Club of Washington has a fine line-up, consisting of Mr. Shaffer, as captain; George H. Cooke, Robert F. McLennan, Samuel Simmons, William H. Earnest, George C. Dalgleish and Edward Niedomanski.

Harry B. Lewis, chairman of the transportation committee, is planning some novel stunts to entertain the members of the Florists' Club of Washingington, D. C., who, with their families and friends, have notified him that they will make the trip to the Philadelphia National Flower Show. He has been informed that a large number of Baltimoreans will board the special train when it reaches their city and make the trip with those from Washington.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is fair. The supply is large enough for all present needs; the demand is just ordinary. Shipping business, however, is good. The receipts of roses are sufficient for requirements and include some fine blooms. The carnation supply remains unchanged. Easter lilies, callas and rubrums are plentiful and of excellent quality. Sweet peas, too, are plentiful. The bulbous offerings include fine Dutch hyacinths, tulips, both double and single, jonquils, daffodils and freesias. Valley may be had in large quantities and is excellent. Among the other stock offered are orchids, mignonette, forget-me-nots, marguerites and snapdragon.

The Market.

Business in Pittsburgh has been much better than the weather, for we have been having most of the winter's snow during the last two weeks, and at the time of writing a little more is being added. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, but is moving nicely, the demand being about equal to the supply. Beauties, however, show no signs of increase in supply. Tulips and daffodils, with violets, sell, but they are not bringing the price they should and the growers probably will complain at their reports. All other stock is doing well. All of the retailers seem to be quite busy, the close of the social season usually bringing a number of weddings and functions that mean good orders for decorations. There have been good funeral orders, too.

Various Notes.

The new hotel, William Penn, which was opened this week, brought some good orders for cut flowers. There is a large greenhouse on the roof, in which the management expects to keep a supply of plants for decorative purposes. E. F. James will have charge of the greenhouse.

Albert F. Vick, formerly manager of the Buffalo Cut Flower Co., now is one of the force of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. He will bring his family to this city.

Will Weaver, formerly a grower for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., but now with the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., has been visiting friends in this city. Clarke.

SAGINAW, MICH.

The Market.

Business in general is unusually good, the volume of business at times far exceeding the supply, but spring flowers are a wonderful help and now are at hand in a large variety of kinds and colors. The orchid-flowering sweet peas sell at fancy prices and are in big demand. Easter lilies are about the only scarce item at the present time.

Various Notes.

Charles Frueh & Sons report an unusually heavy demand for funeral pieces and business much improved over that of 1915.

Grohman, the Florist, says he is sending seed of his new bedding begonia, Grohmanii, in every direction.

The Roethke Floral Co. was extremely busy last week with funeral work and wedding decorations. "Carnations are plentiful, yes, by the thousand, but most of them split," says Carl L. Roethke.

The annual banquet and meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will be held Tuesday, March 14, at Teutonia hall. A large attendance is expected, for the ladies have been invited.

J. B. Goetz Sons have again a most wonderful crop of orchid sweet peas. Rose Queen is a special feature and does especially well with them.

Visitors last week were A. Miller, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, and S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia. Gee.

will be a busy one. Dollar day for Grand Rapids proved to be a busy one for most merchants, but, though some of the florists advertised, it did not seem to increase sales in the flower stores much. MOONFLOWERS IN HAWAII.

I am enclosing two seeds which I think are seeds of the moonflower. The vine is a rapid grower, but has no blooms to amount to anything. I have seen only one bloom, which was a large white one. Please tell me the name of this, and how to treat it so that it will produce flowers. T. A. H.—H. I.

The seeds are those of the moonflower, botanically known as Ipomœa grandiflora alba. The culture of this plant should be comparatively easy in so favored a latitude as you have in the Hawaiian islands. It delights in a rich soil and a sunny location. Given these conditions and something suitable to cling to, it should flower with freedom, opening its large white flowers in the evenings and on dull days. C. W.

Hagerstown, Md.—Henry A. Bester & Sons will rebuild the greenhouses recently damaged by fire.

Wichita, Kan.—Elwood Kline has returned to Wichita after an absence of several years. He now is employed by W. H. Culp & Co.

The Market.

The arrival of Lent finds the flower market in a good condition. There have been poor days as well as good days of late. We continue to have frequent snow storms and they cripple the retail trade more or less. Everything considered, there is little cause for grumbling. Roses continue to clean up nicely, with a somewhat lower tendency in prices. Beauties remain scarce, but they are not missed while other varieties are abundant. White roses still sell poorly, but colored hybrid teas, such as Russell, Hadley, Francis Scott Key, Ophelia and Sunburst, sell well. Ward now is coming in of much better quality and it proves a good seller. Some nice Maryland, Stanley, Milady and Taft are among the other sorts seen. Carnations of splendid quality are abundant and there has been little change in prices of late. Violets are plentiful and low in price. The present month will finish the singles.

Snapdragons are arriving more freely. Pink shades clean up more quickly than whites and yellows. Of bulbous flowers there is a heavy supply, with lower prices, but the clean-up is satisfactory. The finest Spencer peas of the season now are obtainable. These bring as high as $2 per hundred. The grandifloras run as low as 35 cents to 50 cents per hundred. Cornflowers continue popular. Yellow marguerites are more abundant, but they sell well. Callas and Easter lilies remain about the same. Good specimen lilies are coming in. Valley sells at $2 to $4 per hundred. Gardenias are lower in price and more abundant. In addition to Cattleya Trianæ, C. Schroederæ now is available. It is not a popular variety, however. Dendrobiums, cypripediums, phalænopsis and cœlogynes are other orchids offered. Both Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri sell remarkably well, especially the last named.

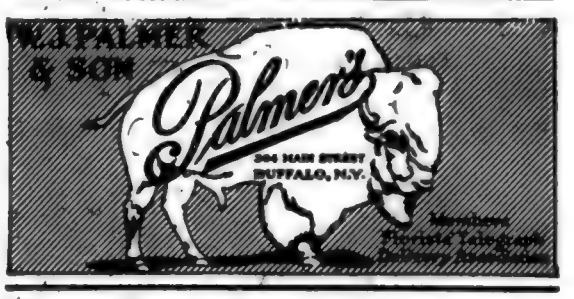
In pot plants the sale of pans of bulbous stock is heavy. More pans of Darwin tulips than ever before are seen. Roses, lilacs, schizanthus, acacias, cinerarias, French hydrangeas, genistas and various deciduous flowering shrubs are offered. Quite a few shamrocks are to be seen, but the sales of these have declined, compared with those of a few years ago.

Various Notes.

N. E. Boyle has 10,500 giganteum lilies starting to show buds. He is cutting an excellent crop of Ophelia, White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Ward, Hadley and Sunburst roses.



Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Patten, of Tewksbury, left February 26 for a month's stay in Florida. Mr. Patten's health has not been good for some time and it is hoped the trip will materially benefit him.

sending in a fine lot of bachelor's buttons, calendulas and Spencer peas. They were unfortunate enough to have a house of nephrolepis frozen during a recent cold wave.

E. E. Cummings, of Woburn, will finish cutting two houses of Spencer peas at the end of March. His houses of single violets also will be exhausted at that time. He will follow with cucumbers and tomatoes.

W. J. Patterson, of Wollaston, grows quite an assortment of bulbous flowers. At present Narcissus poetaz Elvira and Aspasia are good and prove good sellers.

T. D. Hatfield's lecture at Horticultural hall March 4, on the propagation of plants, with practical demonstrations, was intensely interesting, and it was regrettable that the audience was a small one. Not more than six florists and gardeners were noted in the audience of 100 or thereabouts. Numerous specimens of greenhouse plants, evergreens, deciduous shrubs, ferns, etc., propagated from cuttings, leaves, spores, seeds, grafts, buds, roots, etc., were passed around for the audience to examine, and the lecture was one of the best delivered here of late years.

J. B. McDonald and W. B. Kamp have joined the staff of Wax Bros., on Tremont street. Old-fashioned bouquets are having a big run just now. One window of bulbous stock had a charming spring effect.

The Budlong Rose Co. is getting shipments of superb Francis Scott Key, Maryland, Sunburst, a deep sport of Sunburst, Stanley, Russell, Hadley and Ophelia. This concern also has fine Ward and Milady roses. Gardenias still are good.

Thomas Capers, of Wellesley Hills, has had his most successful season with carnations. His leaders are Alice, Beacon, White Wonder and Benora.

The Westboro Greenhouses, of which Paul F. Brigham is proprietor, in addition to a fine line of carnations, have a splendid cut of snapdragons and Spencer peas.

The tragic death of Albert Roper March 1, which is recorded in this week's obituary column, has been the chief topic of the week here. Mr. Roper attended the Flower Exchange the morning of the day on which he was murdered. The deepest sympathy is felt for the family. The output of the greenhouses is at present being sold by George Marshall.

John W. Foote, of Reading, is cutting a grand crop of Pink Delight, Beacon and White Wonder carnations.

W. T. Walke, of Salem, and Frank Edgar, of Waverley, have been sending in some fine French hydrangeas.

William H. Judd, first assistant to Jackson Dawson, at the Arnold Arboretum, was married March 1 at St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral, of Boston, by Dean Rousmaniere, to Miss Lucy

Smith, of Weston. Mr. Judd is a Kewite and a popular member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club. The young couple have the well wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy married life.

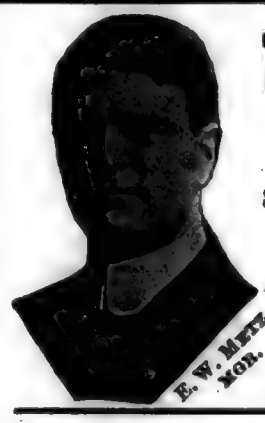
The Newton Rose Conservatories are sending in a nice lot of clivia spikes, which sell well; also good myosotis.

The Boston spring show opens March 17. While the schedule is somewhat restricted compared with former years, in courtesy to the Philadelphia show, there nevertheless will be a fine exhibition. The $50 cup offered by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club for ten cyclamens will attract a strong entry.

Robert Hutcheon, of Stoughton, is sending in a fine lot of Darwin tulips and Empress narcissi.

Richard D. Kimball, of Waban, has a pink snapdragon, bright in color, which is a wonderful seller. Pink snapdragons do not bloom in winter like the white and yellow ones. It is up to someone to create a real winter bloomer of this color.

At the store of Patrick Welch excellent roses, valley, cattleyas, marguerites and other flowers are coming in, and business is said to be excellent.



The Scituate Greenhouses, Scituate, Mass., are sending in a first-class crop of white and yellow snapdragons.

Recent visitors included Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me.; A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn.; J. W. M. Stirling, representing the MacNiff Horticultural Co., New York; Paul Berkowitz, of Philadelphia.

W. H. Judd, of the Arnold Arboretum, will be the lecturer at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club March 21. His subject will be the timely one of "Trees and Shrubs for Spring Planting."

The Market.

March came in like a lion and we hope it will go out like a lamb. Last week we had much snow and wind, which had a bad effect on the retail trade all over the city. In the last few days before Lent, when society works overtime, business should have been good.

The market was well supplied all the week and prices remained up on all extra quality stock, but the demand was not so heavy as it should have been. Roses were plentiful all the week, but the quotations were unchanged and were considered high. Killarneys are in the majority, while the fancy sorts in Russell, Sunburst, Ward and Ophelia were hardly plentiful enough to go around. Beauties, too, are not any too plentiful. The fancy grades of Enchantress, White Wonder, Mrs. Ward and Beacon carnations went up to $4 per hundred as the dark weather cut down the big supply that was expected.

Violets were in heavy supply all the week and did not move as they should, and low prices prevailed. Extra fancy brought 35 cents per hundred. The miscellaneous flowers, jonquils, sweet peas, tulips, freesias, valley, Easter lilies, daisies, snapdragons and mignonette, had their usual good call and prices on these remained stationary in small lots.

Southern jonquils are not taking so well, for home-grown stock is of better quality. In greens, plumosus, smilax, Sprengeri and galax had the call and the market is well supplied with these.

Various Notes.

The W. W. Stertzing range, at 7280 Manchester avenue, was damaged to the extent of $800 by an explosion of dynamite in Maplewood last week. All the glass was blown out and the plants were badly cut by falling glass. Theodore Browne, another florist, at 7016 Manchester avenue, escaped with only a few panes of broken glass and considered himself lucky, as all his neighbors lost heavily. Mr. Stertzing had no insurance to cover this kind of loss.

Edwin Niebling has been appointed administrator of the estate of the late Conrad Bergstermann, by Probate court. The business has been taken over by Oscar Ruff and the name of the business will not be changed. Mr. Niebling is a step son of Mr. Bergstermann, and Mr. Ruff is his son-in-law.

The officers of the Florists' Club held their monthly conference at Secretary Beneke's home March 2 and mapped out a lively program for this week's club meeting. All the officers were present and had a pleasant evening.

The March floral display in the big conservatories at the Missouri Botanical Garden will be composed of 2,000 plants of cinerarias. These plants have become immensely popular with the public. They resemble the single-flowered chrysanthemum, but surpass it in brilliancy.

The County Growers' Association held an interesting meeting March 1 at the Eleven Mile House. While the attendance was fairly good, the big snow storm which started early in the day kept away many of those who promised to come.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., and Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., two popular traveling salesmen of Philadelphia, spent the greater part of last week here calling on the trade.

Thomas Carr, in spite of the big snow storm last week, is preparing his big plant display in Union Market. Mr. Carr has a good trade in his cut flower department, but plants are his big business.

Paddy Patton and Oscar Kuehn, of the Smith Wholesale Floral Co., were on the sick list last week. Oscar Kuehn is president of the St. Louis Camera Society.

W. J. Pilcher's big rose house in Kirkwood is in fine shape and producing a world of excellent blooms. I saw several thousand Russell plants which soon will yield a big crop. In another house there were fine benches of W. R. Hearst and Mrs. W. R. Hearst. One house is awaiting the arrival of Mrs. George Shawyer roses for planting.

At the opening of the new quarters of the Missouri Athletic Club the floral decorations were elaborate, many plants and floral baskets being used. The C. Young & Sons Co. made one of Russell roses costing $100, which was much admired.

Easter coming late this year, the growers are at a loss how to hold back their lilies. Other bulbous stock will be nearly over by that time, especially if warm weather sets in. Violets are sure to be over by that time.

H. Lloyd, of the Shackelford Nursery Co., says with a few warm days they will be cutting thousands of outdoor spring flowers. The snow storm will not harm them. They planted twice as many plants as they had last year.

Our local nurseries, H. J. Weber & Sons Co. and Sanders Nurseries, report that from advance orders already booked, they expect a tremendous spring trade in all kinds of nursery stock.

James Arata, for many years designer for the C. Young & Sons Co., has been confined to his home with illness the last seven weeks. He expects to be at work this week. Walter Young was the designer in his absence.

nick Bova at the head, will open a flower and fruit store this week at Seventh street, near Locust street. This concern was formerly at Sixth and Morgan streets. The new location is a splendid one for a business of this kind.

David Geddis, manager of Vandervoort's floral department, had a force of men at work all night March 4 and all day March 5, decorating for the spring opening of the big department store. Mr. Geddis still is on the sick list, but is improving daily.

A number of suburban florists were seen in the wholesale district last week mingling with the buyers. Among those seen were Adolph Fehr, H. Emunds, J. F. Ammann, W. J. Edwards, Phil Goebel, Jr., P. Schneider, W. J. Pilcher, Stephen Beer, Hugo Gross, Chas. Meyer, S. E. Cerny, W. A. Rowe, Joseph Hauser, John Connon, Ed. Denker, F. W. Ude, Jr., Joseph Deutschmann, C. Hecht and Gus Hartmann.

The first dash out of the box, a Kirkwood correspondent stirred up a hornet's nest in the wholesale district when he stated that other growers soon will follow Hugo Gross in opening a retail store, if the average prices in the local wholesale market do not advance. Exceptions have been taken to this statement, for not in five years have prices on good quality stock been so high as the prices of this season. Inferior stock is sold at low prices for bargain sales. It is only natural, however, that each grower thinks his stock the best. If the growers will grow good quality stock they surely will receive their share of the high prices which have prevailed this season. If prices were any higher than they are the retailers would suffer, and they surely have to be taken into consideration, for the money made by the wholesaler and the grower comes from them.

J. J. B.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business conditions last week were an improvement over those of the week previous. The demand was good and steady, and, while no advance in prices was noted, stock in general was cleaned up closely at the close of business Saturday. The retailers purchased the greater part of all stock—little was left for the street boys. Carnations in white and light colors were not plentiful enough for the demand. Lilies of the Harrisii type sold well, but callas were draggy. In roses, short and mediums sold early, especially such stock as could be used in funeral pieces. Valley has been moving well even at a good figure, and the supply is none too large. Bulbous stock is not moving any too briskly. Cut hyacinths are improving in quality, and tulips are good. Daffodils, both single and double, are plentiful. The freesia supply is diminishing and the price is dropping. Smilax still remains scarce, but other greens are plentiful enough for all demands.

Various Notes.

George S. Kalb, the pottery man, has been confined to his home for nearly a month with an attack of rheumatism. In his absence his sons, William and Louis, are hustling to keep the supply up to the demand, in this, their busy season.

T. Walter Gray is cutting a fine lot of Golden Spur narcissi. These have been grown rather cool and are as fine as any coming into the local market.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, has been busy traveling and lecturing. He recently returned from a meeting of the American Dahlia Society at New York, and March 16 he will lecture before the Lancaster Florists' Club, on "The Bulb Fields of Holland."

The Baltimore Wholesale Florists' Supply Co. has been making rapid strides in its business, which recently was started on Pleasant street. The company has secured a number of new consignors and is well pleased with business.

Lohr & Fritze have given up the horse and wagon and installed a light delivery truck.

M. Thau has been sending in a fine lot of bulbous stock to the Leo Niessen Co. His poeticus narcissi and Murillo tulips are especially good.

At the next club meeting, March 13, the election of officers will be followed by the annual banquet at Hotel Rennert. The following nominations have been made: President, James Hamilton; vice-presidents, William E. McKissick, A. Fiedler, John Rider, Thomas Stevenson; corresponding secretary, N. F. Flitton; financial secretary, George Talbot; treasurer, F. G. Burger; librarian, C. M. Wagner. The meeting will be called to order at 7 p. m. sharp.

N. J. Hayman, of the Hayman Greenhouse Co., Clarksburg, W. Va., was a visitor last week. W. F. E.

President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

TAKING it by and large, the seed season to date is good, but not so good as was expected.

ONION is one of the articles likely any time to be a feast or a famine. Predictions are that it will be the latter next year.

A DIVIDEND of five per cent is expected to be ordered March 14, to creditors of the Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., in bankruptcy.

THE corn in country cribs has suffered severely from the cold weather, its immaturity at harvest being more apparent today than at any previous date. The farmers' awakening is apparent in the mail of the western seed houses, which can nowhere near supply the demand.

THE tenacity with which winter clings to its position in the lap of spring makes the mail-order season slow or erratic. A few mild days result in an increase in the mail, but a return of snow and cold promptly checks the flow of business. On the whole, the mail-order season still is below normal for the date.

THE William Rennie Co., Toronto, is working night and day shifts to overcome the delay incident to the fire of February 20, which, the company states, "caused great loss in bulk vegetable, flower and field root seeds, as well as filled seed packets and cartons." The Dominion seed commissioner, George H. Clark, is passing on all seeds saved from the fire.

HOLLAND bulb travelers assert that there are more of their kind in America today than in any previous season. The explanation is that some of the travelers are persona non grata in Germany or England, where they usually spend a part of their time, and that they have sought the United States as the world's only free hunting ground for the commercial marksman.

EMBARGOES ARE LIFTED.

Thinking that the following may be of interest to your subscribers, I beg to advise that the writer has been engaged in the effort to secure the prompt shipment of seed supplies from the growers, wholesalers and jobbers, to New England points, and the lifting of the embargo placed by the railroads on such transportation. Some of the railroads have no embargoes, but the Pennsylvania and the New York, New Haven & Hartford did have such embargoes. Responding to the necessities of getting the seed supplies into the hands of the farmers in ample time, the Pennsylvania and the New York, New Haven & Hartford have lifted their embargoes by a special order, so

DREER'S Extra Selected SWEET PEAS

We aim to confine our list of Sweet Peas to the very best varieties and only those which can be used by florists for cutting. We have added a number of the choicest new varieties of the Spencer type to our list this season.

Orchid-flowered or Spencer Sweet Peas

This type is distinguished from the grandiflora sorts by the extraordinary size of their flowers and by the standard being crinkled and wavy. They usually bear four blossoms on a stem, and are as easy to grow as the commonest sorts. A fair crop the past season enables us to offer them at prices much lower than ever before.

that all seed supplies can now come forward to New England points. It must be recognized that the railroads are operating under a heavy strain, for reasons that are well known. The willingness of the railroads to recognize the seedsmen's contentions deserves appreciation. Curtis Nye Smith.

DUTY ON TULIPS.

The Treasury Department will not accept the decision of the Court of Customs Appeals, as published in The Review for February 3, making the rate of duty on tulip bulbs 50 cents per thousand. This is the court of last resort in such cases, but collectors of customs have been instructed to continue the assessment of duty on tulip bulbs at the rate of $1 per thousand pending the results of new cases to be passed on by the Board of United States General Appraisers in New York. These instructions are contained in a letter addressed to the collectors of customs, reading as follows:

Treasury Department,
Washington, D. C.

I have to call your attention to the decision of the United States Court of Customs Appeals of January 28, 1916, T. D. 36146, in which certain tulip bulbs, which have been assessed with duty at the rate of $1 per thousand under the provision for "tulips" under paragraph 210 of the Tariff Act of 1913, were held by the court to be dutiable at the rate of 50 cents per thousand under the provision for "all other bulbs" in the same paragraph.

The Assistant Attorney General has advised the Department that another case is being prepared before the Board of United States General Appraisers in which it is expected to introduce further testimony on the question at issue.

Pending the judicial determination of the question you will continue to assess duty on tulip bulbs at the rate of $1 per thousand under paragraph 210 of the Tariff Act of 1913.

Respectfully,
Andrew J. Peters,
Assistant Secretary.

It will, of course, be necessary to carry the new case to the highest court, a ruling of the Board of General Appraisers not being enough to overthrow the decision in question. This indicates that unless some legal means is found by which importers can compel the Treasury Department to be guided by the court's decision, the imports for 1917 will be assessed at the same old rate, as another decision scarcely is to be expected before this year's crop will move. C. L. L. and that never should a warranty exceed the sum paid for the seed.

As a result of action taken by the Wisconsin Canners' Association, a special meeting of the American Seed Trade Association was held in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, March 2, for the purpose of discussing seed growers' contracts and the nonuse of the disclaimer. Considering the fact that the meeting was called practically on the spur of the moment, it was well attended and highly representative. Immediately after notice of the special meeting had been sent out, approximately 100 telegrams and letters were received by the Chicago seed houses from out-of-town members of the trade who were unable to be present, vigorously protesting against the danger of leaving the disclaimer out of growers' contracts. President John M. Lupton, of Mattituck, L. I., called the meeting to order and from 10 o'clock in the morning until after 6 o'clock in the evening exposition, argument and discussion followed one another in rapid succession, the scene shifting to the dining room at noon.

The discussion revolved about the acceptance, first by one seed house and then by another, of the contract form being circulated by members of the Wisconsin Canners' Association for seed peas which are to be grown for them. This form does not contain and, it is feared, will overthrow the well known disclaimer of the American Seed Trade Association. It is argued by the supporters of the disclaimer that should it be dropped from the contracts, the seedsmen's only protection would be that section of the Wisconsin law which provides that "in all actions for damage * * * if no fraud, bad faith, or want of due care is shown on the part of the vendor, the purchaser shall be limited in his recovery to the amount of the purchase price of the seed," and this, they say, would be leaning on a broken reed, as the question of due care is one for a jury to decide and, therefore, one subject to many vicissitudes.

The sentiment of the meeting seemed to be that the association was not in a position to control the acts of its members, and that it had no desire to compel unanimity of action, but should counsel and advise that line of conduct that appeared most conducive to the welfare of its members. This sentiment was finally crystallized in the following resolution:

"The seedsmen present at a conference at the Sherman hotel, Chicago, March 2, 1916, reaffirm and endorse the non-warranty clause known as the American Seed Trade Association Non-Warranty clause, and believe that all sales or agreements of sale, wherever made, should contain said clause.

"In those contracts of sale, or sale of seeds, whenever, for any reason, contrary to the recommendation of the American Seed Trade Association, said non-warranty clause is waived, it is the opinion of said seedsmen that for such waiver, or non-use of said non-warranty clause, the seller should receive an additional purchase price for the seed by way of insurance, and so stated as a term of the sale or agreement of sale, and that the seller should be liable, in any event, for not more than the purchase price of said seed."

BAMBOO CANES

Tall plants ought to be staked. Easter Lilies especially should be supported by a neat green bamboo cane. It prevents injury to the plant and adds to the appearance. A 3½-foot green bamboo cane costs a trifle over half a cent, and adds considerable to the value of a plant tied with it. If you want your plants to have a nice appearance, use green bamboo canes. Immediate deliveries at the following prices:

THE CATALOGUE POSTAGE BILL.

W. F. Therkildson, Philadelphia, representing W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia; E. C. Dungan, representing William Henry Maule, Philadelphia; Superintendent George W. Hess, of the United States Botanic Gardens, and William F. Gude, national representative of the S. A. F., last week held a conference with officials of the Post-office Department on the proposed postal bill, H. R. 11621, which was printed in full in last week's issue of The Review, whereby circulars, catalogues, pamphlets, price lists and other similar printed matter, upon which postage is now paid at the rate of 1 cent for each two ounces, may be sent in bulk to varying addresses, irrespective of individual weights within the limit of four pounds, at the rate of 8 cents per pound or fraction thereof, without regard to zone rates. The visitors left the city with the belief that the postal authorities were favorably inclined towards the passage of a bill by Congress which would make this rate possible. While in the city they called upon several members of Congress to urge prompt action in the matter.

C. L. L.

THE CLOVER CROP.

The area in red clover is less today than it has been and much less than it should be, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In the New England states, for example, the acreage decreased twenty per cent in the decade between 1899 and 1909. In Ohio, one of the important clover states, in 1911 it was little more than half of what it had been in 1897. The area in clover seed in Michigan in 1897 was more than double the area in 1914. During this same period the seed harvest in Illinois fell from 193,509 bushels to 42,409. In short, all the figures available from these and other states point in one direction—to a serious decrease in the area devoted to red clover.

The cause of this decline in clover growing is to be found in the increasing difficulty experienced in getting a stand and in the less satisfactory growth of the crop when a stand is secured.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Harry Chaapel, of Williamsport, Pa., finds the nursery adjunct to his seed business decidedly profitable. Commenting on the scarcity of onion seed, Mr. Chaapel stated that experiments with American-grown seed in Bermuda are proving so satisfactory that California will supersede Teneriffe, Canary islands, as a source of supply.

Beckert's Seed Store, of Allegheny, Pa., reports a good call for seed for early sowing. W. C. Beckert, Sr., is recuperating in South America. Mr. Beckert, Jr., says everything is progressing smoothly.

The I. W. Scott Co., of Pittsburgh, predicts a top-notch business this year, judging by the auspicious opening of the seed season.

roses, herbaceous perennials, bulbs and tubers; thirty-two closely packed pages.

Holm & Olson, Inc., St. Paul, Minn.—"Creating Your Landscape," a 98-page nursery catalogue of unique and artistic style, beautifully illustrated and well printed with brown ink on enameled paper. Several of the pictures, including some finely colored ones, show the transformations produced on home grounds by means of "H. & O. service." Besides the hard-wooded nursery stock, the lists comprise perennials and miscellaneous plants, lawn seed, lawn and garden furniture, tools, etc. An illustrated booklet entitled "Plant Something Worth While" has also been received.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.—March bulletin containing a "grade-count of unsold stock offered to the trade only." Roses, perennials and general nursery stock are offered, including young stock for transplanting.

E. D. Morris, Bridgeport, Ala.—A 12-page catalogue of roses, dahlias, gladioli, cannas and other plants, shrubs and flower seeds.

H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.—A 22-page retail catalogue of the Meader specialty, gladioli; a tasteful, attractive booklet, celebrating the tenth anniversary of the business.

Wm. Toole & Son, Baraboo, Wis.—Wholesale list of perennials, pansy plants and seeds; also a separate 4-page circular on pansy culture, entitled "Pansies and How to Grow Them." A 16-page general catalogue of perennials and miscellaneous plants was received some time ago and was mentioned in The Review of February 17.

Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O.—A neat, 16-page catalogue of tulips, narcissi, daffodils, delphiniums, irises, digitalis, peonies, miscellaneous hardy plants, Berberis Thunbergii and Boston ivy; also a separate 4-page list of gladioli and dahlias.

Wichita, Kan.—C. P. Mueller will open a second store March 15, at 315 East Douglas avenue, in the Palace Theater block. The store has thirty-five feet of window display in the lobby of the theater.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The business of C. W. Crouch Co. has been acquired by A. J. McNutt, who will conduct the establishment under the same name. Mr. McNutt recently was elected president of the Knoxville Florists' Society.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Eugene, Ore.—G. C. Israelson, a florist of Eugene, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

Beaux Arts, Wash.—F. W. Winters, formerly of Spokane, has six acres of land devoted to English holly, in addition to 6,000 feet of glass.

ADIANTUM IN CALIFORNIA.

Kindly let me know how to treat maidenhair ferns in the summer in order to have a good cut of fronds in the winter and good pot plants at Christmas. A. F.—Cal.

In order to have adiantum fronds for cutting next winter in California, it is best to plant out on a bench strong young plants from 3-inch pots during June or July. The bench should contain about five inches of good carnation soil, and the plants should be spaced about twelve inches apart. The plants should be watered well after planting, and then watered somewhat sparingly for a time, until they get into active growth, for too much water early in the season may sour the soil.

Put a light shading on the glass for the summer, but this should be off again by the end of October. Keep a night temperature of 60 degrees, but ventilate both day and night as long as the weather will permit. Similar conditions to those noted above will answer for the pot plants, though they may require more watering to keep them in good condition, and when they are well rooted an occasional watering with weak liquid manure will be beneficial. W. H. T.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Although the supply of flowers has increased at least threefold, the wholesale houses are cleaning up fairly well and the retailers are making the best of the fine supply by keeping their stores attractive. A large proportion of the stock now coming in is of first-rate quality, the cool night insuring its keeping well, and this enables the retailer to buy fairly heavily, make a good show and then use the stock in funeral work, which has kept up remarkably well. As it stands, the grower is getting a fair price for his stock, and both wholesaler and retailer are making a living profit. Despite all the substitutes for American Beauty, there is a certain class of trade that will have this rose and will not take anything in place of it. Consequently, the few growers who are handling it are now reaping a reward not only in the money obtained for the stock but also in the name they get for supplying whatever is needed. It has long been said of one concern in this town that it throws away as much stock as any other concern sells. Whether this is true or not, the big showing and the assurance to customers that they can always get what they want has been one of the concern's greatest advertisements. The much discussed Prima Donna rose is making good here, while its sport, September Morn, is increasing in popularity and will continue to as its fine keeping quality is known. Among the newer carnations, Gorgeous perhaps is the most talked about just now. From my own observations of it, as handled by several growers, I might say that the coloring is wonderful, recalling the beautiful old Winsor, while it has great length of stem but lacks stiffness in the neck. Just how much of this is due to forcing the plants for stock purposes I cannot say, but for beauty it is ace-high.

Respecting other stock in this market there is little to add to last week's remarks. Several new daffodils have appeared, but not in sufficient quantity to affect the market much. Here, as elsewhere, we are looking for a good yellow about as big as Emperor and as early as Golden Spur, but so far it has not shown up. In the green market everything seems plentiful but plumosus, the supply of this being below the demand just now.

Various Notes.

G. W. Smith reports better business at the Seventh street store than at any time since the opening. Mr. Smith is putting in much time at the nursery end and says that this also keeps him on the jump. In the new houses at Covina junction George Watson has some magnificent carnations. The reds are particularly good, as is the rose-pink Gorgeous, of which he is cutting freely.

At the L. A. Floral Co. I noted quite a number of novelties and flowers out of the usual run, such as good irises, callas prepared for long-distance shipments, orchids and others. F. Sperry spends considerable time on the outside now, Paul Miller taking care of the inside end. A splendid shipping trade is being worked up by this house.

C. Lewis still is at his post at the store of Freeman & Lewis, but is looking forward to his trip around the world. As a good American, his world lies between Maine and California, taking in the territory between the Atlantic and Pacific.

O. C. Saakes is making a fine show of bulbous stock.

At Wright's Flower Shop the forced hyacinths and other Dutch stock in pots, azaleas, cyclamens and primulas, make a splendid showing even without the magnificent rose stock, which is well up to the Wright standard. Thomas Wright is not held back by bad roads from making frequent trips to the Bakersfield ranch, where he grows the "gintleman that pays the rint."

Some of the finest rose stock coming to this market now is the long-stemmed Prima Donna from W. Armacost & Co.

The pansy baskets made up by Manager J. Gordon are particularly attractive at Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's. The pretty little cradles, too, which are sent on interesting occasions, are quite a telling novelty.

We are much pleased with the results of our plant advertisements in The Review; orders have come in freely and from a wide range of territory.

The Market.

There is not much that is new in the market. Cooler weather, with showers, has had little effect on the offerings, and most seasonable flowers are abundant. The demand is heavy for funeral and decorative pieces and counter trade is brisk. The year thus far has been distinctly better than last year, notwithstanding the exposition of last year. Shipping demand is strong for roses and asparagus, both of which are far short of requirements, but shipments of smilax, adiantum and Mexican ivy are large, as well as those of violets. The latter, however, were poor so long that outside buyers are not so keenly interested in them, though for the last few weeks they have been fine.

The market still is flooded with daffodils and jonquils, but the main crop will be off in another week. Freesias are less plentiful, and the early narcissi are going off, with poeticus beginning to show up fairly well. Ranunculus and anemones are in fair supply and find a good demand. Offerings of tulips have increased greatly, and the quality is better, though there is not much really first-class stock. Hyacinths are in good supply. Formosa lilies now are plentiful, but the demand is active. The valley situation is unchanged. Good native iris is coming in, but Spanish iris is still to come. Fruit blossoms are popular, a good deal of peach being in at present, and acacia still holds its place. Several native wild flowers are being used with good effect, notably buttercups and poppies, but they are rather scarce. Stocks, forget-me-not, etc., are in better supply. Carnations are cheap again, with plenty of stock. No increase is expected in the cut of roses for several weeks. There are few Beauties, and everything else is high in price, being quickly sold out. Russell, Ward, Shawyer and Sunburst are probably the most popular varieties at present. Orchids have been in heavy demand for large funeral pieces. Phalænopsis is coming in fairly well, but Cattleya Trianæ is about gone, with C. Schroederiana not yet plentiful and C. Mossiæ several weeks off. Many azaleas still are sold, rhododendrons being scarce. Camellias are in fair supply and potted wistaria in full bloom is an attractive novelty. Pansies, etc., for bedding, are in strong demand, and many pansies are used in decorative work. Nursery stock, gladiolus bulbs, dahlia tubers and seeds are moving in good shape.

Various Notes.

Podesta & Baldocchi have added as a decorative feature to their store a handsome garden table of Italian marble, with verd antique top, which makes a handsome setting for some of their vase and basket displays. They have had an exceptionally large orchid business recently, an important item being a large pall of phalænopsis.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., mentions as an indication of the condition of business this winter, that they ordered at the first of the year what they thought was a year's supply of galax leaves, and by the end of January practically the whole stock had been used.

Mr. Traversaro, an old employee of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is expected back at the store in a few days after spending a month in a hospital.

The Fairmont Floral Co. is making some improvements in its window arrangement. Negotiations have been under way with a view to increasing the store frontage, but the matter is not yet settled.

Charles Stappenbeck, of Polk street, is having a rush of business these days. He says it is mostly funeral work, but he manages to keep a store full of customers, at that. He is making some effective tulip and hyacinth displays at present.

Frank Shibeley, of the Shibeley-Mann Co., on Sutter street, near Polk street, reports business better than last year. He says the exposition was no help to business in his neighborhood, and that things have been livelier ever since it closed.

Albert O. Stein reports the busiest season he has ever had, especially in table decorations, having dinner decorations nearly every day. He had an interesting job last week for the Philomath Club's luncheon, taking his motif from the current fashion show. The Palace hotel branch is making a satisfactory business showing. Since the first of the year Mr. Stein has had a handsome delivery car, and now he has bought a touring car, which he expects to put to good use during the quiet season this summer.

F. C. Burns, of San Rafael, is busy shipping dahlia tubers. He has a lot of early seedling dahlias, which, with good luck, he hopes to enter at the flower show in May.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has found its business growing so rapidly that an assistant has been employed for the office. This company now is handling the greater part of the daffodils, etc., in this market, from both the San

AMPELOPSIS VEITCHII

Heavy three-year plants, 3 feet high, 8c each, delivered free for cash.

T. R. HOPKINS, Kirkland, Wash.

Leandro and Santa Cruz districts, and sold about 500,000 daffodils per day last week, some being handled on a commission basis and some bought from the growers.

E. James brought in a few early rambler roses last week.

Joe Proietti is bringing in about 25,000 daffodils a day from the H. Hutton place, near San Leandro, where he bought the crop from five acres, about 500,000 in all.

The preliminary entry list, which is practically complete, for the Marin county flower show in May, is being sent out. Seventy-three entries are provided for, those in the professional class including, in addition to plants and ferns and a large number of miscellaneous entries, a number of prizes for rose, carnation, sweet pea and gladiolus exhibits. Only five entries are provided for florists, a basket of cut orchids, a basket of flowering plants, a basket of cut flowers, a bridal bouquet and a table decoration.

It is announced from Eureka that the retail business of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries has been purchased by Dr. H. F. Perkins, who will continue the store under the name of The Rosary. He has leased a new location in a good district, and will have it handsomely fitted up for his purpose. He expects to secure at San Francisco a full stock of such flowers as are not produced around Eureka, and expects to employ a competent designer. Most of the greenhouses of the C street plant of the nurseries will be moved to the Eden establishment, leaving the house attached to the residence for Mr. Ward's own experiments. Mr. Nyeland, superintendent of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, is giving considerable attention to chrysanthemums.

Joint rates on California nursery and florists' stock to eastern destinations, which mean a reduction of $1.25 per hundred pounds in carloads of 20,000 pounds, were announced a few days ago by the Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and Western Pacific railroads. The rates, it is said, were made largely for the benefit of growers on the line of the Northwestern Pacific, but will benefit growers throughout the state.

An exact duplicate of the exhibit of 100 species of conifers, planted in the lawn before the Lumbermen's building at the exposition, has been presented to the park board of Oakland by W. V. Eberly, manager of the California Nursery at Niles. The trees will be planted in the new Lakeside park on the same plan as at the exposition.

Frank D. Pelicano now has his dahlia tubers ready for shipment, and has already received many inquiries, especially for the prize-winning Minna Burgle, of which he has a large stock.

S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The cut of carnations which were forced out by the warm sunshine reached its maximum last week, causing a sharp decline in the prices realized by the growers. This is discouraging, but is a condition, coming at the end of a long spell of unfavorable weather, over which the growers have but little control.

So far as reported, the February business was less than that of last year. During the first ten days of the month there was but little doing on account of the storms; hence it would not be surprising if the decrease should average twenty per cent. At present the demand for flowers is slightly below normal, causing a surplus, part of which will be wasted. Potted hyacinths of good quality are offered in oversupply.

The cut of roses is normal and no greater than the demand. Excellent violets, locally grown, are plentiful. Easter lilies and callas are offered freely. A few sweet peas are shown. Golden Spur daffodils are nearly gone and the first Sir Watkin have appeared. Nurserymen and the catalogue houses offering nursery stock are rushed with orders.

Various Notes.

Among the downtown florists and their employees a great deal of interest is taken in the hockey contests at the ice hippodrome. One florist has a black eye, the result of a wild drive by one of the players.

On testing the single violets now on the market, it was discovered that they would cover the face of a silver dollar, with an eighth of an inch or more to spare on each petal.

Clarke Bros. are displaying a fine pair of potted white magnolias in full bloom.

Gene Robinson said he lost a few lights of glass during the storm. He brought in his heaviest cut of carnations before the last decline in prices.

A display of several good-sized setpieces at the store of Martin & Forbes Co. elicited an inquiry as to whose funeral they were for. "They are for a cullud pusson," replied Mr. Forbes. He added that there were but few such pieces ordered now, compared with the demand for them a few years ago.

As a result of the action of the Portland Floral Society, several articles prepared by the committee have appeared in the Sunday papers.

William Borsch, of Hillsdale, has been confined to his home with a severe attack of sciatica. His condition is improving. S. W. W.

GARDENERS' ESSAY CONTEST.

Chairman William H. Waite, of the committee on essays and horticultural instruction of the National Association of Gardeners, has appointed Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, Mass.; William Downs, of Chestnut Hill, Mass.; Arthur Smith, of Reading, Pa.; William J. Stewart, of Boston, and J. Harrison Dick, of New York, judges of the gardeners' essay contest. The report of the judges will be made public at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, March 28.

President W. N. Craig offers $25 as a first prize, $15 as a second prize and $10 as a third prize in a new contest for assistant gardeners, on any subject pertaining to horticulture, but limited to 2,500 words. The contest will close November 1 and the winner will be announced at the annual convention of the association in December. The essay committee shortly will issue the rules regulating this contest.

O'Fallon, Ill.—Fred Seibel, 35 years old, is in a serious condition at his home as the result of attempting to take his life with a revolver March 2. Mr. Seibel was married a few months ago. A physician said he had a chance for recovery.

Detroit, Mich.—Albert Pochelon, of the Bemb Floral Co., and Joseph Mueller, of the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., coöperated in the exhibition of orchids given at the Bemb store March 1 and 2. Lectures on "Orchids and How to Grow Them" were given. Printed invitations were mailed to patrons of the companies.

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE Ibota form of privet is enjoying a steady advance in popular favor.

THE stock holdings John Watson had in Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., have been purchased by Charles H. Perkins and George C. Perkins.

THE business of the Bloomington Phoenix Nursery, established in 1852, is being continued by a new corporation formed in 1915, with W. E. Rossney president and A. H. Rossney secretary and treasurer. The spring catalogue consists of thirty-two pages and cover.

IN those sections of the country in which the planting season has opened, the accumulation of orders and the daily flow of new business is keeping the trade on the jump. If the experience is repeated in the sections where the season is later, there will be no cause for complaint this year.

AT St. Paul, Holm & Olson are building up a landscape and nursery business that covers a half dozen states. E. W. Reid says the effort always is to supply something a little better than the average nurseryman does, rather than to cut under on price. The printed matter of the landscape department is of the highest class.

OILED CLOTH IN COLDFRAMES.

Is there a substitute for glass that could be used in coldframes after May 1 to grow cauliflower? Could stocky plants be grown under any kind of oiled cloth as under glass?

C. A. P.—Me.

Oiled cloth is often used as a protection for vegetable plants in coldframes in lieu of glass. After May 1 it should be possible to remove the cloths entirely during the day and on warm nights, covering the plants on cold nights. Of course you cannot have as stocky plants from frames protected with oiled cloth as with glass, but it is a cheap, easily applied and satisfactory covering that will keep out frost. In your latitude it should be perfectly safe to fully expose cauliflower after May 10. C. W.

Pentstemon cyananthus

HARDY PENTSTEMONS

The Hardy Pentstemons are nearly unknown to American growers of plants; yet they are very desirable acquisitions to the hardy border, both for garden decoration and for cut flowers.

They are hardy and persistent and vary greatly in color, size and shape, and period of bloom.

It is too bad that our horticulturists have for so long passed up this fine American genus of flowering plants.

We offer the following collection in the belief that every one of them will prove successful in the average American garden.

Pentstemon cyananthus (illustrated). The sky-blue pentstemon. Flowers brilliant blue in a close, compact spike, like a coerulean delphinium. Always in bloom for Decoration day. Very hardy, easily grown, and a beautiful flower in the garden.

P. Palmeri (Palmer's Pentstemon). (See illustration in last number of Florists' Review.) Flowers largest of the genus, sweetly perfumed, having the exquisite odor of the almond blossom.

P. Eatoni (Eaton's Pentstemon). Clear scarlet. Makes a fine contrast when planted with cyananthus.

P. Parryi (Parry's Pentstemon). Clear pink flowers, delicate and sweet.

P. Utahensis (Utah's Pentstemon). Much like cyananthus, but larger in growth of plant and flower and color varies greatly. Extremely hardy.

P. azureus (variety). Violet-heliotrope flowers in great masses. Fine.

Any of the above, separately or in assortment, $1.50 per doz., $6.00 per 100, prepaid in the United States.

We gather and disseminate from the Rocky Mountains and the Great Basin hardy perennial flowering plants, trees, shrubs, ferns, bulbs, cactuses and seeds. If interested in any plant of this region, write us.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The Market.

Excellent weather conditions favored the wholesale and retail markets last week. The temperatures were moderate and the sunshine aided in selling as well as in growing. Bulbous stock is in heavy supply and the retailers are making good use of the surplus stock in their show windows. Carnations are somewhat scarce and the demand is good. Roses are more plentiful, but are cleaned up daily. Violets are plentiful, but valley is scarce and hard to get. There is a limited demand for orchids. In pot plants, Murillo tulips and Von Sion daffodils are in best demand.

Various Notes.

A visit to the P. R. Quinlan greenhouses in the Onondaga valley showed everything in fine shape. Roses are fine and the men are cutting some excellent blooms from them. The house of sweet peas is a fine sight. These are long-stemmed and have large flowers. The carnations are in full crop and Easter plants are looking well and are timed just right for Easter.

W. E. Doyle had an attractive window for the automobile show. The decoration consisted of a miniature automobile made of Murillo tulips, Enchantress carnations and single daffodils. Business here has been fine.

Miles Henckle was busy with funeral work last week. He had a large blanket and several large floral pieces.

Chester Harris is having a good sale of daffodils in pots, also of cut flowers. He has a Saturday special sale on daffodils each week.

Werner Bultmann reports business good, with plenty of funeral work. Mr. Bultmann is well pleased with the February business.

Much sympathy is felt for Charles Bourne in the loss of his mother-in-law, who lived with him for many years. Many floral tokens of respect were sent by the florists and also by the Syracuse Florists' Club. H. F. B.

Our Specialty is Grafted Roses

WE grow many other young plants for the shipping trade, but "Grafted Roses" is the specialty. A visit to Cromwell will prove to you that we can back up our offers with stock that is of the highest quality. We are growing 700,000 this season, for we know that this year we will see much replanting that was not done last year. A good part of this quantity is already sold, and orders have been very gratifying.

If you are going to plant or replant, get in touch with us now. Give us a chance to give you the best plants that can be grown. Our prices are graded to suit the quantity, and the quality graded to be above competition. Write us now, or, better still, come and see what we have to offer.

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

Business seems to be on the increase, while some of the stock continues to be scarce. Of roses there are just about enough to go around and the quality is fair. Carnations are becoming more plentiful and are improving in quality, though there are still a good many splits. Bulbous stock, valley and violets are selling well. Of these there is an adequate supply, while lilies are still scarce. Society night at the automobile show created an extra demand for corsage bouquets, and the cement show last week called for a good number of flowers, palms and ferns. Funeral work has been unusually heavy.

Various Notes.

Accompanied by Harry Clark, foreman of Wilcox's two huge 60-foot houses at Lake Manawa, and by his assistant, Phil Foster, the writer took a trip to see Paul Floth's place and we were well repaid for our trouble. He has everything in tiptop shape. One thing that especially impressed us was the neatness of the place; there was not a dead leaf or anything of the kind to be seen anywhere. Mr. Floth believes in keeping plenty of help and his stock certainly shows it. His lilies for Easter are a sight worth traveling miles to see, even if there are only 3,000 of them. About 15,000 geraniums, ready for 4-inch pots, were especially fine. He aims to have about 35,000 altogether. Not an inch of available space is wasted; it is all utilized all the time for something. His equipment for a start in the business twenty-five years ago consisted of a wife and five children and $25, but he refused to tell us what he is worth today.

Lewis Henderson had the decorations for the automobile and cement shows, held here last week and the week before. He reports a heavy run on funeral work and on corsages.

Charles Faulkner is cutting some extra fine valley and violets, for which he finds a ready sale. He says the last season was the most prosperous that they have ever experienced.

THE BEST RED CARNATION

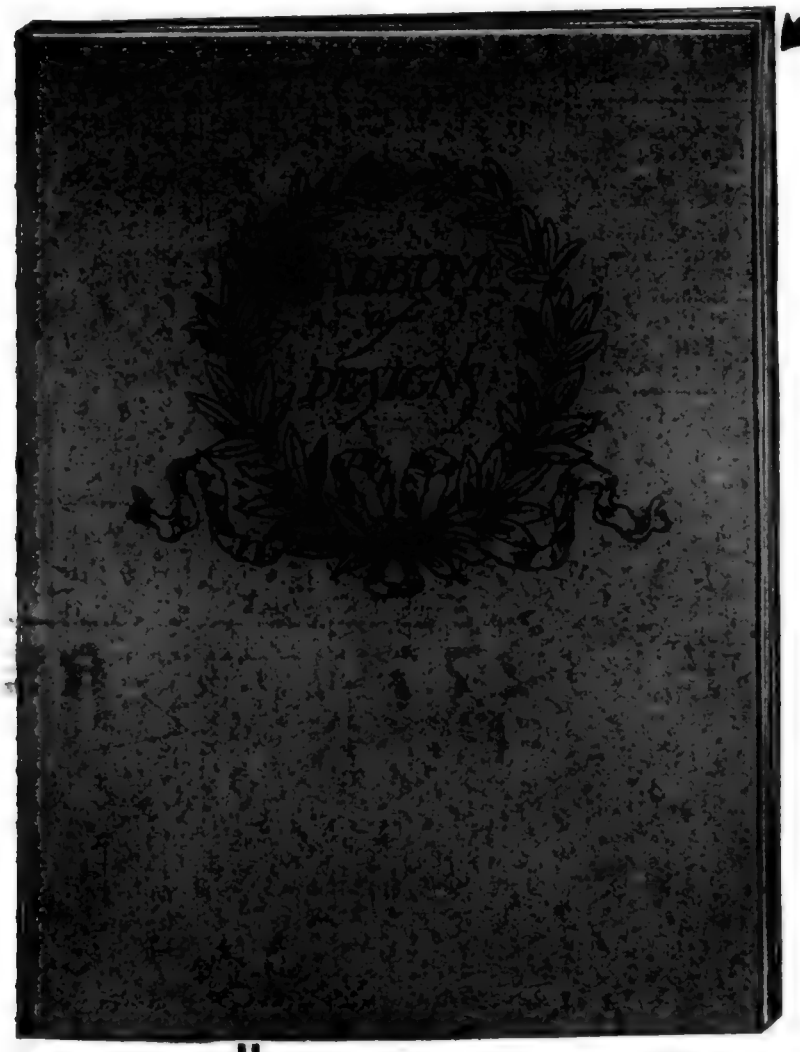
RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT!

WINNER of the Silver Medal of the American Carnation Society, at Buffalo, 1915; also WINNER of the SAME MEDAL in the same class at ST. LOUIS, 1916; also of Silver Medal of S. A. F. and O. H., at St. Louis, 1916. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is 3½ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.



We have 1500 plants growing in our greenhouses at Hollywood, Cal., devoted exclusively to rooted cuttings.

Orders for Pacific Coast States will please be sent to our Western Branch, care of E. B. Washburn, 252 South Orange Grove Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.

THE THIRD EDITION

OF THE

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

A POOR CROP OF LETTUCE.

My Grand Rapids lettuce does not grow as fast as it should and there are patches that do not grow at all. It is quite uneven and its color is too yellowish. The lower leaves have a growth on them which looks like mold. Can you tell me the cause and a remedy?

A. H.—Ill.

The uneven growth of the plants is no doubt due to some portions of your soil being richer than others. Lettuce requires a rich soil, with plenty of stable manure well incorporated with it. The moldiness may be due to careless watering and insufficient ventilation. A night temperature of 46 to 50 degrees suits this lettuce. I think poverty in parts of the beds is the cause of the sickly looking plants. C. W.

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Growing Plants from Seed.

Before we touch the question of seed sowing, it is absolutely necessary to take into consideration how you are going to grow the plants; that is, what means you have of caring for the young plants, not only from the standpoint of numbers, but also with reference to the temperature that you can maintain. It is useless to grow a quantity of tomato seedlings quite early and then find that you cannot give them the necessary heat and space, with the result that there is a heavy loss of money. The seedlings want to be grown on without a check, to give the best results. Therefore look ahead, before you sow the seed.

The best soil in which to grow the seedlings is a free, loamy soil, with sufficient coarse sand well incorporated, to make it thoroughly porous. Mix it well and pan it through a ¼-inch sieve. Keep the coarse soil and place it on the bottom of the boxes to act as drainage. Mix about one 7-inch pot of bone meal with each barrowful of soil.

Sowing Seed in Flats.

Use boxes about three inches deep for the seed. Any ordinary plant flats will do well for this purpose. On the drainage place two inches of the fine compost and press it until it is firm and level, always using the soil in such condition that it will not become plastic or cake.

Many seedlings are spoiled directly or indirectly by sowing too thickly; so have the seeds sown thinly and evenly. This should be the aim of all growers. To do this, take a round stick half an inch thick and long enough to reach the width of the box; press this stick on the soil and you will have a furrow half an inch deep across the box. If you will make these furrows half an inch apart and sow the seed, you will get a box of seedlings in nice, straight rows, one inch apart. Cover the seeds to a depth of one-fourth inch with clean, fine soil and sand, half and half, well mixed.

Press the whole firmly and then water the seed boxes with a water can, using a fine sprinkler on the can. The object is to firm the soil around the seeds and supply them with sufficient moisture to insure germination. Cover the boxes with glass, which should be reversed, to get rid of the condensed moisture. All this is a little extra trouble, but it spells success.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Because of the cloudy weather last week, carnations, sweet peas and other varieties of flowers did not come on as rapidly as usual, and, consequently, there was a slight scarcity. Roses have been scarce and prices have averaged well, though they now are lower than those of a month ago. Bulbous stock is arriving in large quantities and is reasonable in price. Freesias are abundant and of good quality. Violets are more plentiful than they were and somewhat lower in price. Valley is of good quality and the price keeps up well. Forget-me-not and mignonette of excellent quality now are plentiful.

Various Notes.

H. B. McKnight, grower for August Begerow, is going to try out several new varieties of mums this year. He expects to grow Yellow Princess carnations, which are seldom seen in this section of the country.

Davies & Davis are starting 20,000 mum cuttings. Their geranium cuttings for the spring trade are coming along nicely.

Henry Hornecker, of East Orange, reports a large demand for bird bowls for flowers. Azaleas are called for in large numbers, he states.

Prof. Lippman, of the New Jersey State Experimental Station, at New Brunswick, will give a lecture at the March meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club, at Krueger's Auditorium, March 16. His subject will be "Fertilizers."

Christopher Penek reports that business has been good, especially in funeral pieces.

Jacob H. Harvey, who recently went to Atlantic City for his health, has returned to his home here. While somewhat improved in health, he has not yet been able to resume work at the store.

C. E. Maillard states that during the eleven years he has been in business he has not had as much funeral work during the months of January and February as during these months of 1916.

R. G. Freythe, of Montclair, has opened a store at 15 Greenwood avenue, East Orange. R. B. M.

ST. PAUL.

The Market.

Many social functions were rushed through before Lent and kept the retailers busy with decorations last week. Stock of all kinds is plentiful and the quality is of the best. Blooming plants are coming in and sell readily. A trip to the various greenhouses discloses a fine lot of plant stock. The florists that handle a seed and sundry line are busy. The landscape business, from all indications, will far exceed that of previous years.

Various Notes.

Holm & Olson have a number of large landscape contracts under way in Iowa and Nebraska, and as soon as the weather permits they will work north.

H. Krinke & Son are sending into the market a fine lot of Primula obconica and cinerarias.

The Acorn Greenhouses are cutting good roses. Ophelia and Russell are the favored varieties and will be grown more heavily next season.

At the H. Puvogel greenhouses the plant stock is in fine shape. A lot of bedding stock looks fine and Mr. Puvogel is wholesaling some of it, which is unusual, for he generally has only sufficient for his own needs. His bulbous stock is in fine condition.

The West Side Floral Co. reports business far in excess of that of last year. The carnations are now in heavy crop, as well as a fine lot of sweet peas and bulbous stock.

George Bates, of Holm & Olson, is again in the hospital, this time at St. Paul's. He was operated on for appendicitis February 29, and his condition is favorable.

J. H. Hoffman, who for the last few years has conducted his own store, now is with L. L. May & Co.

The annual ball of the St. Paul Florists' Club was held at Royal Arcanum hall, Tuesday evening, March 7. Miss Florence Holm, William T. Cowperthwaite and J. Berglund furnished musical selections during the stops in the dancing. The committee in charge consisted of N. C. Hansen, E. P. Holm, A. Lauritsen and Carl Topel. C. R. F.

Hartford City, Ind.—Because the cash register was locked when an effort was made to rifle its contents by a burglar at the Hartford City Floral Co. store, the thief carried the register away with him.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The Market.

Retail trade is good and the market is well supplied with stock. Bulbous stock is abundant and in good demand. Tulips are selling rapidly this year. One florist sold more than 10,000 flowers for the month of February, at the price of $1 per dozen. Lilacs and azaleas also are selling well.

Various Notes.

About 250 attended the annual reunion of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, Thursday night, March 2. The guests assembled in the lower hall shortly after 6 o'clock and, led by the officers of the society and their wives, marched to the banquet hall, where dinner was served. Following the banquet, Arthur E. Hartshorn, president, introduced Mayor George M. Wright, who gave a brief address on "Preparedness" as it concerns Worcester and its executives. He extended an invitation to all guests to visit his farm at Charlton. The decoration of the banquet table consisted of tulips, hyacinths, narcissi and small ferns. The assembly hall was trimmed with palms and bay trees, by Lange, the Florist. Dancing followed the speeches and concluded one of the most enjoyable evenings that the society has had.

H. F. A. Lange's windows are given special attention by the trimmer. Mr. Lange's supply of stock is good and much of it was disposed of in decorations for several weddings and four large banquets last month. He has received a new line of tango bowls.

Two Worcester florists are taking a crack at the advertising game. One of them has a card in the street cars, a new one every month, featuring cut flowers. The other has a permanent street car card. A novelty was the short moving picture. One of the advertisers had an "animated ad" that showed a messenger boy delivering a box of flowers to a young lady, who signed the book and smiled. The wording was: "Smith, the florist, will deliver flowers in any city in the United States or Canada on short notice. Flowers by telegraph." H. L.

Escanaba, Mich.—The Mead Drug Co., doing a large business here, has established a well-equipped cut flower department.

NEPHROLEPIS JOHN WANAMAKER
Introduced August, 1915

The Wanamaker Boston has more than made good. Everyone who has received early shipments from us has been greatly pleased with the variety and repeat orders have been coming in daily. We have a very large stock. A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis. The following prices are for immediate and spring delivery:

2¼-inch pots, strong plants, $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.
4-inch pots, strong plants, $25.00 per 100; $225.00 per 1000.
6-inch pots, strong plants, $50.00 per 100.
8-inch pots, strong plants, $12.00 and $15.00 per doz.
Large specimens, $2.50, $3.00 and $4.00 each.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business was good last week, in spite of the changeable weather. There was a good demand for spring flowers and roses for wedding and table decorations. Potted plants sold well, especially cyclamens, cinerarias, primroses, rambler roses and baby azaleas. Cut flowers are none too plentiful and prices in general are holding up well. Calla lilies are showing up well on the market and sell readily for funeral work. Beauties are scarce. Other roses are more plentiful than at the last writing. Shawyer, Killarney, Richmond and Ward are in the largest supply. Russell and Ophelia are of good quality, but not nearly so plentiful. Violets are plentiful and meet with a fine demand. Cattleyas are abundant, especially the Trianæ. Antirrhinums are increasing in supply, but sweet peas are rather scarce.

The florists all report business for the month of February as being exceptionally good, considering the shortness of the month. Funeral work was the largest item. On account of the Lenten season, the next two months are not expected to be so good, but everyone will be busy preparing for the Easter business.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. had a special sale of carnations March 4. This company has received a large shipment of fancy baskets, flower holders and vases from New York.

A new geranium will be disseminated by W. J. & M. S. Vesey. It is known as Mrs. Vesey. It is of a beautiful magenta color. A large shipment of the young plants was sent to Houston, Tex., last week, to be planted and developed for the convention of the Society of American Florists. This geranium will be put on the market next year.

There will be no meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association this month, but President W. J. Vesey, Jr., says all the florists are making extra efforts to have the April meeting at Terre Haute an unusually good one. This meeting being the last one before Easter, Easter flowers, plants and novelties will be discussed.

S. S. Pennock, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor in the city last week. R. F.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24¼ inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

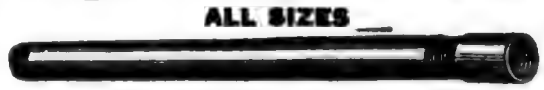
Greenhouse Heating.

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

BETTER BUY A BOILER.

I am planning to build a greenhouse, 16x40, four feet high to the eaves and ten feet to the ridge. Two feet of the walls will be wood and two feet glass. I intend to use low benches, if practicable. I would need one bench for carnations, one for geraniums and one for miscellaneous plants. Do you think the low benches would be satisfactory, or would you suggest a different arrangement? I wish to heat the house with hot water. Do you think I could do this with a large water-jacket stove, or would I have to get a small boiler? In either case, how should I pipe the house? C. D. J.—Ind.

It is generally considered preferable to use benches rather than beds for carnations, and, for convenience in caring for them, it would be well to have the surface of the soil about two feet from the floor.



There are several makes of small hot water heaters, of comparatively low cost, which will be more durable and will give better satisfaction than a water-jacket stove. Use for the heating system one 2½-inch overhead flow pipe and eight 2-inch returns, placing three returns under each of the side benches and two under the middle bench. Give the flow pipe a slight fall and connect the highest point of the system with the expansion tank.

REARRANGING THE PIPING.

I wish to increase the capacity of my heating system. The greenhouse is 20x125, with a height of eleven feet to the ridge and four feet to the gutter. There is no glass in the sides. The ends are protected by the office and a shed. The north side for seventy-five feet of its length is protected by another house. The south side is exposed. On the south posts at present there are three flows and returns of 1½-inch pipe; at the north side there are two flows and returns. I am planning to run one or two flows overhead and use all the present pipes for returns. If necessary, I can put in two more lengths of pipe at the south side and four more at the north side. The tank is near the boiler, up against the ridge. The house is to be used for growing lilies. S. H. G.—Pa.

As we understand it, the present piping consists of six 1½-inch pipes on the south wall and four pipes on the north wall. We would advise the use of three 2½-inch overhead flow pipes, of which we would place one upon each plate and the other two feet below the ridge. For returns we would use the four pipes now on the north wall, and four of those on the south wall, connecting each of these coils with one of the flow pipes to be placed on the plates. Two of the pipes now on the south wall and two additional pipes should be placed under the middle bench, or in the walks if solid beds are used, and connected with the flow

CAST IRON BOILERS WASTE FUEL

I had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I only had 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have another boiler than a Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

pipe below the ridge. This will give three 2½-inch flow pipes and three return coils, each containing four 1½-inch pipes.

PRESENT PIPING A FAILURE.

We have two greenhouses, as shown in the enclosed diagram. We are growing lettuce and wish to maintain a temperature of 45 degrees at night in zero weather. The houses are 130 feet long and run east and west. There is glass in both ends and in the south side. The houses are new and well built, but unsheltered. We do not seem to be able to get results with the present piping. How much more pipe should be required? We are growing the lettuce on the ground. Do you not think this crop does much better on benches? B. G.—Okla.

The accompanying sketch shows two houses, each seventeen feet wide, with a common gutter between them and the wall open underneath. From the description we are not sure whether the present piping consists of one 2-inch flow and four returns for each house, or whether the radiation described answers for the two houses. At any rate, it would appear that an attempt is being made to supply four 2-inch returns, 130 feet long, with a 2-inch flow pipe. Including the radiating surface of the flow pipe, there will be over 400 square feet of radiation to be supplied by a 2-inch flow, which is twice as much as it can handle to advantage.

Even though there are four 2-inch returns and one flow in each house, this would not be sufficient to maintain 45 degrees in zero weather. We suggest the use of one 2½-inch flow and two 2-inch returns on each side of each house, making four flows and eight returns for the two houses. Except in unusually severe weather, it would answer if but one flow and three returns are placed upon the posts under the gutter to answer for the inside portion of both houses, but for zero weather two flows and four returns will save in labor and fuel.

While it is generally possible to force the lettuce a little more when raised benches with heating pipes underneath are used, solid beds are used in most lettuce houses.

F. Sammet, of Upper Sandusky, has some fine dwarf boxwood trees and other specimens for outdoor planting.

Johnson's Greenhouses, of Carey, O., have been busy with funeral work lately. Business is much better than it has been for some time.

Stelzig's Floral Store, of Bellefontaine, O., is noted for fine window displays. The window for Washington's birthday anniversary had in it a good-sized cherry tree, with cherries, and a figure of the truthful George in the act of chopping down that celebrated tree.

A more modern range of glass than that of Stuhldreher Bros., of Mansfield, O., would be hard to find. Here are grown over 75,000 geraniums and large quantities of other plants for the wholesale trade, in addition to the cut flowers grown.

The Dow Floral Co., of Mansfield, was exceedingly busy turning out funeral work.

F. E. Blake, of Marion, O., had a fine window of azaleas.

As bird-house builders the two youngest sons of J. G. Botkin, of Urbana, O., are hard to beat. Both have won prizes in this line in a local contest.

Straley's Flower Store has been opened on Philadelphia street, Indiana, Pa.

Koerbel Bros., of Jeannette, Pa., had a window of Pandanus Veitchii last week.

W. W. Bortz, of Greensburg, Pa., reports business much heavier than in previous years.

William Cromack, of Irwin, Pa., has a house of fine primroses. Some unusually large flowers are in evidence.

Edward Leizmann, of Latrobe, Pa., is just recovering from blood poisoning contracted in his left leg some months ago. It was thought that the leg would have to be amputated, but he is now beyond the danger zone. W. T. U.

Champaign, Ill.—Stenberg Hillstrom is the new assistant to C. F. Swayger, chief gardener of I. C. R. R. Mr. Hillstrom will have charge of the Champaign greenhouses and help look after landscape work.

DIRT BANDS

Very soon every grower will be making free use of dirt bands for the growing of all plants. Certainly, no florist can afford to pass them by. They are time and money savers, producing better plants at less cost and with less labor. It simply is a question of getting the best band.

Our new READY-USE dirt band tells its own story. Send a postal for free samples and see how it does it. It comes to you ready to set the plant in, which means saving of very valuable time required to fold the ordinary strips of paper commonly offered for bands.

We make plain bands, too, from high-grade, hard finish stock. Samples will be sent. Compare them with others and put them to any test. It is not how cheap, but how good, is our motto.

PRICES OF PLAIN SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1000	5000	10,000	20,000	50,000	100,000
2-in.....	$0.70	$2.20	$ 4.10	$ 7.70	$17.25	$30.00
2½-in....	.80	3.00	5.25	10.00	26.00	48.00
3-in.....	.90	3.75	7.25	13.70	31.80	56.00
3½-in....	1.00	4.40	8.30	16.10	39.00	75.00
4-in.....	1.10	5.40	10.20	21.00	48.00	92.00

Plain bands require folding, but our simplified instructions make it easy.

PRICE OF READY-USE SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1,000	5,000	10,000	50,000	100,000
2x2x2-in....	$1.00	$4.00	$ 7.50	$35.00	$60.00

3x3x2-in.	1.25	6.00	10.00	47.50	92.00

Our ready-use bands are complete and ready to set up. The lap is glued down and each band opens up square. No folding required, nor time lost in setting them up.

Send a postal for free samples of our bands and decide for yourself. All orders positively cash. State whether express or freight shipment. We guarantee satisfaction.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were stronger. Though a large quantity of stock was received, the demand exceeded the supply. An unusual lot of funeral work saved the market from an oversupply. The receipts of bulbous stock have about doubled and the roses in all colors have increased considerably. Carnations also are more plentiful, but are not of such good quality; a large proportion of them are splits. Sweet peas and lilies are overabundant.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll & Co. have been working overtime all the week, getting out orders. This firm has one steady consignment of 3,000 carnations and 1,500 roses daily, and reports that last week not one flower was put away in the icebox, as all were sold as soon as they were unpacked.

Arthur Newell had three large funerals last week, which made it necessary to work late in the evenings. He says the sale of pot plants was above the average last week.

All the downtown florists report that funeral work for the week was the heaviest it ever has been at this time of the year.

Business across the state line is satisfactory. Funeral work was heavy. A good many pot plants were sent to the hospitals last week.

Adolph Mohr has practically all of his greenhouses now filled with bedding plants, except one house which is devoted to Easter stock, and his place is looking fine.

W. J. Barnes has practically sold out his pot plants, except some reserved for use on a large decoration next week.

Make Customers Successful with Your Plants

Your customers buy potted plants. Often they wither and die and you are blamed for the failure. It's simply because plant food is lacking. Your customers don't want fertilizers with offensive odors. They need Odorless Fertilo that does not mar the fragrance of the flowers. Just the material for Lawns, Flowers, Shrubs and Small Gardens. You can sell several cans of Odorless Fertilo to each customer who buys potted plants and several bags to those with gardens. Make them more successful and they will become flower enthusiasts.

FERTILO is nature's pure plant food and combines all the essential elements required by plant life: Ammonia, Phosphoric Acid, Bone, Phosphate of Lime and Potash. Makes the necessary Humus for enriching the soil and is also an excellent Insecticide.

FERTILO is odorless, will not get hard and lumpy. Put up in handy containers in 1 and 5-lb. sizes, and in 10 and 80-lb. bags. The 1-lb. package will fertilize 10 gallons of earth for potted plants or 50 sq. ft. of surface. Retails for 25c. Full and simple directions printed on each package.

Florists, truckers and landscape gardeners recommend Odorless Fertilo.

Let us send you free sample of the 1-lb. package together with full particulars and quote you our liberal terms to Florists.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The heaviest snowfall of the winter occurred last week, after the outdoor flowers were coming in freely, but nothing seemed to be injured. The longer days have had their effect, and there is an abundance of most items, though roses still are short. The demand continues better than normal, almost everything selling well. Pot plants are more in evidence than they were a week ago, but there is nothing in the way of novelties to be seen. Sweet peas are exceedingly plentiful, as well as violets. Peas continue to show the best quality I have ever seen in this city. Cyclamens are on the wane, more having been sold this season than ever before. Cinerarias are at their best and we have been pleased to see so many pastel colors in this flower. In the past it was more gaudy than beautiful.

Our growers are producing their own cyclamen seed, and I doubt if there are finer strains in the country. If more of our American growers produced their own seed of the rare plants we would see more individuality in plants. The land is dry enough to be plowed and those who do outdoor growing are preparing the soil. All available space is being filled with cannas and other bedding plants. There are probably more good bedding plants on hand now than ever before at this time of year.

Various Notes.

T. H. Joy is planning to attend the Philadelphia National Flower Show and, after it is over, to make a short trip to some of the larger flower centers.

The Hillcrest School Farm is planting roses in the field this week. Several thousand ramblers will be grown this season.

McIntyre Bros. received a nice lot of ornamental evergreens last week.

Geny Bros. have their store filled with a general line of excellent pot plants.

Charles Tritschler, who built a place near Sylvia park last summer, is doing a good business. He has contracts with the Louisville & Nashville railroad which insure him success in his business.

Leslie Littel, who is located just behind the National cemetery, is rapidly stocking up and will be ready for the spring business. F. B.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Good business was the rule last week. A number of small club and social functions called for considerable stock, while funeral work was in heavy demand. The week brought more snow than has been experienced in several years. Everybody is now hustling for the Easter season and the indications are that there will be plenty of stock from the local growers to meet all demands. It is expected that prices will rule about the same as for the last few years—about one-third higher than normal.

Various Notes.

F. Macrae & Sons have just added a new Ford delivery to their garage. The firm's houses are looking their best. Carnations and roses are the principal crops, including Enchantress and White Enchantress, Killarney and White Killarney, in each of which they furnish superfine stock.

Samuel Kinder had unique decorations last week for the birthday party of his daughter, at his home at Bristol.

The annual meeting of the Greystone Horticultural Society was held last week. Officers were elected as follows: President, Aquilla Jagger; vice-president, Mitchell Northup; secretary, W. Hewitt; treasurer, E. Hodgson; general committee, J. Briggs, T. Brook, E. Hodgson, W. Hewitt and M. Northup.

Eli King, of North Stonington, has accepted a position with S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly.

The Carmichael Orchards, Shannock, are sending out their annual catalogue of gladioli and peonies. W. H. M.

PAYING HOUSES

When planning for your new houses you no doubt wish to erect the same so that in the course of time you have the best returns from them. You want to consider the durability, the convenience, the efficiency, and last but not least, the cost of the houses. Not one of these points is overlooked in our construction. Write for our sketches and estimates.

CINERARIAS DYING.

Under separate cover I am sending a specimen of our cinerarias. Will you tell me what is the trouble with them, and the remedy? They are gradually wilting, one or two a day, even after they are in bloom. As nearly as we can find out, there are small white worms in the stems near the soil.

S. G. C.—Wyo.

The plant was frozen stiff on arrival. On splitting the stem, some of the small white worms referred to could still be noticed. These are unquestionably the reason for the death of the plants. Cinerarias are of easy culture and, apart from green aphis and an occasional attack of leaf miners, are pretty free from injury by insects. The only remedy I can suggest is sterilization of the soil by steam, if possible, another season. This will destroy all animal life in the soil, as well as fungoid germs. To destroy soil pests where plants are growing, water with Vermine at the rate of 300 parts water to one part Vermine. Or bore a hole with a pointed stick in each pot and pour a few drops of carbon bisulphide into each hole, immediately covering it. This forms a suffocating gas which destroys insect life, but is harmless to plants unless an excessive dose is given. For an 8-inch pot use half a teaspoonful; for 5-inch and 6-inch pots, smaller quantities. I am afraid there is little you can do now to help your plants, but another season adopt preventive measures.

Best Display of Dahlias Ever Exhibited

The following is an extract from a letter from one of our customers, Mr. John C. Rutenschroer, Cincinnati, Ohio:

"The results obtained from the Skinner System were remarkable, not only in the growth of the plants, but also in the checking of the destructive pests, thereby giving me the pleasure of displaying at the Jabez Elliott Flower Market of Cincinnati, for four consecutive Saturdays, not only the largest, but the best display of Dahlias ever exhibited in this city, besides the heavy retail trade."

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

MAKING MONEY WITH MIGNONETTE

The commercial spirit seldom takes such complete possession of a grower or other business man as to smother all sentimental feeling with reference to his lifework. Though love of the profits is the grower's main incentive, his love of his flowers usually contributes to his success, as in the case of the writer of this article.

By DAVID J. SCOTT.

IT HAS been said, by a man with whom I had the privilege of becoming intimately acquainted, that "flowers are the handmaid of refinement, good taste and real gentility." Certain it is that the beauties of nature as expressed in flowers are more appreciated as our higher and finer instincts are developed. It is equally true that some flowers, by their fragrance, purity of color, or other less clearly defined qualities, appeal to us more strongly than do others. For some such reason I have always been partial to mignonette, and as was natural, I recently gave expression to that partiality by submitting to The Review some photographs, one of which is here reproduced, of a strain of mignonette we were cutting. Then came back the suggestion, from The Review, that a description of the cultural methods necessary to produce these flowers should accompany the illustration when published. Possibly I can only repeat what has already been published on this subject, but this article will at least serve to call attention to a flower which has a character and refinement entirely its own, and which is not often seen at its highest stage of development.

Sowing the Seed.

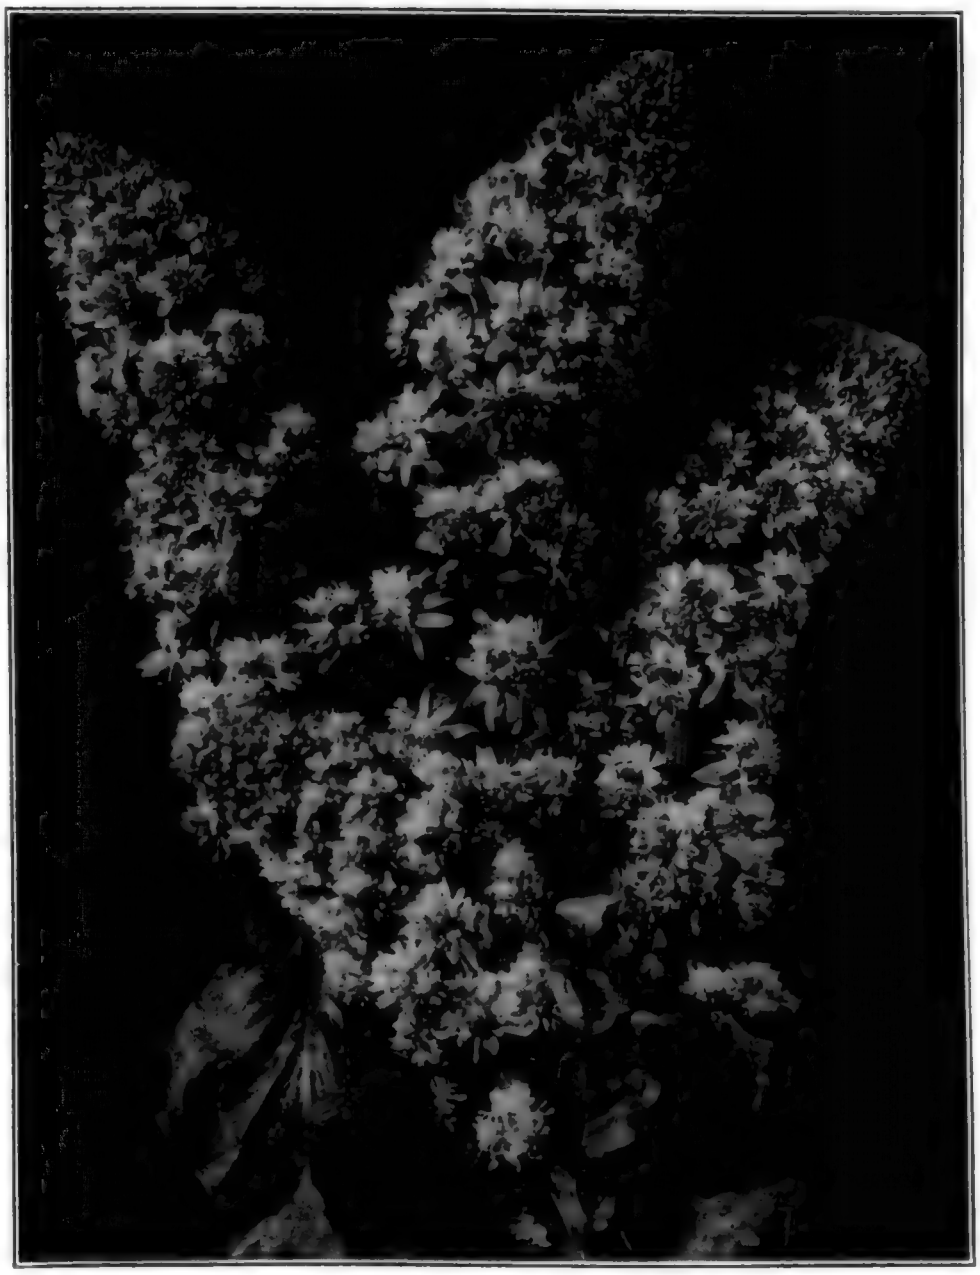
We sow our mignonette seed July 15 in 2½-inch pots, placing six to eight seeds in a pot and using a light, fresh soil. The seed is firmed and only enough soil is added to prevent the first waterings from exposing the seed. The pots are then placed in an outside frame, and, to prevent the entrance of the common sulphur butterfly, a covering of the thinnest fly netting is tacked entirely over the frame. All watering is done with a can and fine rose through this netting, and we believe that the light shade produced by the netting is a benefit, considering that the young plants are growing with otherwise full exposure to sun and air.

The Seedlings in Frames.

Over the cross-braces and lengthwise of the frame near each edge is placed a narrow strip of board, and during rainy or threatening weather sashes are put on as a protection. The sashes, being raised on all sides, allow a free circulation of air over the young plants. Mignonette produces a network of extremely fine roots around the inner circle of the pot. If, when planting into the bench later, the ball of soil and roots does not separate from the pot in a clean fashion, the young plants will have considerable of a setback. It is important that clean pots be used and that they be set on a good depth of well moistened ashes or sand.

Owing to the difficulty of transplanting, some growers sow the seed in the bench which is to be their permanent quarters. Because of the date of sowing our seed and the fact that the young plants, if inside, would be subjected to the most intense heat of the summer, we prefer, as a rule, to follow the method first described.

After the seedlings are of sufficient size, they are set over and weeded. The only thinning out we do at this time is to reduce to five or six of the strongest plants any pots in which more than that number have started.



The last of August is the time we bench our mignonette, and a well drained solid bed, in a light, airy house, provides, in my opinion, the ideal conditions.

I am aware that high-class mignonette is being grown on raised benches, with five inches of soil, but for a prolonged and steady cut I prefer the solid bed.

Benching the Plants.

If it is necessary to plant in a raised bench, select one with a good depth of soil and free from excessive bottom heat.

For soil we use a fresh fibrous loam, to which has been added a fourth or fifth of well rotted manure, the whole being well worked over but not broken up too finely. The young plants—or, rather, the clusters of young plants just as they come from the pots—are spaced twelve inches apart lengthwise of the bench and ten inches crosswise. It has been, and is now, I believe, the general custom in growing mignonette to thin out the young plants until at a certain time but one plant remains, and when this is of sufficient size the head is pinched out, causing it to branch. Our method is different. The pots of seedlings will contain anywhere from one to six plants, depending on how the seed germinated and on other causes. In planting, an average of five plants are left in each space. Those clusters having more than five plants are thinned out; if there are less than five, two or more clusters are planted together, disturbing as little as possible the ball of soil.

Practically the only pinching done is on an occasional plant which shows a tendency later to shoot ahead of the rest, or at a spot here and there that does not appear to be thick enough.

Watering and Feeding.

The first flowers are ready for Thanksgiving day, and from the middle of December onward the bed is in full bearing, producing spikes averaging thirty-two inches in length.

During the first six or eight weeks particular care is taken that the bed is not overwatered. All watering during this period is done with a fine rose and only about as far from the plant as the roots have extended. Frequently, probably after every second watering, the soil is loosened with the hands to the depth of an inch and allowed to remain so until actually in need of another watering. After the roots have made some headway, this rosing is discontinued and occasional light doses of sheep manure are given until along in February, after which liquid manure is used. The mignonette, after getting well under way, has a vigorous root action. The main tap root goes straight down and the small lateral roots, almost invisible, penetrate to all parts of the bench. It is therefore benefited from January on by liberal feeding and plenty of water.

The Temperature.

The night temperature usually recommended for mignonette is 45 degrees and I have often heard it said, as an argument in its favor, that it can "stand" 40 degrees. This reminds me of a phrase I heard repeated many times in my old home, to the effect that "there is considerable difference between what a dog will eat and what he will live on." (This does not mean that we children did not get plenty to eat.) It appears to me that when we consider what treatment a plant will stand, the aim should be to bring it to the point of greatest production consistent with the desired quality. We grow our mignonette at 48 degrees, because at this temperature we get blooms of the best quality and the development is much more rapid than when a temperature several degrees lower is maintained. It is essential that fresh air be given on all possible occasions.

For supports we use the wire and string method commonly in use for carnations. When the plants get higher, English twine is used instead of wire for stretching lengthwise of the bench on the inside rows. This saves considerable breakage.

The One Destructive Pest.

The only destructive enemies that we have to fight are the green worms which are the larvæ of the sulphur butterflies. If unchecked, one or two of these worms will devour a small plant over night. Up to the time of planting in the bench, our young plants are protected by the covering of netting, as mentioned. The plants from now on must be sprayed regularly with a solution which will kill these worms by being consumed along with the foliage. The different nicotine mixtures are of no use for this purpose. Weak solutions of hellebore or Paris green can be used, but there is always the danger of burning. Arsenate of lead is better. Though it colors the foliage, the use of it can be discontinued before the foliage appears which will be left on the stem when cut. For the last three years we have used, not only on mignonette but on other plants, a spray material put out by the Bowkers under the trade name of Pyrox. A few worms will hang on until late in the fall and these must be picked off by hand.

Disbudding must be attended to just as with carnations. We have not developed our strain to the point where disbudding can be dispensed with, but later in the season, when the lateral growths appear, not much of this is necessary.

Our mignonette is put up in bunches of one dozen to a bunch and is sold at wholesale in the Buffalo and Rochester markets. Some years the local supply of various flowers is more than a market normally requires and this is perhaps more noticeable with mignonette than with some other flowers which have a wider range of use. I am satisfied, however, that, one year with another, a well grown bench of mignonette will return us as much money as an equally well grown bench of any of the standard varieties of flowers.

Growing the Seed.

Do we ever consider how much a matter of faith it is when we buy our seed, and how important it is that we procure the best? As a rule, the best seed can be purchased for less money than we would find it necessary to expend in the form of space and attention in order to produce seed of like quality. We have made an exception, however, of mignonette, and along in December each year a certain number of the finest spikes are selected and tied to a bamboo stake. Before the end of February this year, these seed spikes measured forty-five inches from the ground, with a flower development of sixteen to eighteen inches, the lower part going to seed.

How many years this particular strain has been with us, I am unable to say. Among the many pleasant recollections of my boyhood days in the Buffalo home, I remember that for many years it was a regular custom of my father and a few of his intimate florist friends to congregate there of a Sunday morning and make the rounds of the greenhouses. I recall his pointing to a bench of mignonette and saying that the seed was from John N. May.

After the building of our Corfu place, the same strain of mignonette was retained and is still grown, with no change except what may have been caused by the effort toward improvement. Whether it is any better than in the old days I am unable to say. Youthful recollections are not reliable, but I like to think that pride in a thing accomplishes something.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

AT LAST, SOMETHING NEW!

There is no gainsaying the fact that when a once rare occurrence becomes common it loses its interest, even though it be such a matter as swindling retailers by means of bogus checks. The check forgers seem to have found the florists' business a fertile field for their operations, for they are ever in our midst—recently at Baltimore, then Toledo, Detroit, Saginaw and last week at San Francisco. Really, their fraudulent schemes have been perpetrated so frequently of late that a note of each duping scarcely classes as of news interest. However, relief from this dire monotony of crookdom turned up last week in the city of New York, where the really clever people who live by their wits reside. The dishonest person in this case is a young man who, if honest, would make a good salesman; probably honest sales are his vocation and crooked sales his avocation. At any rate, here is how the scheme is worked. In the morning the swindler reads the death notices in the newspapers and marks down the addresses of houses of death. In a short time he calls on the bereaved, representing himself to be the salesman of a downtown florist who specializes in funeral work. Being a good salesman, he sells the mourners as many pieces as they will stand for and, on leaving, this impostor diplomatically requests a deposit on the order. The bereaved, being more or less numbed by the shock they have sustained, unsuspectingly pay the deposit. At this stage of the game the candidate for the rogues' gallery makes his exit.

In due course of time the innocent downtown florist is called to the phone and asked why the flowers ordered in the morning have not been delivered. The puzzled florist, after a pause for registering surprise, explains that he has no salesman taking orders for him on the outside. This is followed by high words until the situation is made clear; that is, the mourners have been victimized. The cheerful point about this crook's methods is that they are practically harmless as far as the florists are concerned. They are decidedly annoying, however. The florist does not lose anything unless he is soft-hearted enough to make up the pieces in a hurry, deliver them and collect the difference between their selling price and the deposit collected by the swindler.

YOUTH AND MODERNITY.

The store of Victor Young & Co., 1239 North Clark street, Chicago, is one of the new up-to-date flower shops of the city. The establishment occupies the ground floor and basement of the building and use is found for every bit of the space. In the basement is storage for a large reserve stock and in the rear of the store is a modern workroom. Victor Young, the proprietor, is one of Chicago's youngest florists, but it might be said that he has spent a lifetime in the business. He is well known and has a large clientele among the exclusive north side social set. All fixtures, including the refrigerator, were designed and built by Buchbinder Bros. The refrigerator can be seen in the center of the picture, at the left are the office and cashier's desk and at the right is the door to the workroom.

BEMB SHOW BRINGS BUSINESS.

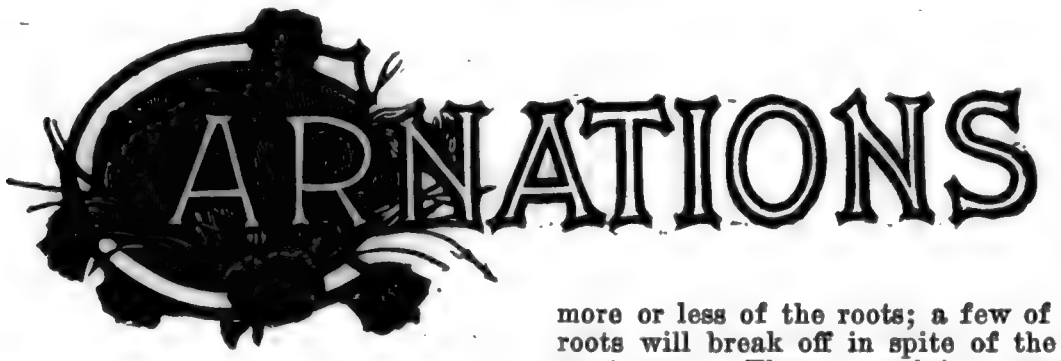
According to the business scientists, the character rating of any store is determined by the average income of its patrons. For instance, the department stores of our large cities are divided into three distinct classes—those that cater to the "better and best," or wealthy, class, the popular-priced stores and last, but not least, the cheap stores. The word cheap in the last case is used as a descriptive of the stores that handle merchandise of low quality at a low price, but, nevertheless, give value for the money. Further, and as Exhibit B, these experts advance the theory that when any store has attained a reputation of serving a distinct class of people, it must shape its policies, merchandising and advertising accordingly, in order to harmonize with the ideas, habits and pocketbooks of its clientele. The advertising man of the high-grade store does not feature big bargains, quote low prices or talk "best goods at lowest prices." If he did he would not be advertising to his regular patrons but to another class of people. The final result in this case, according to the experts, would be a loss of business.

From this retailers' logic it is reasonably clear why it is not wisdom for the well known florist who sells the best class to suddenly advertise cut-rate flowers, "Saturday flower specials at 50 cents" or other forms of sales promotion that appertain to the flower store of the lower class. These rather nice rules of business building undoubtedly were paramount in the mind of Albert Pochelon, of the Bemb Floral Co., Detroit, when he was looking about for a feature that would bring the right kind of buyers. Mr. Pochelon finally decided on an orchid show in the Bemb store. The show was given March 1 and 2, and the accompanying illustration affords a view of the exhibit, of which Mr. Pochelon speaks as follows:

"I never was in favor of attracting patrons to my store on the strength of a cheap sale, such as a $1 box of flowers or a $1.50 basket. I found there were just as good means of attracting the flower-buying public to my store on the merits of good stock, at good, honest prices.

"I had an idea in this regard and, to use the expression of Herman Knoble, of Cleveland, 'I nailed it' then and there. Why not give my patrons a good show of flowers and plants that they did not see often? And what could be better than orchids, both growing and cut blooms? We made plans for an orchid show and sent out 1,500 invitations and advertised the show in all the papers for two days. The results were more than good.

"Joseph Mueller, of the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., came along with a nice collection of orchids, plants and cut blooms, and I had others shipped from the Dale Estate, of Brampton, Ont. Mr. Mueller gave talks on orchids during the two days, March 1 and 2, and I am sure we made many friends, aside from many orchid buyers. On such an occasion the sales naturally increase, for the people will see and buy other plants and flowers in the shop."



FISK'S NEW OUTFIT.

The days have gone by when a florist can maintain the pace set by his neighbors unless he uses an equally modern equipment. Note the store fronts. Are the flower stores making a show that will compare with the show of the dry goods store, or even with that of the cigar shop? In many cases the answer must be that the florist has not yet put in a modern front. There are, indeed, flower stores in which the fixtures of olden times still suffice, but not so with those retailers who are keeping up with the procession. A flower store today, to have a standing comparable to that of other merchants in the vicinity, must have modern fixtures. The accompanying illustration gives a view of one corner of the store of C. H. Fisk, Inc., on Ogden avenue, just off West Madison street, in Chicago. The Fisk store recently was completely reoutfitted by the store fixture department of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. Many retail florists nowadays dispense with counters, but Mr. Fisk retains one in front of the icebox, for convenience in handling stock and in putting it before his customers for inspection.

CUTTINGS NEED FRESH SAND.

I put in a batch of 6,800 carnation cuttings January 1 and by February 5 6,400 of these had rooted. For the next batch the proprietor told me not to change the sand but to draw some hot water from the steam boiler and water the sand thoroughly. I did so and then put in 6,000 cuttings. Of these I find that only about one-third will root. I maintain that old sand is not good for rooting carnations; I believe in renewing the sand for each batch of cuttings. Am I correct? Do you think the stale water from the boiler killed the life of the sand and caused the cuttings to rot?

H. E. R.—Mich.

In our opinion, propagating sand is fit for only one batch of cuttings; we would not think of using it for a second batch. We know of growers who do and we have tried it, but have never seen a second batch come out with so large a percentage of rooted cuttings as the first. The reason for the failure is not, as you surmise, the killing of the life of the sand by the hot water, but rather the reverse. You cannot take out a batch of cuttings without losing more or less of the roots; a few of the roots will break off in spite of the utmost care. These remaining rootlets will begin decaying soon after the second lot of cuttings is stuck, and start fungus. Pouring on hot water starts this decay just a few days sooner and aggravates the trouble.

From an economical standpoint, we could never see anything but loss in using propagating sand for more than one batch of cuttings. A cubic yard of sand, costing perhaps $3 by the time you have it in the propagating bed, will hold about 10,000 carnation cuttings. One hundred cuttings of any of the standard varieties will pay for that load of sand. We feel safe in saying that the loss traceable to this cause would easily average ten per cent, so that new sand for each batch will easily pay for itself tenfold. Penny wise and pound foolish, is what we call it.

CARNATIONS LACK NUTRITION.

We are sending you the tops of two carnation plants which are affected with some disease unfamiliar to us. Will you please tell us what the trouble is and a remedy for it? This trouble started early in the winter and is found mostly on Victory, but Pink Enchantress also is affected badly. We used lime when benching them last summer and used sheep manure lightly early in the winter. After this a mulch of cow manure was given. B. & B.—Wis.

These light-colored growths are due to lack of nutrition, the cause of which would be difficult to state without knowing more about the cultural conditions under which the plants are growing. The lack of sunshine would, no doubt, be a contributory cause. These old varieties have lost so much in vitality that it is difficult to pull them through a whole season without contracting some such trouble. They cannot stand the strain of the dark winter weather. As spring approaches and the weather conditions become more favorable to plant growth, you will see these troubles gradually vanish. But why worry along with these old, worn-out varieties? There are plenty of the newer, improved and more vigorous varieties on the market, which will not only give you less worry but also better blooms. The best advice I can give you is to stock up with up-to-date varieties. Your stock of these varieties is deteriorating, the same as it has already done for nearly everybody, and there is no help for it. A. F. J. Baur.

SAVING ONE'S OWN SEED.

Following the address of Howard M. Earl before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia March 6, the following questions were asked and answered:

Q.—What is the best treatment of winter-flowering Spencer sweet peas, planted in a carnation bench, to produce seed?

A.—As sweet peas grown under glass will not set seed until toward the end of April, nothing would be gained by starting the seed early in the fall. Therefore, as there would be no advantake in allowing the flowers to remain on the vines, meanwhile would advise cutting them regularly until toward the middle of April.

Q.—And how soon ought they to set seed?

A.—If the plants referred to have been flowering now for some time, they should be given regular applications of liquid manure and perhaps a top-dressing of thoroughly rotted manure, the desire being to keep them growing strongly until the period when they would be likely to produce the most seed.

Q.—There are a few vines I particularly want to get all the seed of that is possible. How shall I insure the maximum seed crop?

A.—As the days get longer and the sun, naturally, much stronger, the vines are likely to be attacked by the green fly, and, unless this is seen to in time, the plants might be so badly crippled as to preclude any chance of seed setting. It is, therefore, well to fumigate the house at intervals of ten days or so, as "prevention is better than cure."

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Notice is hereby given that the variety Crystal White, formerly called Paper White, is submitted for registration by H. H. Baer, of New Hyde Park, N. Y.

The nomenclature committee suggests a new method of registration, viz., the publication of a brief description, with the suggested names of the varieties submitted for registration. If no objection is made to this registration prior to April 1, this variety will be registered as Crystal White.

Description: Bloom medium size (8 cm.). Stamen filaments white, anthers bluish; perianth white, blotched Tyrian rose. It seems to be a compact bloom of good substance, five blooms being open at one time. It is early to mid-season, tall, erect and bears a large number of blooms (21). It is a vigorous grower, well furnished with medium broad leaves and seems to be rather prolific. Name, Crystal White.

AMONG TEWKSBURY GROWERS.

Patten & Co.

The carnation establishment of M. A. Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, Mass., is well known in Boston and New England. M. A. Patten, the senior member of the firm, has for years been noted as a skillful grower, and some good novelties have originated here. All the houses here are kept scrupulously clean and the whole plant is a model of its kind. Carnations continue to be the great specialty here and never looked better than this season. In whites, White Wonder is much preferred to Matchless, being found far freer in winter. The planting of Matchless has been much reduced since a year ago. Alice does extremely well here, as does Pink Delight. Sunbeam fills one bench and made a favorable showing. Pink Sensation and Good Cheer will be tried again, after a careful selection of cuttings. At present both are flowering freely.

Beacon, which with many growers bursts badly at this season, does splendidly here and few splits were to be seen. Benora does finely. A few plants were seen of a pure white sport. Peerless Pink was in heavy crop and may be grown again, but Rosette will be dropped. Philadelphia was doing well. Mrs. Akehurst fades out too much. Enchantress Supreme has proved good and holds its color well. Some good seedlings were noted, in addition to the standard varieties.

One house is filled with Godfrey callas, which bloom with great freedom. Plants in as small as 2¼-inch pots have flowered. Freesias, snapdragons, asparagus, adiantums, Cypripedium insigne, marguerites and bedding plants occupy several houses.

A. Roper.

The sad tragedy which, March 1, removed one of our most enthusiastic and skillful carnationists, as told in the obituary column of The Review of March 9, happened only twenty-eight hours after I had spent several hours with Mr. Roper. He was full of optimism over his favorite flower and little did I dream of the sudden and terrible ending of his life.

Here are to be seen about 40,000 carnations, and, with the exception of small lots of Pink Delight and Champion—each of which, by the way, compares unfavorably with Mr. Roper's seedlings—all are varieties raised by our deceased friend. Alice Coombs looms up in great shape and carries wonderful flowers. Grace, light pink, and Commonwealth, deep flesh, were equally good, but a new cerise-pink seedling, as yet only under number, is the finest and most prolific of its color I have ever seen. There are about 10,000 flowering plants of it here, and their cleanliness, vigor and floriferousness must be seen to be appreciated. Mr. Roper had planned to introduce this next season, and within a few days had booked orders for 25,000 rooted cuttings.

There are other seedlings here, including a large batch of a pure white in the way of Matchless, but more prolific, and small batches of a number of promising new varieties. All the plants here were free from bacteria and in splendid health.

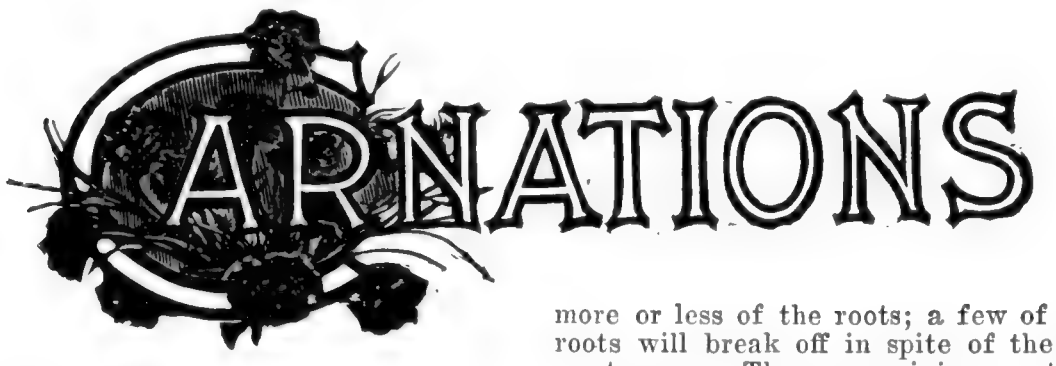
John T. Gale.

A large variety of stock is grown at Mr. Gale's place. The carnations were in excellent condition. The varieties grown are Beacon, Eureka, which looked well, Fenn, Enchantress Supreme, Matchless, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Benora. Both single and double violets are grown in quantity; also Spencer sweet peas, giganteum lilies and Godfrey callas. The culture of yellow marguerites was only recently started. These are chiefly in 8-inch and 9-inch pots, standing on solid beds, where they can root through. These are a mass of flowers. W. N. C.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

LEWIS HENDERSON.

OUT in Omaha, whenever there is a bit of work to be done they say, "Leave it to Louie;" it's slang for the eastern classic, "Let George do it." Henderson is the tireless worker among the bunch of fine fellows in the town that has its trade fame as lying just across the river from Council Bluffs. Ever since the memory of man runneth not in the opposite direction, Henderson has been on the job, not only ready but willing, to shoulder any little task for the general good. It was so when the S. A. F. years ago made its first excursion west of the Mississippi to his town, and it is so now, when the S. A. F. seems to have acquired the trans-Mississippi habit. If they don't take the convention to Denver next year, from Houston, Hess is likely to snatch it for Henderson, to keep him busy in the early part of 1917. And if he does, you can bet the boys will be well looked after.



SHADING FOR GREENHOUSE.

How should whitewash be prepared for shading a greenhouse? Which is the better, whitewash or curtains?

F. G.—Ill.

A mixture of kerosene and white lead makes a suitable greenhouse shading, which can be applied with a brush or a garden pump. At this early date a light shade only is needed, as we may get long spells of dark weather before spring. Ordinary whitening and kerosene make a useful temporary shade; so does clay water. Either of these is washed off by a heavy rain. For many plants at this early date cheesecloth as a temporary shade is preferable to shade on the glass. C. W.

The sad tragedy which, March 1, removed one of our most enthusiastic and skillful carnationists, as told in the obituary column of The Review of March 9, happened only twenty-eight hours after I had spent several hours with Mr. Roper. He was full of optimism over his favorite flower and little did I dream of the sudden and terrible ending of his life.

Here are to be seen about 40,000 carnations, and, with the exception of small lots of Pink Delight and Champion—each of which, by the way, compares unfavorably with Mr. Roper's seedlings—all are varieties raised by our deceased friend. Alice Coombs looms up in great shape and carries wonderful flowers. Grace, light pink, and Commonwealth, deep flesh, were equally good, but a new cerise-pink seedling, as yet only under number, is the finest and most prolific of its color I have ever seen. There are about 10,000 flowering plants of it here, and their cleanliness, vigor and floriferousness must be seen to be appreciated. Mr. Roper had planned to introduce this next season, and within a few days had booked orders for 25,000 rooted cuttings.

There are other seedlings here, including a large batch of a pure white in the way of Matchless, but more prolific, and small batches of a number of promising new varieties. All the plants here were free from bacteria and in splendid health.

John T. Gale.

A large variety of stock is grown at Mr. Gale's place. The carnations were in excellent condition. The varieties grown are Beacon, Eureka, which looked well, Fenn, Enchantress Supreme, Matchless, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Benora. Both single and double violets are grown in quantity; also Spencer sweet peas, giganteum lilies and Godfrey callas. The culture of yellow marguerites was only recently started. These are chiefly in 8-inch and 9-inch pots, standing on solid beds, where they can root through. These are a mass of flowers. W. N. C.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

LEWIS HENDERSON.

OUT in Omaha, whenever there is a bit of work to be done they say, "Leave it to Louie;" it's slang for the eastern classic, "Let George do it." Henderson is the tireless worker among the bunch of fine fellows in the town that has its trade fame as lying just across the river from Council Bluffs. Ever since the memory of man runneth not in the opposite direction, Henderson has been on the job, not only ready but willing, to shoulder any little task for the general good. It was so when the S. A. F. years ago made its first excursion west of the Mississippi to his town, and it is so now, when the S. A. F. seems to have acquired the trans-Mississippi habit. If they don't take the convention to Denver next year, from Houston, Hess is likely to snatch it for Henderson, to keep him busy in the early part of 1917. And if he does, you can bet the boys will be well looked after.

SHADING FOR GREENHOUSE.

How should whitewash be prepared for shading a greenhouse? Which is the better, whitewash or curtains?

F. G.—Ill.

A mixture of kerosene and white lead makes a suitable greenhouse shading, which can be applied with a brush or a garden pump. At this early date a light shade only is needed, as we may get long spells of dark weather before spring. Ordinary whitening and kerosene make a useful temporary shade; so does clay water. Either of these is washed off by a heavy rain. For many plants at this early date cheesecloth as a temporary shade is preferable to shade on the glass. C. W.

MAINE FLORISTS' SOCIETY.

The Officers Elected.

The representative tradesmen of the state of Maine assembled at Orono March 8 for the second annual meeting of the Maine State Florists' Society, which was held in conjunction with Farmers' week at the University of Maine. In the absence of the president, Secretary Alexander Lurie called the meeting to order at 9 a. m. A letter from the absentee was read and the reports of the secretary and treasurer were submitted and approved. These proceedings were followed by the balloting for officers, which resulted in the reëlection of the incumbents, with the exception of the secretary, whose new duties will take him out of the state. The officers are: President, J. H. Stalford, of Bar Harbor; vice-president, C. S. Strout, of Biddeford; treasurer, E. Saunders, of Lewiston; secretary, R. T. Muller, of Orono. The following constitute the new executive board: J. H. Stalford, C. S. Strout, H. L. Chadwick, Miss M. A. Clark, F. L. Minott and P. M. Olm.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered Alexander Lurie for his good work towards making the society a success. The organization was started by Mr. Lurie a year ago, and it has progressed rapidly through his efforts and the loyal support of the florists. Mr. Lurie has resigned his position as instructor of floriculture and landscape art at the university, to take up work in connection with the Missouri Botanical Garden, at St. Louis.

The Program.

After a short but excellent program a dinner was given the society by the home economics department of the University of Maine Agricultural College. The program follows:

President's letter.
Report of the secretary, A. Lurie, Orono.
Report of the treasurer, E. Saunders, Lewiston.
"Forcing Shrubs," by A. E. Thatcher, Bar Harbor.
"Retailing Flowers," by E. Saunders, Lewiston.

The Exhibition.

During the day of the meeting and the one following, March 8 and 9, a good exhibition of Maine-grown flowers and plants was given in one of the horticultural laboratories of the university. The principal exhibitors were: F. L. Billings, of Richmond, carnations; H. L. Chadwick, of Houlton, sweet peas, calendulas and schizanthus; the J. W. Minott Co., of Portland, carnations; E. Saunders, tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, roses and carnations; R. Barrows, of Gorham, carnations; Mrs. M. A. Clark, of Ellsworth, primroses, cyclamens and begonias.

During the year the society is planning to hold meetings in various parts of the state and offer prizes for exhibits at these meetings. This would create a state-wide interest in the society and its doings.

Tarentum, Pa.—"Four doctors have given me up, but I think I still will be reading The Review when springtime comes," says G. A. McWilliams, of the McWilliams Floral Co. Mr. McWilliams was troubled with carbuncles last summer, and in trying to cure him the doctors started blood poisoning, which was like going from the frying pan into the fire.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Care of the Seedlings.

In a former article, on page 88 of The Review of March 9, I described my method of sowing tomato seed in rows. But some reader will say, "Why all this trouble? Why not sow broadcast?" For the simple reason that young seedlings require space, light and air, as human beings do. Cover around the seedlings and you get a lot of spindle-legged plants. Deprive them of air and they turn yellow. Give them too much water and they rot off. All these conditions can be avoided if the seedlings have ample room in which to grow. Again, many things may occur to prevent your pricking off the young seedlings at the proper time. Then they will rapidly draw and weaken and your plants will be almost useless. Many of them will be useless and the remainder will be so reduced in vitality that they will require weeks to recover.

From the sowing of the seeds onward, we treat with greenhouse culture. The temperature for the seedlings should be 65 degrees. This will give quick-grown but sturdy seedlings, providing they are not neglected.

When the seedlings are in rough leaf they should be pricked off immediately. Procrastination is abhorred by practical and successful growers. The right work must be done at the right time. When the tomato seedlings are in rough leaf, that is the time to transplant them. The compost for this purpose should be prepared in the fall and placed under cover for use. It should consist of fine, loamy soil, with which has been incorporated a 7-inch pot of bone meal to the barrowful of soil. Good bone meal will contain about forty-eight per cent phosphate and four and one-half per cent ammonia. The phosphate will provide balanced nutriment.

Transplanting the Seedlings.

Let it be understood, then, that when the young seedlings are in rough leaf, they should be transplanted into flats. The bottoms of the flats should have holes in them for drainage. On the bottoms of the flats place half an inch of rough soil for extra drainage. On this place two inches of soil in which to plant the seedlings. It will be an advantage to mix a 7-inch pot of fine bone meal with every barrowful of soil. This slight stimulant will help the young plants greatly. In transplanting, be careful not to injure the primary root, and avoid crushing the stem. Allow a distance of at least two inches from plant to plant, and three inches from row to row. Air, space and light help to grow strong, healthy plants.

When the seedlings have a nice quantity of roots and three or four well developed leaves, they should be potted off into 3-inch pots. Use a good fibrous soil, well chopped up, to which should be added a 7-inch pot of bone meal to the barrowful of soil. Always drain the bottom of the pots well with broken crocks. Good drainage is most important. A wet, water-logged soil means stunted growth and diseased plants. Always pot tomato plants firmly. A tight, close, porous soil is ideal for the purpose. Firm potting means a good supply of fibrous roots and plenty of root hairs, which take the plant food up from the soil.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

W. M. Deyoe & Co., of Oil City, Pa., report excellent sales of cyclamen plants in 5-inch pans, $1 each being no exception. "It shows how the public appreciates our choice strain," remarked Manager W. Smith.

L. J. Rowe, of Titusville, Pa., had some fine cyclamens left, but reports the largest sales on record. A nice lot of cinerarias are being grown for Easter.

George W. Evenden, William J. Evenden, Charles T. Evenden and Harry L. Evenden, of Williamsport, Pa., have incorporated under the name of Evenden Bros. Co., with a capitalization of $50,000. Plans are under way for an extension of the business.

C. E. Rossiter, of Sunbury, Pa., says he cannot find a more profitable lettuce than Grand Rapids as a winter crop.

Charles B. Groff, of Frederick, Md., has succeeded to the business of his brother, David, and undoubtedly will be as successful, having a long experience and an up-to-date place.

Henry A. Bester & Sons, of Hagerstown, Md., quickly recovered from the confusion caused by the recent fire and have a well grown stock ready for spring shipments.

Miss Mary Bester, of Hagerstown, is much pleased with the season's business. Her patrons have stood loyally by her.

Byer Bros., of Chambersburg, Pa., have completed a fine office. They intend to tear down and rebuild the old range, which is to adjoin the new block, making one of the most prominent retail places in the Cumberland valley.

U. G. Harglerode, of Shippensburg, Pa., says he has built up a good business through classified ads in The Review. He is somewhat puzzled as to how to treat prepaid orders for stock which purchasers wish sent by parcel post, but make no provision to cover the cost of postage. To deduct the amounts would require considerable figuring, and he believes express shipments still are the most satisfactory, looking at the proposition from every point of view. Mr. Harglerode has given his two sons an interest in the business.

Dan Offerle, of Warren, Pa., reports a busy season and looks for a double-header from now on. As soon as the rush is over, considerable rebuilding will take place.

W. M.

Dayton, O.—At the March meeting of the Dayton Florists' and Gardeners' Club the following were elected to office: President, Horace M. Frank; vice-president, Elmer Brehan; secretary, J. Schaeffer; treasurer, J. W. Rodgers. The directors are Mrs. L. Johnson, M. L. Vogel and J. T. Good. A permanent committee named consists of E. Jenkins, G. W. Frisch, Jr., A. Kuhntz, A. L. Derringer and Clarence Roudebush. Plans for a banquet sometime this month were discussed at the meeting.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

TIME FOR MUM CUTTINGS.

Will you kindly inform us through The Review the best time to take cuttings from chrysanthemum plants that have been kept in a cool house all winter? L. N. B.—O.

The best time to take cuttings from mum plants that have been kept in a cool house all winter is when the cuttings are in condition to be taken. March and April are ideal months for this work and plants that have been kept in a cool house during the winter should be producing ideal cuttings at this time. It is an easy matter after cuttings are rooted to pinch them back. This will not harm the future plants if they are not cut back too far, and is preferable to throwing away a lot of splendid cuttings, as the first cuttings which plants make after a winter's rest are, as a general rule, the strongest.

Chas. H. Totty.

ROOTING CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

What should be the temperature of sand for rooting chrysanthemum cuttings? I am enclosing some of my cuttings. C. N.—Ill.

The chrysanthemum is a cold-blooded plant and cuttings will root in the sand without any bottom heat whatever. It is, however, an advantage to run a line of steam underneath the sand bench if the question of time is important, for when a little heat is supplied underneath, the cuttings will root at least a week earlier. It is not, however, a question of the sand being kept at 75 degrees or any other special temperature; as long as the bottom of the bench is warm it will start the root action working, but the chrysanthemum does not in any stage of its life require much heat.

On looking at the cuttings of C. N. I think that, perhaps, he had his sand too hot, as the cuttings were dried to powder when they reached me. I may say, in our case, rooting as we do hundreds of thousands of plants, we get the best success in a north house on which the direct sunlight does not fall. Cuttings should be well watered when placed in the sand and not watered again, at this season of the year, until they are taken out.

When cuttings are rooted in an average greenhouse, where a mixture of plants are grown and air is applied, different conditions will prevail. Cuttings will have to be sprayed and watered to keep them from wilting. If cuttings are allowed to become badly wilted two or three times the tissues get hard and the cuttings will never make satisfactory plants. If C. N. is rooting his chrysanthemums in a house with other plants, I would say to him not to mind about the warmth of the sand, keep the cuttings from wilting and by no means let the sand be permitted to become dry. If these rules are followed, there is no reason why C. N. should not have success in rooting his mum cuttings.

Chas. H. Totty.

MUM CUTTINGS IN ALABAMA.

Please give me some advice regarding my chrysanthemum stock plants. They are in a carnation house and growing rapidly, some of the shoots being eight inches high. The variety is Chrysolora. When should I take cuttings from these? Will the tops of these shoots make good cuttings? These plants were not lifted after flowering last fall, as I had no room for them. I left them in the bench and now have several hundred cuttings. I have Bonnaffon chrysanthemums in the same bench, but they do not advance so rapidly as the other variety. Should the tops of these shoots be broken off, so that the stocks will branch out? Any information will be appreciated.

H. A. C.—Ala.

Your chrysanthemum plants, from the description, are just right for taking the first batch of cuttings, without delay. Take the tops and insert in the cutting bed. Early varieties like Chrysolora should always be propagated early to have the best results. After the tops are taken for cuttings, the plants will not need any more cutting back to make them break again. Cuttings of all varieties that are ready may safely be taken now. The cuttings will root better now than when the weather becomes warmer. L.

TRI-CITIES.

The Market.

The Tri-City florists have certainly had nothing of which to complain during the last three weeks. There has been a most satisfactory volume of business and everyone seems to have received his share of it. The supply of cut flowers has been unusually short, but where it was impossible to procure these, it has been usually possible to use blooming plants. The demand for these, however, has taxed the local growers to their limit.

Of roses, Milady and Shawyer seem to meet with a large degree of favor, though Richmond is a good, regular seller. It is almost needless to mention the Killarneys. They always prove good property. For corsage work, sweet peas and violets have the strongest call. Cattleyas, too, find their place in this work.

The Day After.

March 8, the day following the convention and banquet of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the visiting florists were met at the Manufacturers' hotel, Moline, by the local florists with enough automobiles to accommodate all. At 10 o'clock the procession headed for Government island and gave the visitors a glimpse of its scenic beauties and points of interest without stopping. A run along the river on the Iowa side soon brought the sight-seers to the range of the Davis Floral Co., where some of the most wonderful cucumbers in the country are grown under glass. Both the visiting and local florists were much interested in the crop and the manner of its preparation for the market, as this use of the greenhouse is entirely foreign to most of them. Leaving here, they were whisked down river to the Bettendorf conservatory to see what Mr. Pearson, the superintendent, had accomplished in such a short time, and also to look over the conservatory structure, which was but recently completed by the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. Next the park conservatories were visited and the out-of-town florists were shown the natural landscape wonders of Camp McClellan, the beautiful residence district of Davenport.

By this time it was noon, and, much to the surprise of all, after visiting the greenhouses of Ludwig Stapp, they were ushered into the packing and shipping room, where they found literally piles of sandwiches of every known variety, huge kettles of sauerkraut and an unlimited supply of Frankfurters. There were also liquid refreshments in a variety to suit all tastes. The time and the place seemed to lend themselves to oratory, and at the suggestion of President Johnson, P. J. Foley, on behalf of the state association, thanked Mr. Stapp for his hospitality and the Tri-City Florists' Club for its highly successful efforts to entertain the visitors. Mr. Foley was followed in turn by George Asmus, of Chicago, J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, Harry Bills, of Davenport, J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, John Staack, of Moline, A. C. Kohlbrand, of Chicago, and William Goos, of Bettendorf.

The party then motored to Moline, where, after seeing the results of Arvid Anderson's work on the Deere estate, it was taken to the establishment of J. Staack & Sons. Here coffee and an unlimited supply of other good things were served to the accompaniment of music. The ever ready automobiles then speeded the guests to their respective hotels.

Various Notes.

Three new Moninger houses, each 34x300 feet, will soon be added to the range of Ludwig Stapp, Rock Island. The material is on the ground.

A good plant business is reported by M. A. Tierney, proprietor of the Bills Floral Co., Davenport. Funeral work, also, has been heavier than usual.

According to Mrs. Forber, of Forber & Bird, Davenport, that firm has proved to its satisfaction that it pays to advertise. The demand for corsages, she says, has been greater during the last few weeks than for several months.

Joseph Tuckis, proprietor of the Flower Shop, Rock Island, always has an eye open. At the close of the state convention he bought the entire supply display of the A. L. Randall Co. As a result, he is showing a splendid line of novel baskets. Mr. Tuckis has only been in the trade four months, but he already has enough business to keep himself and two assistants busy.

Henry Gaethje, Rock Island, says orders for flowering shrubs and landscape work are beginning to come in already.

William Knees & Sons, Moline, are growing a particularly excellent lot of pot plants this year, and experience little difficulty in disposing of them locally.

Henry H. Hensley, Rock Island, says cut flower trade has been active with him. Corsages and gift boxes have been selling well.

J. Staack & Sons, Moline, according to John Staack, are prepared for a big year. They expect 1916 to be a banner year for the trade, and so far it has made good with them.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Ball at St. Paul.

The Minneapolis florists had a fine time at the ball held in St. Paul. All the world and his wife were there. Mr. and Mrs. Will and Mr. and Mrs. Olson, of St. Paul, were at home, extending good wishes and greetings to all comers. Mr. Holm was an able master of ceremonies. Miss H. B. Whitted, of Minneapolis, took eleven of her staff, using a limousine and the new car—some car; it cannot be beat; a sure proof of profits in flowers. All the boys wore suitable coat flowers and the ladies wore corsage bouquets of appropriate flowers. Everyone had a fine time and all were pleased with the dinner, which was served by the St. Paul ladies and was a proof that cookery and flowers are dual occupations. They saw to it that flowers were tabled with excellent taste side by side with tasty cookery.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Ruedlinger, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Desmond, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Wirth, Mr. and Mrs. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Will.

By the way, some of the boys were like Oliver Twist in "Pickwick Papers," and wanted more, not because they did not get enough, but, as one expressed it, "I would take a chance on banner cooking like that if I bust for it."

Various Notes.

Weather conditions are still severe. The sun comes out brightly at times and then bulbous stock insists on blooming.

For the Baby week show O. E. Amundson had a nice window display consisting of prettily arranged baskets of flowers. A place of honor was given to a basket of yellow crocuses.

T. S. Lynes is back again after a severe illness. He always carries an A 1 quality of flowers.

The A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, had a tasteful display of goods at the Radisson hotel. The energetic representatives of the firm were pushing and getting business. If the house supports the travelers with the same vim, great business will be done.

"If in business you would rise, either bust or advertise." Minneapolis florists are believers in this motto. Bulbous stock is plentiful, ranging from 1½ to 3 cents for first-class stock.

The Merriam Park Nurseries have 30,000 lilies in course of preparation for Easter. They are in good shape.

Last year several growers rather reduced the value of their lilies for want of space. Crowding is not good for them.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. has a fine stock of young geraniums and bedding plants.

Growers of tulips complain a great deal of poor results. In some cases half of the stock has come blind. Sweet peas are now coming in freely. With the exception of Yarrawa, the grandiflora types are the only ones that will bloom with the ice on the glass and the temperature from 10 to 35 degrees below zero. Yarrawa is a magnificent winter-flowering sweet pea. I have seen it here in fine shape, with flower stems a foot long, when the outside temperature was 35 degrees below. Many varieties are winter budders; this is a winter bloomer. F. E. B.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The advent of Lent last week did not affect the market to any extent. The demand in all lines has continued steady and the supply, while not large, is moving well. Carnations, instead of becoming cheaper, have risen in price, especially the fancy, light-colored varieties. Red and novelty colors remain the same. Daffodils are arriving more heavily and selling at a slightly lower price. Valley is shorter in supply but sufficient for all demands. Roses are fairly plentiful and white was offered in quantities for the first time in weeks. Single violets are moving slowly, but doubles sell satisfactorily. Bulbous stock is becoming more plentiful and the prices have receded somewhat. Smilax is scarce and only poor, thin strings are to be had.

Club Meeting and Banquet.

The annual election of officers for the ensuing club year took place at the regular meeting of the Florists' Club, held March 13, and was followed by an elaborate banquet at Hotel Rennert. The following were elected to office: President, James Hamilton; vice-president, Albert Fiedler; corresponding secretary, N. F. Flitton; financial secretary, George Talbot; treasurer, Fred. G. Burger; librarian, C. M. Wagner. The club's attendance as a body at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia was brought up and it was decided to leave the date to the committee in charge. This will be arranged at an early date and members duly notified.

The banquet was a decidedly successful one, and was well attended. The hall was nicely decorated and reflected credit on those who donated the flowers and on Robert W. Johnston and William E. Seidewitz, who tastefully executed the decoration. Robert L. Graham was an efficient toastmaster and everything passed smoothly. The officers made a plea for better attendances and many of the members spoke.

Various Notes.

E. A. Seidewitz had a most effective decoration last week. A well-known merchant celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary at a local club, and his country home and grounds were reproduced on the stage of the banquet hall. The arrangement was admirable, the smallest detail being carried out, even to the extent of having a hen and a brood of young chicks running around. Spring flowers were used on the table and the entire effect was striking.

Max Forthuber, of the Parkway Flower Shop, while teaching a new man how to handle the delivery car, saw himself in imminent danger of a collision and pulled the emergency brake in such haste that the gears were broken. The damage amounted to about $50 and a temporary loss of the use of the machine.

Frederick C. Bauer is cutting some of his well-grown Radiance roses. These have become well known in the local trade and have been appropriately nicknamed Pink Beauties.

D. T. Connor, of Philadelphia, was a caller this week.

Posters announcing the National Flower Show at Philadelphia are making their appearance on the local billboards and the railroads are advertising extensively. The committee in charge of arrangements of the local club is pushing things along and Baltimore is assured of a large representation at the show.

The club has recognized Billy Sunday officially and is making arrangements to attend the evangelist's meetings in a body. Robert L. Graham is taking an active part in this affair and all members wishing to attend would do well to notify him of the number they wish to bring, in order that reservations may be made. The date will be decided upon shortly and members notified.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The market conditions of last week were rather irregular, with but a slight change from those of the week previous. Beauties, of course, are at a premium. Other varieties of roses, such as the Killarneys, are now at their best both in length and color. Carnations are rapidly accumulating and meeting but a small demand, the quality being poor. Bulbous stock is not moving so well, and there is an oversupply of it. Choice sweet peas now are to be had. Valley and orchids are decidedly scarce, but mignonette, myosotis and daisies are plentiful. Freesias, too, are sufficient for present requirements. Violets are about the same, the singles continuing to be as scarce as ever. Lilacs as yet remain scarce. Greens are plentiful and of good quality.

Various Notes.

Recent visitors were William Dykes, with Edward Jansen, New York; Robert Greenlaw, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia; L. B. Bryant, of Cambridge, Mass.; August Rölker, of New York.

A. J. Reichert had the management of the decorations for the Orpheus ball at the Broadway Auditorium last week.

One of the week's visitors was A. J. Baur, of the Baur Floral Co., Erie, Pa.

The Florists' Club's banquet, which was held at the Hofbrau, Tuesday, March 7, was well attended. The annual election of officers resulted as follows: President, Emil Brucker; vice-president, William Sievers; secretary, William Legg; financial secretary, Mark Palmer; treasurer, Edward Stroh. Many application blanks were filled out for new members. A committee of five was appointed to hold a special meeting in regard to the Elks' flower and fashion show, which they all assure me will be one grand success from start to finish.

OBITUARY

Edward O. Lovell.

Edward O. Lovell, of Grand Forks, N. D., died March 7, at the age of 75, death resulting from a complication of diseases. The deceased was born in Boston and moved to St. Paul, Minn., about thirty years ago. Twenty years ago he moved with his family to Grand Forks, where he started and built up one of the most flourishing florists' establishments in that part of the state. He is survived by his wife, a sister and two sons. The business will be continued by the heirs.

Joseph H. Cunningham.

Jos. H. Cunningham, one of the largest growers of primulas, pansies and ferns in Ohio, died at his home, Delaware, O., March 4, at the age of 59.

His first work as a florist was with George W. Campbell, at Delaware, O., the grower of the famous Delaware grape. After seven years of work in that field, Mr. Cunningham started the present establishment, in about 1885, on a small scale and in a retail way. Gradually he increased the business and entered the wholesale field, which department now is the more important. He was especially well known for his success in growing primulas.

Mr. Cunningham was a man of genial personality and generous disposition, living and believing in those principles which now are often termed old-fashioned. He was a Republican and served four years as a member of the city council. He is survived by his wife, Emma J. Cunningham, two daughters, Marian L. Cunningham and Mrs. Fred Duffey, and two sons, Eugene J. Cunningham and George W. Cunningham. The business will be continued along the same lines, under the management of his son, George W. Cunningham.

Lyman T. Curtis.

Lyman T. Curtis, one of Michigan's pioneer nurserymen and proprietor of the Genesee County Nurseries, of Flint, Mich., died March 2 at his home near Flint, following a month's illness of a complication of diseases. The deceased was born at Flint, December 16, 1843, and in 1886 started his nursery. He first cultivated fruit trees, but later enlarged his business to include shrubs and plants. He is survived by his wife and five children. Two of the sons will continue the business.

August Krueger.

August Krueger, who for thirty-six years conducted a florists' business at Meadville, Pa., died at his home in Meadville on the night of February 25. He had been in poor health for some time, but his final serious illness covered a period of only about one week. Mr. Krueger was born in Germany in 1841, and after serving in the Franco-Prussian war he immigrated to America, Buffalo, N. Y., being his first stop. In 1881 he purchased the greenhouses of Herman Munz, at Meadville, Pa., which then, as now, were known as the Greendale Conservatories. Mr. Krueger was successful in his business and retired some years ago, being succeeded by his son, Henry J. Krueger. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, his son and two brothers and a sister in Germany.

John P. Murphy.

John P. Murphy, well-known florist and seedsman of Iowa, died at his home in Waterloo, March 5, after an illness of several months' duration. Mr. Murphy was born in Wisconsin in 1854. He started a greenhouse business with his brother-in-law, Walter S. Hall, at Osage, Ia., but later he went into business for himself at Independence. Here he was highly successful and built up a good business. About a year ago, on account of his failing health, Mr. Murphy traded his business for a farm near Waterloo, where he lived last summer. He is survived by his wife and 5-year-old son, John Paul.

Asa Eldridge Brown.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, with regret announce the death of their cashier, Asa Eldridge Brown, Thursday, March 9. Mr. Brown was born in New York city, September 29, 1854. In 1882 he took a position with W. Atlee Burpee & Co., who were then located at 221 Church street, Philadelphia. After attaining practical experience in the different departments of the business, Mr. Brown was made cashier and this position he occupied up to the time of his death.

Mr. Brown had a wide acquaintance among the seed trade and many times represented the firm at the annual conventions of the American Seed Trade Association. Mr. Brown leaves no children, but a widow and a host of friends who mourn his loss.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Staging Days.

Many of the trade visitors to the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, will be unable to devote the entire week to it and will wish to see the show on the days devoted to their own specialty. Here are the staging dates:

SATURDAY, MARCH 25.

Plants in Flower—Private Growers. Nos. 1 to 65 inclusive.
Cut Flowers—Private Growers. Nos. 66, 67.
Palms and Foliage Plants—Private Growers. Nos. 75 to 102 inclusive.
Ferns and Selaginellas—Private Growers. Nos. 110 to 124 inclusive.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE ground hog proved a faithful prophet this year, all right, but his time is up. Spring is due and we want our dues.

CYPRESS is one of the few items entering into greenhouse construction and maintenance which has not advanced materially in price; the rise on tank grade air-dried cypress lumber is only about five per cent.

WE can see the reason for calling Mme. Paul Euler rose by the easier name of Prima Donna, or, perhaps, for rechristening for retail purposes Antoine Rivoire as Mrs. Taft, but with Ophelia why call it Lady Love, as is done in England?

STOCK for Easter is likely to lack something of the usual variety this year. The date of Easter coming so late, the latest Easter between 1886 and 1943, many plants will be past their season. Bulbous stock already is on the wane; so are azaleas; violets will be gone. It looks as though the rose and carnation growers should profit by good crops.

ACCORDING to George Sykes, western manager for Lord & Burnham Co., one of the chief reasons why greenhouse building concerns have been able to hold their prices down the way they have this season is that the economies of standardization are just beginning to be realized. The houses now being built are nearly all standard width, instead of the random widths of other years. The result is steel and other material was bought to cut without waste and was worked up for stock with economy all along the line.

OUR LINGERING WINTER.

The March wind blows over melting snows,
The air is soft in the woodland glen;
'Tis the time o' year when spring is here—
If it doesn't get cold and snow again.

The song o' the bird again is heard,
And one flits over you now and then;
You say, "Ah, soon they'll be all in tune—
If it doesn't get cold and snow again."

The March sun gleams over flooded streams,
The snow is gone from hillside and glen;
'Tis the time o' year when spring is here—
If it doesn't get cold and snow again.
—Chicago Tribune.

MOTHER AND ST. PATRICK.

Mothers' day is so new an institution that all sorts of liberties are being taken with it. For instance, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Indiana has taken it upon himself to change the date of Mothers' day this year, combining its observance with St. Patrick's day, March 17. He has issued a long letter to the school teachers of Indiana with reference to the matter. Least objectionable is his request that a collection be taken on that day to erect a memorial to the pioneer mother; what the trade objects to is the confusion created by an attempt to designate as Mothers' day any other day than the second Sunday in May.

AGAIN, CAN YOU BEAT IT?

Week after week the evidence piles up that there is no means by which a florist can sell his stock at wholesale so quickly and at so little cost as by advertising it in The Review. Indeed, the splendid volume of advertising carried proves the point without such letters as the following:

We are just flooded with orders, thanks to The Review; shall have to return checks to several whose orders cannot be filled.—Charles Taynor, New Carlisle, O., March 2, 1916.

Please discontinue our ad, as we have sold out 90,000 vincas and cannot supply any more. All anybody needs is the goods, the price and an ad in The Review; business begins right away.—Lampert Floral Co., Xenia, O., March 7, 1916.

Anyone who takes the trouble can check up and find that the Lampert ad, five lines in the Classified department, had appeared five times when this letter was written; total cost, $2.50. (The ad appeared a sixth time in the issue printed the day the letter was on its way from Xenia to Chicago.) The ad offered stock at 60 cents per hundred, $5.50 per thousand. If all were sold at the thousand rate the sales footed up $495. On an advertising expenditure of $2.50! Again, can you beat it?

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

THE GLASS MARKET.

The window glass market is an unknown quantity. Prices have advanced, but not so much as conditions seem to indicate soon will be the case. The end of the manufacturing season is not far away, and there are no large stocks of greenhouse sizes in the hands of manufacturers; most of the stocks are held by jobbers or material mills that bought early and are using their ability to supply glass as a means of securing contracts for other work. The glass factories are having trouble with labor, not only on the question of wages but in the matter of cutting the small sizes required for greenhouse use; the men make more money cutting larger sizes. Also potash, an essential for glass-making, is difficult to obtain, and many factories soon must close for its lack. It is stated the largest manufacturer has instructed all branch managers that no further sales are to be made without reference to the head office, indicating that if price and specifications are not regarded with favor the business will be declined.

THE NEW ROSE ANNUAL.

The Annual of the American Rose Society for 1916, edited by J. Horace McFarland and published by the Mount Pleasant Press, made its appearance last week and made good the advance notices. It is quite the most attractive book ever issued by a special flower society or horticultural trades organization in this country and should go far toward the great desideratum, the increase of membership, for there must be thousands of garden lovers in this country who will remit $1 yearly for associate membership when it brings to them a substantial volume of this character and contents. The book is bound in cloth-covered boards and every page of the 180 within those covers carries something of interest. The editor of The Review cannot remember ever to have read one-tenth as much of any other annual, of this or any other society, as he has read of this volume compiled by Mr. McFarland. It is good all the way through. One of the best features is that none of the articles is long; one can get through the least interesting of them without becoming wearied. While the book was designed primarily for the nonprofessional grower, there is much in it bearing directly on trade affairs. For instance:

The Future of the Commercial Growing of Roses for Cut Flowers, by Wallace R. Pierson.
A Review of the Standard and Newer Varieties of Roses for Forcing, by Charles H. Totty.
Commercial Rose Growing, by John Welsh Young.
The Growing of the Best Cut Flowers, by William F. Gude.
What the Wholesaler Looks For in the Handling of Roses as Cut Flowers, by Samuel S. Pennock.

The announcement is made that the same capable management will issue another and even better Rose Annual February 15, 1917. By rosarians it will be awaited with impatience.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There is nothing in the existing market conditions to give rise to complaint. And though the Lenten season is now on, there has not been the appreciable falling off in demand generally expected. This is quite probably attributed to the preponderance of cold days over mild.

One of the most striking features of the market is the changed complexion of the Beauty situation. The spring crops are beginning to come in, with the result that prices are more or less uncertain, with a downward tendency in long and medium length stock. Short-stemmed stock is already considerably lower. Other roses are in slightly better supply than they were last week, but they are experiencing a relatively stronger demand. Russell and Milady seem to lead in popularity, though Ophelia and Sunburst are meeting with a ready sale. White roses have not been moving as well as they should. The heaviest call in all varieties is for the shorter lengths.

As a result of St. Patrick's day de-

We Offer You Mrs. Russell

YOU, no doubt, are well posted on this new Rose that so many buyers prefer. We always have the largest supply to be found anywhere, and the present crops are unusually large and fine. We offer in quantity

All lengths, 4c to 25c

Also specially good crops of Killarney Brilliant and Ophelia. Good supplies of Milady, The Killarneys, Richmond, Ward and Sunburst.

Fancy Spencer Peas

You can push Sweet Peas for corsage and other work with the assurance we shall be able to keep you supplied from this time on. We have all colors in quantity, long, medium, short, and the prices are reasonable. Use them in quantity; they will sell splendidly.

Easter Lilies, $8.00 per 100

Our Giganteum Lilies are home-grown, from the best bulbs money will buy; cut so you can keep them several days if necessary. Better arrange for shipments of a certain number per week.

Fancy Carnations

The quality of our Carnations is extremely good and the supply is the largest of the season to date—we can fill all orders.

Jonquils

Emperor is the best Jonquil on the market today. We have a large supply and offer them at moderate prices. Also plenty of Daffs and Tulips.

Freesia

You will like our Freesia, especially the Rainbow Freesia, offered in a dozen bright colors. Try a shipment at $3.00 per 100; you'll be back for more.

Beauties

As good as the market affords; a large supply.

Violets

A very large supply; prices extremely reasonable.

FANCY FERNS

We pride ourselves on the quality of our hardy cut ferns. If your supply is not entirely satisfactory, try ours.

mand, white carnations took a jump March 10 and continued to bring high prices during the present week. The supply of carnations, though by no means unusually large, is about sufficient to meet the demand at the price. It has been noted with satisfaction by the wholesalers that the percentage of splits now being received is comparatively small.

Though plentiful, violets are moving with exasperating slowness. Jonquils continue to clear. Tulips are in shorter supply and are moved without difficulty. Freesia, however, does not move as rapidly as one would like. Sweet peas are still a lead item and much excellent, long-stemmed stock is offered. It might sell better. Valley is again equal to the demand. Pansies, calendulas, snapdragons, mignonette and daisies are available, but there is no great clamor for them. Easter lilies are inclining to the short side of the market and are clearing accordingly. Cattleyas are equal to the daily requirements.

Of greens, adiantum and smilax are alone on the short side. The call for decorative stock is keeping pace with the general demand.

Club Meeting.

The Chicago Florists' Club seldom has had a more interesting meeting than that of March 9, for which the sixty or seventy members present are indebted to H. N. Tolles, of the Sheldon organization. Mr. Tolles talked for more than an hour, discussing modern methods of reaching results in business. Summing up, he said success follows in proportion as one knows himself, knows his business, knows human nature and applies what one knows. One bit of advice worth a larger audience was that, in making an appeal to vanity, the speaker or writer should use "soft soap" sparingly, "for," said Mr. Tolles, "almost everyone knows soft soap is nine-tenths lye, and lies have no place in business."

The address was so well liked that a bid was made for a lecturer from the Sheldon organization to give a special course for a fee, the series being open to club members only. Something more may be heard of it later.

J. A. Valentine, of Denver, and J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, will join the Chicago party.

A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis; S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia; W. A. Manda, of South Orange, N. J.; Wm. Graham, Peter Schaefer and D. D. P. Roy, of Chicago, were elected to membership. The application of Peter Crowe, of Morton Grove, was received.

The tables were made bright with large vases of Canna Firebird, flowered in the greenhouses at Western Springs and never shown in finer shape.

The raffle of the silver punch bowl, announced for the night, was postponed for a month because those who hold tickets did not wish to bar anyone from participating.

Retailers' Company Sues Stockholders.

Acting as attorney for the Retail Florists' Co., the coöperative buying corporation organized within the membership of the Retail Florists' Association, Morton H. Eddy, 109 North Dearborn street, filed suit in the Municipal court March 10 against eight of the stockholders of the company, as follows:

Leonard J. Stankowicz, 2928 Milwaukee avenue.
Emil Jehlik, 1825 Ashland avenue.
Lawrence A. Jensen, 5305 West Chicago avenue.
Vaclav A. Kohout, 3212 West Twenty-second street.
Karel Moravek, 3226 Ogden avenue.
Joseph Papacek, 3222 Morgan street.
Joseph L. Raske, 170 West Jackson boulevard.
William F. Schofield, 734 North State street.

It is alleged in each suit that "the defendant subscribed for two shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff corporation prior to the issuance of its charter on to-wit: April 6, 1915, the par value of each share of said stock being $50; that though often requested to do so, said defendant has not paid for said stock, and that there is now due and owing on said stock subscription a balance of $80, payments having been made as follows, to-wit: April 1, 1915, $10; June 8, 1915, $10; that a demand for the same was made by mail January 31, A. D. 1916."

The summons in each case is returnable March 30.

Various Notes.

American Beauty not only is going, but is going fast. Following reports from other growers who are reducing the space given this former leader, Felix Reichling states that no new Beauties will be planted at Peter Reinberg's this season and that all the Beauty plants more than 1 year old will be thrown out, eighteen houses of them. There now are twenty-six houses of Beauties on the place, eight of them replanted last season and to be carried another year. The space in the eighteen houses of Beauties to be thrown out will be given to increased plantings of Russell, White Killarney, Maryland, Richmond and Sunburst, and to Champ Weiland.

H. B. Kennicott, president of Kennicott Bros. Co., and Miss Olive Artelle, of San Francisco, will be quietly married in Rock Island, Ill., March 25. Mr. and Mrs. Kennicott will make their home in Chicago, at 3841 Grand boulevard.

Growers will be interested in the announcement that the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. has taken over the business, stock and premises of the James H. Rice Co., which is being liquidated. The Pittsburgh company shortly will occupy the Rice warehouse, which is large and admirably located, with sidetrack facilities. A few years ago the Rice concern supplied more greenhouse glass than any other in the middle west, but of late years, due to the efforts of A. A. Lavaque, most of this business has gone to the Pittsburgh people.

R. J. Parker and E. W. Siebrecht, both former employees of the A. L. Randall Co. and widely acquainted in the trade, have formed a partnership to act as purchasing agents for out-of-town buyers. Wholesalers nearly all welcome and encourage the appointment of local buying representatives for those at a distance, as it serves to relieve the seller of responsibility in the occasional cases of mishap that always occur in handling a perishable article.

Charles Erne still is flat on his back in Michael Reese hospital, a month after his operation. His general condition is excellent, but one of the incisions has not healed as expected.

When one changes one's mind all sorts of complications sometimes arise, as, for instance, in the case of H. N. Bruns and his British permit to import via Rotterdam 3,000,000 Hamburg valley pips. The date having become so late, Mr. Bruns feared to ship via the Rotterdam boats, which are without cold storage, and ordered the pips sent via Copenhagen, where boats with cold storage are available. But his permit was for Rotterdam and the British consul at Copenhagen, not having been advised, would not o. k. the documents. Result, a resort to the wireless. The tolls at this end alone were $54 before word was received from Washington the London authorities were cabling Copenhagen to let the Bruns shipment pass.

The trade here will be interested to know that C. G. Anderson, who left Morton Grove to take charge of the Minneapolis Floral Co., recently has joined the staff of Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill.

It is an old saying that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country," but William Graham, who since January 1 has been manager of the Fleischman Floral Co., has been sent for to return to his home town of Philadelphia next week to take charge of the decorations and floor arrangements of the National Flower Show.

Carl N. Thomas, who has spent four months in the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., leaves March 18 for his home at West Springfield, Pa., to begin the season's farming operations.

A new flower store has been opened at 3161 Milwaukee avenue by Miss F. Lenetty.

Talk about carrying coals to Newcastle, the A. L. Randall Co. has arranged for space for a trades' display of florists' supplies at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. R. E. Blackshaw will be in charge. F. M. Johnson plans to run down for a day.

One is almost persuaded that C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, contracted the west coast fever during his visit to California last summer, as he is making preparations for another trip to Pasadena, in company with Mrs. Washburn, starting March 24.

Among those who plan to attend the National Flower Show are W. J. Smyth, Mrs. Smyth and their daughter. It seems that quite a few will go for the closing days of the show, instead of for the opening.

Returning March 9 from the Tri-Cities, where he attended the meeting of the State Florists' Association, Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, left for Toledo, O., the following day to attend the national bowling tournament of the American Bowling Congress. While there he combined business with pleasure, returning to Chicago March 13. Mrs. Zech is visiting relatives in Rock Island.

A fire, early March 10, destroyed a frame barn in the rear of the home of Michael Wiltgen, 502 Florence avenue, Evanston. An automobile and two horses were also destroyed. The loss has been estimated at $5,000.

The increased salability of tulips is commented on by A. T. Pyfer, who says he believes the small receipts in wholesale houses is accounted for more because of growers' ability to sell at retail than by decreased number of bulbs successfully forced. He says he knows several who sent much of their output to the wholesale market last year who are retailing nearly all of it this season, among them Pyfer & Olsem, of Wilmette.

Out on Gunnison street Peter Pearson has had the best winter season in his experience and is ready for a big spring business. He is developing two separate branches of the business, one local retail and the other wholesale shipping in seeds, plants and bulbs.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., notes that, while last week was not what could be called brisk in the market, the arrival of Lent was almost imperceptible; he says he has ceased to regard it as a market factor.

C. B. Arnold, secretary of the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., is driving a new Marmon car. Light delivery trucks have been ordered to replace the concern's horse delivery.

The shipping department of J. A. Budlong will have to move with alacrity during the next two weeks, as Roswell Schupp, son of Manager Schupp, has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., for a fortnight's vacation.

The general appearance of the new display room of O. A. & L. A. Tonner has been greatly enhanced by the addition of an outfit of golden oak fixtures.

R. R. McGill, until recently with the W. W. Barnard Co., has retired from commercial life and moved to his farm near Fredericks Hall, Va. Mr. McGill says, however, that he expects to erect a small greenhouse on his place and intimates that the one house may be the beginning of a greenhouse business.

A. Steffeter, the New City Florist, started only a few years ago with a small shop in the neighborhood of Forty-ninth street and South Ashland avenue. Business was good and he enlarged his quarters several times. Recently he purchased a fine refrigerator and new fixtures for his establishment at 4918 South Ashland avenue. CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The market has a supply of stock sufficient for all demands. Occasionally, however, the demand is so strong that nearly everything is cleaned up quickly, but such occasions are followed by days on which stock tends to accumulate. Shipping business is good. Flowers for spring openings are helping business greatly. With the exception of carnations, which are just about equal to the demand, everything is plentiful and, generally, of good quality. This is particularly true of roses, Easter lilies, valley and bulbous stock. Wild smilax is meeting with a fair call. Some amaryllis from the south was offered last week.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held Monday evening, March 13, President C. E. Critchell presiding. Henry Schwarz, Alex. Ostendarp and Charles H. Hoffmeister were appointed a committee to draw up resolutions on the death of the late president, Max Rudolph. A committee consisting of Mr. Hoffmeister as chairman, J. A. Peterson and Henry Shepard was appointed to confer with the leaders of the new seedsmen's club, relative to bringing them into the society. The judging committee, consisting of R. Witterstaetter and Henry Schwarz, awarded Lemon & Co., of Richmond, Ind., a certificate of merit for its exhibit of Primula malacoides rosea. All present were favorably impressed with the specimens shown. Richard Kootz introduced Wm. Vatorp, formerly of Boston, but now with the force of the E. G. Hill Co.

Various Notes.

Local florists, headed by C. E. Critchell, J. A. Peterson and Alexander Ostendarp, have arranged to entertain President MacRorie, of the S. A. F., and his party, when they visit Cincinnati next week.

L. H. Kyrk had some tough luck and good luck last Sunday, when he was wedged by pickpockets. They seized his card case instead of his pocketbook, for which they aimed.

P. J. Olinger lost 1,000 panes of glass in the hail storm of last Monday. Fortunately, his growing stock was not seriously damaged.

W. Ray Murphy has sold his greenhouses to L. L. Murphy and is devoting all his time to the business of the Wm. Murphy Co.

L. Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., have been shipping some excellent Killarney and Shawyer roses into this city.

Recent visitors were Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Beckman, of Middletown, O., and J. T. Herdigen, of Aurora, Ind.

The Market.

The Lenten season so far has been quite satisfactory, as business has held right up to that of the weeks preceding Lent. There has been just about enough stock so that it has cleaned up nicely, to the great satisfaction of the wholesalers. The opening of the new Penn hotel has contributed largely to the business, requiring flowers for a number of large banquets, besides the general decorations, which are being kept up, both in plants and cut flowers. The retail stores seem to be quite busy and are not complaining of any Lenten slump.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting March 7, with the new president, Carl Becherer, in the chair. There was a good attendance, with plenty of enthusiasm. The subject for the evening was "Carnations."

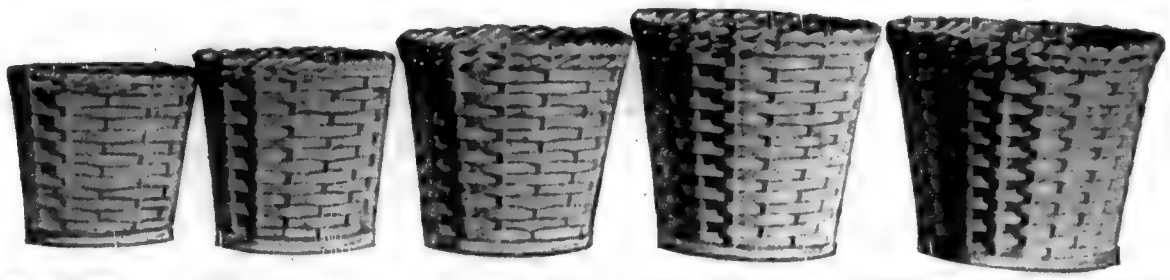
Bassett & Washburn, of Chicago, sent their carnation, Belle Washburn, a splendid red, just the right shade, with long, strong stems and good form. It was well received.

The E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., sent Alice Coombs, which was thought to be one of the best of the light, Enchantress-colored pinks shown.

There was also an exhibit of Peach Blossom, a pretty, small, Enchantress-colored variety, from an eastern grower whose name I did not get.

Some of the local growers exhibited splendid flowers, as well as tulip and hyacinth plants. Altogether, the exhibition was a creditable one.

The members presented to Neil McCallum, the retiring president, a gold medal, as a slight token of their appreciation of his splendid services during the last two years.



There seemed to be the best of feeling toward the new president and no doubt we shall have some splendid shows at future meetings, especially as the president himself is an expert grower.

One of the features of the evening was a large seal of Pittsburgh, four feet in diameter, made by Pasquale Fabbazzi, 167 Meadow street. The design was splendidly executed, both as to form and color. The immortelles were pasted on singly, in a manner that required much patient work.

Various Notes.

In the rear of the lobby of the new Penn hotel is a large, handsome glass refrigerator, in which Randolph & Mc-

EVANSVILLE, IND.

Business is excellent and there is a good quantity of plants and cut flowers to supply the demand.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having a fine business and good cuts of carnations and sweet peas. During a high wind last week the ventilator fell through the roof of one of the houses, breaking enough glass to keep the help busy for a few hours. It was fortunate that this happened early in the afternoon, so that the roof could be repaired before nightfall.

The William Blackman Floral Co. has its windows well filled with flowering plants and cut flowers. Business has been extra heavy with this concern.

J. C. Elspermann is having much funeral work. He has a fine lot of Easter lilies which will be just about right for Easter. All other stock is in good shape.

The Market.

Lent has not nearly so much effect as the weather on the flower market. That is the way one wholesaler put it, and all the others said that was true. So while the Lenten market opened a little uncertainly, production was so much curtailed by the severe weather that when business came the small accumulation of flowers was rapidly taken at excellent prices. Carnations have been particularly shy, with the added call for Ireland's patron saint's day. Whites have advanced in price from $1 to $2 per hundred over colored carnations of the same quality. Through an error in last week's report, it was made to appear that fancy carnations brought more than select, whereas it should have read that the funny thing was they did not, the buyers then being unwilling to pay more than $4 per hundred for anything, no matter how good. Now they are paying from $5 to $6 for white, with a probable intention, alas, of dyeing them. The colored carnations remain at $3 to $4. Sweet peas are becoming more abundant. They have developed a slight weakness in price, due probably to the expectation that a vast number will come in after the first warm day. The market has been helped, or, perhaps it would be better to say, steadied, by lighter receipts of bulbous flowers, induced by accurate Lenten timing. Asparagus plumosus has become plentiful; really fine stock is in fair demand, but the odds and ends of weak and imperfect sprays bunched together do not go well.

Current Events.

The Robert Craig Co. has completed a large real estate deal, or, it would be more accurate to say, two transactions—one a sale, the other a purchase. The sale was of a 250-foot front on Chestnut street, at an advantageous price. The ground is to be used for a high school. This means that the Robert Craig Co. has sold the remaining half of its frontage on Chestnut street. The purchase made by the company was of a small piece of ground required to square off their Market street front. Some of the greenhouses near Chestnut street will have to be torn down, but most of the place will remain as it now stands, until the company disposes of its Market street front, extending from Forty-ninth street to Fiftieth street. It is probable that when the time comes for this sale the business will be transferred to Norwood, where the large range of greenhouses is located on an extensive property.

Frederick A. Steinhoff has given up the flower store in the Snellenburg department store, at Twelfth and Girard streets. This is bad news for the floral world, as Mr. Steinhoff's ability to move large quantities of plants and flowers has been received with much favor in business circles. Verona & Steinhoff opened their flower store with great eclat in Snellenburg's, in September, 1914. Their idea was flowers at half price. The depressed condition of the market during the entire season that followed, coupled with Mr. Steinhoff's personal popularity, enabled them to carry on a large business successfully. Mr. Verona withdrew at the beginning of the present season. The buoyant market has been unfavorable for quantity buying at low prices for many months. To that cause is ascribed Mr. Steinhoff's retirement. N. Snellenburg & Co. took charge of the flower department this week.

A delightful social entertainment was given in Horticultural hall on the evening of March 11. The Glee and Mandolin Clubs of the William Penn Charter school gave a musical entertainment, to which their friends and the Florists' Club members were bidden. There were about 500 present. Greenhouse Building.

Montague C. Wright has kindly furnished the following list of contracts awarded to the Philadelphia office of the Lord & Burnham Co. It will be noticed that Kennett Square is coming to the fore as a believer in the modern large greenhouse, an evidence of the success of the carnation in Chester county. The list of parties to the contracts follows:

Iron-frame greenhouses—four, each 60x300, for the Seabrook Farms Co., Bridgeton, N. J.; one 18x50, and passage house, for W. S. Duling, Philadelphia; one 20x175, for H. J. Muller, Bala, Pa.; one 33x75, for H. J. Lutcher, of Orange, Tex.; one 18x150, for James Artman, of Narberth, Pa.; conservatory 30x40, for Wm. B. Sheppard, of Merion, Pa.; one 60x300, for Myers & Samtman, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; one 45x400, for Way Bros., Kennett Square, Pa.; one 15x300 and passage house, for the Joseph Heacock Co., Roelofs, Pa.; one 40x400, for Richards Bros., Toughkenamon, Pa.; two each 40x200, for J. Howard Thompson, Kennett Square, Pa.

Materials for pipe-frame greenhouses—one 35x160 and one 20x50, for Elias K. Lefever, Lancaster, Pa.; one 40x140, for M. J. Brinton, Christiana, Pa.; one 35x150, for George Didden, Orvilla, Pa.; two each 30x100, for B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, Pa.; one 37x100, for Philip B. Welsh, Glen Morris, Md.; one 35x200, for Campbell Bros., Penllyn, Pa.

Various Notes.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has contributed generously to the special prizes in next week's National Flower Show. The value of the premiums amounts to more than $300. In addition to this, the concern will be a large exhibitor, both inside the hall and outside.

E. H. Green, of Boonsboro, Md.; C. S. Loeffler, of Lititz, Pa., and William Kleinheinz, of Lynnwood hall, exhibited fine Spencer sweet peas at the Florists' Club meeting last week. The Cottage Gardens Co., of Queens, N. Y., sent a beautiful vase of their new soft-pink carnation, Cottage Maid. The Gude Bros. Co., of Washington, D. C., sent a fine vase of Rose Enchanter. These entries were in addition to those listed last week.

W. F. Lacroix, of Buena, N. J., has entered his fine lilac for the National Flower Show.

Albert Maurer has given up his store at Twentieth street and Columbia avenue. The business has been purchased by G. A. Leins, who will run it as well as his own store at Twenty-ninth and Girard avenue.

Howard Phile has returned from a trip through New England, taken in the interest of H. Bayersdorfer & Co.

The March meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held in the library of Vernon park, March 13. Pupils of the Germantown high school talked about the gardens of Germantown, botany teaching in the school and "Our Gardens."

Are You Going to the Show?

THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, which is to be held in Philadelphia from March 25th to April 2nd, will be the largest attended Flower Show ever held in any part of the country.

Having in mind the past inconveniences the attending florists have had to contend with in receiving mail and answering same, also for a meeting place where their wants and messages could be left, with proper attention given them—we have decided to arrange for all these purposes RIGHT AT THE SHOW. You can leave your address at home c/o The NEIDINGER SERVICE BUREAU, CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, PA. All telegrams, mail or any other business you may care to transact shall be attended to in a prompt and satisfactory manner.

This Bureau has been established for the convenience of all attending florists, whether customer or no customer, as our aim is to make the stay in Philadelphia of every florist as pleasant as possible, and one long to be remembered as the one show where every comfort and convenience was afforded them.

Trust you will make full use of this FREE SERVICE BUREAU while in our city and that on your return you will always remember the courtesy and attention given you in our city.

DON'T FORGET THE ADDRESS ☛ NEIDINGER SERVICE BUREAU

there will be corresponding shading of values. Lent, too, is proving a greater menace to the market than for many years and the retailers are complaining.

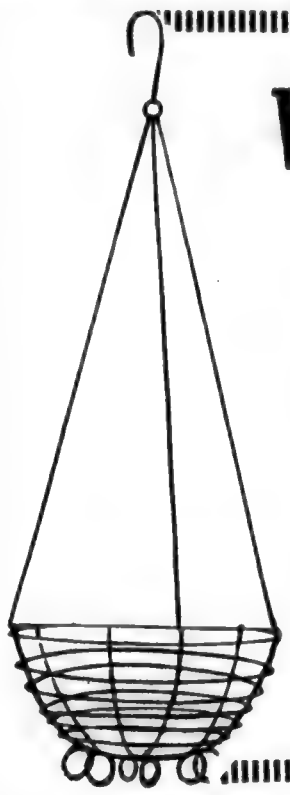
American Beauties have taken quite a tumble. March 11 40 cents each was top figure for the best of them. Hadley ran a tie with American Beauty. Prima Donna, Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant and Hoosier Beauty also were in demand at good prices. The lower grades of roses held quotations the most steadily and were in best demand. The finest carnations did not go above 3 cents last week and $20 per thousand was the quotation in large quantities for any but the novelties. Nothing sold under $10 per thousand, however. Top for valley was $4. The low grades are now falling into the hands of the street merchants. There is a tremendous supply of longiflorum lilies and most of them are deficient in quality. A few sold at 10 cents last week, but most of them went at 6 cents and under. Many orders are being booked at 10 cents for Easter. Callas are abundant and prices are lower than for many weeks.

Cattleyas are holding well at the quotations of the last few weeks. Schroederæ is hard to move. Gardenias have fallen to $2 per dozen. The crop is on. Freesia has had its day. The supply is much smaller. The market last week was not overburdened with tulips, narcissi or daffodils. Sweet peas have to be long-stemmed and perfect to attract buyers. Violets hold steady at low prices, as supply and demand seem to harmonize. There are plenty of daisies, pansies, mignonette, lilac and the other spring flowers and flowering shrubs.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Florists' Club, March 13, was enthusiastic and well attended, over 100 being present, President Weston in the chair.

William Thurston, Charles P. Dudley, Henry W. Thomas and D. C. Arnold were elected to membership, and Albert Lahodney, of Rockville Center; Dennis Kenna, of Brooklyn; Cecil Davis, of Flushing, and John R. Walsh were proposed.



An interesting discussion as to the club's invitation to the S. A. F. to hold its convention in New York in 1917 was opened by J. G. Esler and participated in by Wallace Pierson, R. Koehne, Alex. J. Guttman, John Young, Alex. Burns, C. H. Totty, A. L. Miller, W. H. Siebrecht, F. H. Traendly, H. A. Bunyard, Max Schling, W. A. Manda, Patrick O'Mara and others, after which the motion to invite the society was unanimously carried. Discussion as to the wisdom of elaborate entertainment and the expression of various opinions as to the best interests of the society were features of the evening.

A. L. Miller reported final arrangements for the trip to Philadelphia March 28 and T. B. De Forest reported on the arrangements for the annual dinner April 28.

The ex-presidents of the club have founded an association and arrived late at the meeting after their first dinner, at Castle Cave. The organizers were Alex. Burns, P. O'Mara, C. H. Totty, W. F. Sheridan, F. H. Traendly, W. H. Siebrecht, A. L. Miller, H. A. Bunyard and Joseph Manda.

Emil Schloss explained his coöperative scheme, whereby all branches of the florists' trade can, he said, be made mutually helpful.

Although it was rose night, the only rose on exhibition was a vase of Mme.

Van Waveren & Sons, of Holland, showed their giant bicolor trumpet narcissus, also Mignon Poetaz. All exhibits received the thanks of the club.

William Debue, a new member, and Alex. Burns each made brief and interesting addresses. Chairman Hildenbrand and his assistants provided the usual refreshments.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club will enjoy its annual dinner, Saturday evening, April 8, at the Hotel Biltmore, tickets $5. Chairman De Forest calls the celebration a "Din-Dan" and promises much dancing. He has issued a strikingly original announcement of the affair.

M. Block, one of Reed & Keller's force, was married March 12, his bride being Miss M. Spiro, of Spotswood, N. J. The young folks are spending their honeymoon at Atlantic City.

A fire last week in Reed & Keller's basket factory did a damage of $1,000, fully covered by insurance. The firm will occupy a building on West Twenty-sixth street until repairs are completed.

John Einsel, for many years buyer for Stumpp, at Fifth avenue and Fifty-eighth street, has joined the staff of P. J. Smith.

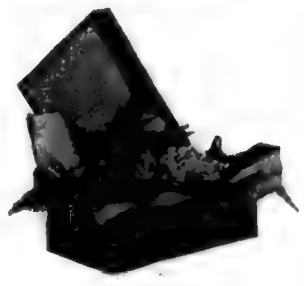
R. J. Irwin returned March 11 from a successful trip.

Chairman Miller says there will be a record invasion of New Yorkers March 28, when the local delegation goes to the Philadelphia show. The train leaves at 10 a. m. and it is hard to find anyone who does not intend to go.

Hugo Jahn was again elected president of the Greater New York Florists' Association at its annual meeting. George W. Crawbuck was reelected manager.

Shamrocks in pots are in every retail window of the city and in most of the wholesalers' windows. There has been a phenomenal sale for them. The display of green roses and carnations is much lighter than usual.

Many of the wholesale florists will handle flowering plants for Easter.



Thomas J. Martin, foreman for Traendly & Schenck, is at Otisville, N. Y.

E. C. Horan is again at his headquarters, after several weeks of severe illness.

George Hildenbrand, of John Young & Co., has been serving his country as a juryman.

Owing to the unfavorable weather, the auction sales of plants by the MacNiff Horticultural Co. were postponed until March 14 and 17. The store is now complete. There will be two auctions at the same time. Importations are arriving daily. Some idea of the immensity of this auction enterprise may be gathered from the fact that Mr. MacNiff has sold over $6,000

LANCASTER, PA.

During the last several weeks the many cold nights were responsible for a big reduction in the coal piles. A bright, sunny day has been, indeed, a rarity.

The event of the week was the talk of Maurice Fuld, of the Knight & Struck Co., New York, before the members of the Iris Club of Lancaster. Through the efforts of Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Mr. Fuld's services were obtained.

of P. K. Murphy, of Cleveland, as store man and decorator. Mr. Murphy had some attractive window displays last week.

I regret to record the death of Mrs. Peter Brown, wife of our well-known geranium and pansy specialist, which occurred March 6, after an illness of six weeks.

Elmer J. Weaver, of Ronks, Pa., assisted in entertaining the members of the Pennsylvania Apiary Association, who convened in Lancaster last week. Mr. Weaver is an authority on bees.

The Rosery has added an attractive seed department to its store. Dreer's flower seeds and Schell's vegetable seeds are handled.

H. A. Schroyer in the near future will add an automobile to his delivery system.

Lancaster's new flower store, the Rose Shop, Charles F. Edgar, manager, held its formal opening March 7, which was largely attended. The store is modern and thoroughly equipped, and ranks among the best of the state.

H. D. Rohrer had a fine sale of shamrocks for St. Patrick's day.

The visiting trip of the Florists' Club to establishments at Christiana was made March 16. H. K. R.

The Market.

Lent brought with it an extra production of flowers and a general slump in sales. Social events of all kinds have been called off, at least for the present, but the dealers expect a revival of business before the close of the month. The curtailment of the demand caused prices to drop far below normal, and sweet peas, which brought up to $2 per hundred early last week, quickly dropped to $5 per thousand. They are far more plentiful and of as fine quality as have ever been seen in this market. American Beauty roses are now more plentiful and can be had at $2 per dozen, the highest price being $6 for extra select stock. Other good roses run from $8 per hundred down to whatever price the purchaser wishes to offer, for in many instances, where quantities are involved, no reasonable price is refused. Carnations are not plentiful, but in view of the condition of the market there are enough to go around. Violets are practically off crop, but their passing is not noticed and their place is well filled by the oversupply of sweet peas. Gardenias are becoming more plentiful. The orchid situation locally remains unchanged and practically all of the stock is coming in from more northern points. Jonquils remain low in price, but have been meeting with a fair sale. There is any quantity of Easter lilies of extra fine quality, but up to this time the price has remained stable at $12.50 per hundred. The market is filled with good blooming plants.

Club Meeting.

R. Lloyd Jenkins, of Anacostia, was unanimously elected president of the Florists' Club at the monthly meeting held March 7. The other officers elected were: Vice-president, Adolph Gude; secretary, Clarence L. Linz; treasurer, William F. Gude. The latter two officers were reëlected, as were the following members of the executive committee: George Field, Adolph Gude, Theodore Diedrich, George H. Cooke, David Bisset and William H. Ernest.

The surprise of the evening was the presentation by William F. Gude, on behalf of the other members of the club, of a handsome sterling silver bread tray to the retiring president, George H. Cooke. Mr. Cooke responded in a neat speech.

George W. Hess also was taken unawares, for by a unanimous vote his name was transferred to the list of honorary members.

William F. Ekas, of Baltimore, Md., was present as representative of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of that city, to confer with the members of the Washington club with respect to the trip to be made to the flower show at Philadelphia. He stated that the Baltimore party would join with the Washingtonians when the special train to be engaged by the latter reaches their city.

Harry B. Lewis, chairman of the transportation committee, announced that arrangements have been made to leave at 9 a. m. Monday, March 27, over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The fare is $3.40, one way, with 75 cents additional for parlor car. Mr. Lewis stated that nearly 100 will go from Washington.

Action was taken on a resolution offered by Mr. Gude providing for entering a team in the bowling tournament to be held under the auspices of the Atlantic Coast Bowling League, of which he is the president, which commences April 2. William H. Ernest was selected to captain the local team.

Following the business meeting refreshments were served. Among those present were William E. McKissick, Baltimore manager for the Leo Niessen Co.

The Market.

The market has greatly improved in regard to supply and quality of stock. The demand fell off considerably last week owing to the opening of the Lenten season, which always affects the trade somewhat. Transient trade, among the downtown florists, was fairly good. Prices have held up remarkably well considering the quantity of stock arriving daily. Roses of extra quality have not been overplentiful; in fact, all grades are cleaning up well. Ophelia, Russell, Ward and Killarney have the call. Few Beauties are seen. Carnations have improved in demand and prices hold up well. The Enchantress varieties are in good demand. Good quality Wards, too, demand stiff prices. Sweet peas are arriving in enormous quantities and prices have dropped considerably, in order to dispose of them. Fancy Spencers, however, demand 75 cents to $1 per hundred. Bulbous stock is receiving its share of the demand, especially jonquils and daffodils, tulips

Schneider, a vase of assorted carnations; Joseph Hauser, of Webster Groves, extra fine quality sweet peas and violets; August Hartmann, of Kirkwood, White Enchantress carnations; A. S. Cerny, Enchantress carnations; the Bourdet Floral Co., two vases of extra quality lilac; Thomas Kirkwood, assorted sweet peas; Hugo Gross, three vases of fine sweet peas; the Connon Floral Co., snapdragons; J. A. Kropp, carnations and snapdragons; A. H. Ahner, assorted varieties of carnations; St. Louis Seed Co., an assortment of spring bulbs; Gust Grossart, a vase of orange blossoms; M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill., a vase of mixed carnations; G. M. Thost, of De Soto, Mo., seven vases of extra quality carnations, Enchantress Supreme, Herald, White Enchantress, Matchless, White Wonder, Champion and Enchantress, also a vase of a fine new pink seedling snapdragon, which attracted much attention; August Jurgens, of Ridgeland, Miss., outdoor bulbous stock; the Home Nursery Co., of La Fayette, Ill., a vase of Yarrawa sweet pea; Fred H. Lemon, of Richmond, Ind., the new Primula malacoides rosea. The exhibition was viewed by a large crowd and made a good impression on all.

The club meeting was opened by President Bourdet at 3 o'clock. All officers were present and the attendance was large. Chairman Ohlweiler, of the trustees, made a final report on the club's recent dance. David Geddis, of the transportation committee, reported that only a few members of the local trade would make the trip to the National Flower Show.

Resolutions on the death of Max Pelletier were adopted and read. Messrs. Fillmore, Windler and Beyer were appointed to draft resolutions on the deaths of C. Bergstermann and Fred W. Bruenig.

H. Hietmann made an application for membership.

The spring flower show committee made a lengthy report, in which they named the chairman of the various committees. The question of organizing a state florists' association came up for discussion, which led to the naming of a committee of five to form an organization of this kind. This committee consists of W. S. Wells, chairman; H. C. Irish, F. Windler, W. J. Pilcher and C. C. Sanders.

After the meeting adjourned, Mr. Berning and his staff of employees treated the members to a fine lunch. A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Berning.

Various Notes.

Anton Zvolanek, the sweet pea specialist of Lompoc, Cal., in a letter to Joseph Hauser, informed him that he will spend a day with the county growers March 25 on his way east to attend the National Flower Show.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle spent a pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. C. Weber, Jr., March 3. Mrs. J. J. Beneke will entertain the circle at its April gathering.

for the present, on returning from lunch one day last week, was asked how he felt. The answer was: "Bully; just finished a big bowl of oxtail soup."

Henry Ostertag, of Ostertag Bros., says they had one of the largest funeral orders in the history of the concern last week. There were several large designs costing $500. Telegraph orders are numerous this month.

The Robert Thomson Co., local greenhouse builders, says it has a number of advance orders for new greenhouses and for rebuilding old ones. The new work consists mostly of private conservatories.

Charles Steidle, of Olivette, Mo., will build three new houses, 36x250, this summer. He recently visited Chicago, where he placed the order with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

W. A. Rowe was a visitor in Chicago last week and returned in time to tell us of it at the club's meeting. He contemplates building another 300-foot house this summer.

George Waldbart's right bower, Von Hoffmann, looked over the wholesale market last week with both feet on the ground. It is seldom that the count comes to the market and when he does something is sure to be brewing at Grand avenue and Olive street.

Any florist interested in a state florists' association should send his name and address to W. S. Wells, 4158 Flad avenue. Mr. Wells is chairman of the committee on a state organization of florists.

March 9, five years ago, W. C. Smith was married to Miss Helen West, of Edwardsville, Ill. Mr. Smith celebrated the event last week by passing out cigars to all who remembered and he says there were quite a few who did.

The Retail Florists' Association will hold its monthly meeting March 20, at the Mission Inn Garden. The annual banquet will take place after the meeting. The heads of the five wholesale houses are invited to attend. President Young assures us of some highly interesting entertaining during the evening.

Nat Kingsley, of Mullanphy Florists, celebrated his fourth wedding anniversary March 11.

M. S. Newman, Fred C. Weber, F. H. Weber, C. C. Sanders, G. Waldbart and Young, west end florists, say they have had a busy season with society. Now that Lent is here, work of this kind has slackened and preparations are being made for Easter.

The weather last week was fine and the downtown florists experienced a large over-the-counter trade. Cut stock was plentiful and low prices prevailed. Violets and sweet peas were the leaders in demand. J. J. B.

BOSTON.

The Market.

We had little sunshine last week and a low average temperature, with almost daily snow storms. As a consequence, flowers opened slowly and both carnations and roses made better prices than for some time. But for the arrival of Lent and the consequent cessation of the social activity, prices would have advanced quite sharply. We now have clearer skies, and, with larger offerings of flowers, prices are once more on the down grade. There still is only a limited supply of American Beauty roses, but these are not missed when such sorts as Russell, Hadley, Francis Scott Key and Ophelia are to be had. Rose prices advanced sharply last week, but are lower now, thanks to clearer skies. Carnations are somewhat off crop with a number of large growers. This and the cold, sunless weather prior to March 12 caused the carnation supply to shorten sharply, but blooms now are arriving more freely.

Sweet peas of every imaginable quality are seen. The prices vary from 35 cents to $1.50 per hundred, although some short-stemmed stock has gone as low as $1 per thousand. The Spencers are of grand quality. Violets remain about the same. Bulbous stock has been cleaning up well. Antirrhinums are arriving more freely; good spikes realize $1.50 to $2 per dozen. Lilies are just about sufficient for the demand, but callas are in heavy supply. Yellow marguerites are a little lower in price. Mignonette is abundant and good in quality. Forget-me-not is rather druggy, but wallflowers, cornflowers and English primroses sell well. Small lots of anemones, ranunculi, clivias, amaryllis and irises are seen.

Few Trianæ cattleyas are left. The supply is now mainly C. Schroederæ, but a few Mossiæ are already coming in. Other orchids include cymbidiums, cypripediums and phalænopsis. Shamrocks have been in fairly good demand, but these are less called for than a year ago. Trade in flowering plants is now quite good, with a wide assortment of stock available.

Various Notes.

Kidder Bros. are bringing in some superb Spencer sweet peas and violets. The peas are grown cooler than with the majority of growers and possess great substance.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, says this has been a successful season with Dutch bulbous stock. He grows Murillo and La Reine tulips, Golden Spur, Silver Spur, Von Sion and Victoria narcissi as his leaders.

Every indication points to a fine spring show at Horticultural hall, which opens March 17. The plant classes all promise to be well contested. Small exhibitions are scheduled for April 8 and 29, while the big show of the year opens May 10 and lasts five days. About $5,000 is offered in prizes at this show.

W. K. Southworth, formerly Southworth & Greene, of Stoughton, has 85,000 Spanish iris growing in solid beds and will soon have some ready to cut. His other specialty is sweet peas, which now are being cut in quantity.

At Comley's, on Park street, I noted March 11 some fine hybrid clivias and amaryllis, also a fine assortment of interesting spring bulbous flowers, many in small receptacles.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. have more orders booked for nursery stock at their Dedham nurseries than in any previous year. There is no immediate prospect of early digging, with eighteen inches of snow on the ground and zero temperatures as late as March 12.

Do not forget the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club March 21. The lecture on "Trees and Shrubs for Spring Planting" should prove timely and interesting.

At Penn's, last week was a busy one, especially in funeral work. Orders for casket covers were particularly numerous. Francis Scott Key and Ophelia roses were featured in the window displays.

If the ground hog had any friends, he now surely has lost them all. We had a dark day February 2, ground-hog day; heavy snow fell that day and we have not seen much bare ground since. Snowfalls almost daily were a feature last week. With the sun getting brighter daily, we hope that the heavy snow accumulations may soon disappear.

There will be a large representation from Boston at the Philadelphia show. A few will go for the opening, but the majority will leave March 27 and 28

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

THE obituary column this week carries the announcement of the death of A. E. Brown, who frequently has represented W. Atlee Burpee & Co. at seed trade meetings.

WITH the peak of normal seasons only ten days away, the mail order seed trade is lagging; business is good, but not so good as it was expected to be. The postponement of spring is blamed for it and a grand rush is looked for when the weather warms up.

AMONG the seedsmen who attended the recent Chicago disclaimer conference the consensus of opinion was that next year will see seed supplies considerably shorter than this season. This is based on the belief that increased production at home and in neutral countries will not make up for a further reduction in imports from the countries that are at war.

H. N. BRUNS, of Chicago, who recently was given a permit by the British government for the importation via Rotterdam of some millions of German valley pips, decided not to trust the stock on a boat without cold storage and ordered it shipped via Copenhagen. The complications that ensued are described in the Chicago news letter elsewhere in this issue.

THE Illinois Seed Co., Chicago, has purchased from the Chicago Telephone Co. and others 393x126 feet on the Baltimore & Ohio tracks at Forty-first Avenue and Fillmore street, and plans to improve it in the near future with a large plant for the handling of grass seeds. It recently was reported in this column that the leased property now occupied by Mr. Greene's concern has been sold to become a part of a railroad terminal.

THE CATALOGUE POSTAGE BILL.

Following the visit of W. F. Therkildson and E. C. Duncan, of Philadelphia, to members of Congress and officials of the Postoffice Department, Senator Bankhead has introduced a bill in the Senate identical with that introduced in the House by Congressman Tague, providing for the mailing of catalogues and other similar printed matter, now mailable under eight ounces in weight at the third-class rate of 1 cent for two ounces or fraction thereof, at a pound rate of 8 cents, the rate on individually addressed copies or parcels to be not less than 1 cent each. The text of this bill was printed in The Review of March 2, the clause providing for the minimum payment of 1 cent on each piece of mail matter having been added in the Senate bill. It is expected that this will meet any objections that may be offered by the postal officials on the ground that the proposed measure would result in a loss of revenue. C. L. L.

ROSSES ASK INJUNCTION.

Breach of contract in connection with his withdrawal from the Ross Seed Co., of Louisville, Ky., is alleged in a petition filed in Circuit court there March

Here's an Idea

THE WAR will prevent people from going abroad this year. As never before, they will be at their country places, taking keen interest in them, and spending money freely for their pleasure.

Flowers and plants will be in great demand—especially the new and novel things. English novelties are bound to be particularly popular.

Send 35 cents at once for Sutton's catalogue and make your selections from the choice collection of Sutton's tested novelties. This catalogue is so elaborate and expensive to produce that you will readily appreciate why we make a small charge of 35 cents for a copy; but this will be promptly refunded with your first order for $5.00 or more.

9, against William Ross by Charles D. Ross and Alfred S. Chescheir, remaining members of the concern, in which they ask for a judgment for $15,000 damages and for a restraining order enjoining the defendant from using the name "Will Ross" in connection with the seed business and also from soliciting directly or indirectly any of the trade of the Ross Seed Co., which was owned and enjoyed by the Ross Seed Co. on and prior to July 19, 1915, the date of withdrawal of the defendant from the concern.

It is alleged in the petition that on the date of the dissolution of the partnership the plaintiffs paid to the defendant $35,000 in cash for his interest in the business and for his good will, and agreed further to assume the payment of alimony to Gertrude A. Ross, former wife of William Ross; that in consideration of the written contract the defendant agreed not to use the name of the Ross Seed Co., nor any similar name which might reasonably be expected to deceive or mislead the public into the belief that the person using such name is connected with the continuing partners doing business under the name of the Ross Seed Co. It is alleged that the contract has been violated on numerous occasions since it was entered into and the money paid to the defendant, and that unless enjoined the defendant will work great and irreparable injury to the plaintiffs, the continuing partners in the business.

"ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL."

D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, have been conducting an animated correspondence with officials of the canners' associations as a result of their recent advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post advising people to

STOP LIVING OUT OF CANS—
START A GARDEN.

Which do you prefer—the fragrance of flowers, or bottled perfume? Which do you prefer—ripe fruits and vegetables, or the run of a canning factory? In winter, home-grown fruits cannot be available, but why unnecessarily prolong the "season of cans"?

How long since you have tasted Peas that were picked the instant they were big enough to eat—too tender to stand transportation? Do you know that, as a rule, the very choicest varieties of fruits and vegetables can never be tinned, or even brought to market, because they do not possess fiber or rind or some such protection against early wilting? Start a garden.

Appearing the week of the canners' convention, it was natural that "Stop Living Out of Cans" should draw fire, especially as Ferry had two salesmen present to solicit canners' orders. Promptly the corn section of the Na-

SNAPDRAGON NEWS

By using the several varieties of snapdragon which we grow, you can do just what we have done the past year—cut blooms every day of every month. No matter what season, there will be one or more of our several varieties in bloom. This is a remarkable record for snapdragon, as the average variety does not flower until April. We have had an abundance of white, yellow, garnet and pink, and since February 15 have been cutting gorgeous spikes of our lovely, matchless Silver Queen.

Right here we "rise to say" that for richness, for beauty, for habit of growth, for productiveness, from cuttings, there is no snapdragon on earth to match SILVER QUEEN. Our stock of it was greatly reduced last summer by heavy rains, but we are "coming back," and offer a limited number of rooted cuttings at $10.00 per 100—ready next month.

Seed of our regular stand-by varieties should be freely sown at once. Price of seed of our original Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, Phelp's White, Yellow, Buxton and Fancy Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Plants of each of these varieties, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. Free directions. All orders cash or C. O. D.

JOHN F. RUPP, Shiremanstown, Pa.

tional Canners' Association adopted this resolution:

Resolved, that Secretary Gorrell be requested to notify D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, Mich., that in the opinion of the canners present at this convention their advertisement which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, issue of February 12, is extremely harmful to the best interests of our industries.

Not content with that, the following telegram was wired by the Western Canners' Association through its secretary:

D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.:
I note with deep regret your advertisement in this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post, and cannot help but believe you were not cognizant of its real meaning before being published. As it is a gross injustice to the canning interests of America, I feel confident, however, to rely upon your deep sense of fairness to make such reparations as the best interests of our business demand.

G. W. DRAKE,
Secretary Western Canners' Association.

This is from the reply received by Secretary Drake:

We are grateful to you for refusing to believe that we would consciously do the canning industry an injustice. As a matter of fact, we do not recall ever before having been suspected of trying to injure anybody, were he customer or competitor. In the present case we confess being bewildered at the resentment our advertisement caused. We have just reread it, and ask that you also do so. We say: "In winter home-grown fruits cannot be available, but why unnecessarily prolong the season of cans?" We say, too: "Do you know that, as a rule, the very choicest varieties of fruit and vegetables can never be tinned, or even brought to market, because they do not possess fiber or rind or some such protection against early wilting? Start a garden." It did not occur to us that anybody would take offense at a simple statement of elementary fact. We do not wish to involve you in long correspondence, but we invite you to tell us freely wherein you consider we are at fault. Wherein was our advertisement a "gross misrepresentation of facts and an injustice to the canners' business"?

Secretary Drake replied at length, expressing his satisfaction with the response of D. M. Ferry & Co. to his telegram and setting forth in detail six exceptions on the part of the canners to the advertisement in question. Secretary Drake told D. M. Ferry & Co. that such advertising was wrong in spirit and that its statements betrayed a lack of knowledge of the facts. He then received this further statement from the Detroit seedsmen:

The advertisement under discussion was published "with malice toward none." It passed the same scrutiny to which our advertisements have been subjected for thirty years. We were and are astonished to find that any canner should deny the superiority of the best home-grown fruits and vegetables over those transported from a distance, in tins or otherwise. However, we believe it will be possible for us in the future to encourage planting of gardens without giving offense to canners or anybody else. It will be our pleasure to do so.

In closing the incident Secretary Drake wrote:

Like you, I will refrain from every possible pretext of argument, contenting myself in the very happy thought that you will refrain from causing to be issued advertisements of the kind referred to. I flatter myself, in the preconceived knowledge, as evidenced in my telegram, that you would do this very thing if properly placed before you, and can assure you the absolute confidence and respect of every canner in the business, myself especially.

CONFIDENCE AND GOOD JUDGMENT

pave two-thirds of the way to success in anything in life. I will write you a very short story on a lesson I learned on this important subject on one of my many travels.

Confidence without good judgment usually leads to failure, but the same efforts exerted with good judgment will bring success in time.

I strayed into a business place and, after my usual "self-introducing" process, the man in the case looked at me and informed me thusly: "Well, if youda come arou' yer about eighteen years ago I mighta married you, but I gotta wife now." At once I fell for the comedy, dropped my head and arms in the most dejected manner, looked like the only mourner at my own funeral, and groaned in sorrow. Tough luck; I'm always missing when good things are going easy. He did not say for sure he would, he only "mighta," but I know he "mighta" not, if I knew anything about it.

That man's confidence and conceit combined make him think he could own and control the world, only he doesn't care to. That's confidence without good judgment; such characters are always happy. Dear me, I need a little space for a few items for sale:

Caladiums, $2.50, $4.00, $5.50 and $12.00 per 100.

FISCHER'S NEW FREESIAS.

Before me as I write is a bunch of about twenty spikes, selected at random from R. Fischer's new freesias. The beauty of this strain, their size and coloring, and the substance of the petalage can hardly be conceived by those who know only the older freesias. It may be stated here that Mr. Fischer and Mrs. Fischer, who is as deeply interested as her husband, have not followed any slipshod methods in perfecting their strain. Just as they did at Great Neck, L. I., where they spent many years perfecting Purity, they have done with the new types. Every year thousands of seedlings have been thrown away and only the best selected, until they have secured a fixed type in a great variety of colors. At the risk of being a little previous, I think I can safely say that at least one variety, an immense lavender-tinted flower, with white throat, will be offered to the trade this year, while doubtless others will follow in quick succession.

The raiser of Purity has now a white that grows thirty inches or more in height, with a large, branched spike, any of the branches of which are larger than the finest Purity. The petals are like ivory, the individual blossoms two inches across and of the purest snow white. Another is a clear yellow and this is quite rare, as yet. Not that there are not plenty of yellows in the collection, but those that come up to the standard of size and purity of color set by Mr. Fischer do not appear very often. The same with the pink. It takes a long time to raise a stock from the first bulb of a new seedling, but this is what has been done at South Anita, carefully and painstakingly for the last nine years. Growers from Holland, who are well posted with all that has been done there, are surprised at the progress made here and, although they have known the small colored freesias for years, they are convinced that there is nothing like Fischer's varieties extant in Europe.

Rudolph Fischer's New Lavender Freesia, Splendens.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

During the early part of the week business took a downward turn and, altogether, we had one of the quietest weeks for a long time. The high temperature in a measure may have been to blame for this, but the lack of good funeral work also was a factor. The death of a prominent Japanese provided much work for the Japanese florists, but taken altogether the week has been a poor one. Stock is in excellent shape now and there is plenty of it. Roses are not so good as they have been. Carnations are extra good. Violets are practically over and only a few freesias are left. The bulbous stock is extremely fine, several growers having grown the newer varieties this year in quantity. The large quantity of stock on hand makes the retail stores attractive. In greens, plumosus is scarce and Sprengeri is coarse and not attractive. There are few plants to be had and these not of good quality.

Various Notes.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., is in town, having arrived March 4. His purpose in coming out is to look over the freesia situation, especially his colored varieties growing at Montebello. Mr. Frey says he is a little disappointed as to the length of stem developed in the open here and says it is not nearly so good as that produced at the home place under glass.

The usual meeting of the Pasadena Horticultural Society was held March 3 in the Board of Trade rooms. There was a large attendance to hear R. Fischer lecture on the freesia, giving his experience both as the grower of Purity and of the new colored strain he now is growing. Mr. Fischer's remarks were extremely interesting.

The Nurserymen's Exchange held a banquet at the Hoffman cafe March 1, with Edward Rust in the chair. Among those present were R. Teague, of San Dimas; L. Armstrong, of Ontario; T. D. Robertson, of Fullerton; F. Kohl, of the Orange County Nurseries, Anaheim; Anton Soethout, of Hollywood; the brothers Jannoch, F. Warner, W. Coolidge and W. Hertrich, of Pasadena; M. L. Germain, F. Hills, F.

Howard, H. R. Richards and Earl Sidebottom, of Los Angeles. After a good meal had been discussed the next thing on the program was the question of assessment of nursery stock. Mr. Sidebottom, as secretary of the exchange, had gone into the matter and he, as well as Messrs. Germain and Howard, made it clear to all present that if the exchange had done no other good it had at least paved the way to a much lower assessment this year than last. Mr. Coolidge was happy as usual in a humorous speech bubbling over with good stories. Several new members joined the exchange.

E. Hunt, manager of the floral department of the Hamburger store, has been laid up, but has much improved during the last few days.

Everyone in the trade regrets the continued illness of Mrs. Thon, mother of George Thon, of the Pico Heights Nurseries. Mrs. Thon has long been known and respected here and closely connected with the business for many years, first with her late husband and then with her son.

The March meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held March 7, at Kruckeberg's hall, President Felgate presiding. The guest of the evening was Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., who exhibited a bunch of his colored freesias. Mr. Frey was suffering from cold and loss of voice, but he gave an interesting account of the history of his freesias. H. R. Richards spoke on bulbs and exhibited several of the new daffodils. Spring Glory, a fine bicolor in the way of Prince of the Netherlands, was greatly admired. Several other members brought interesting exhibits of bulbous stock.

S. Murata & Co. report excellent business and the class of stock shown in the store is extremely fine.

The L. A. Floral Co. is shipping out large quantities of orchids, Cattleya Trianæ still holding first place in the list. Fred Sperry says that business is keeping up remarkably well.

reports that business is good generally but a little quiet during the recent hot days. The new store on Seventh street is unusually attractive.

Many of the newer tulips, daffodils and other bulbous stock are in bloom at the nursery of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. Inquiries for Easter stock here are already numerous and it appears as though lilies, rhododendrons and similar stock will be cleaned up beforehand.

Polder Bros. were the first in the market this year with Darwin tulips and they are sending in fine stock.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The market is flooded with flowers, but the quality averages fairly well, and an unusually active demand for this season of the year keeps the surplus down. Ordinary carnations are plentiful and cheap, the increasing supply of good bulbous stock having a tendency to keep the price down. Really fine carnations are always in limited supply, however, and the light offerings find a ready outlet at satisfactory prices. Jonquils and daffodils continue plentiful, but no one is anxious to see them go, as they maintain their popularity well. Poeticus narcissus is becoming plentiful and sells well. There is a good supply of snowdrops, and forget-me-nots, stocks, marigolds and mignonette are arriving in sufficient quantity to supply all requirements. No Spanish iris has put in an appearance as yet, but there are many of the native and German varieties, some of which are good. Callas are seen everywhere, being almost too common to sell well, and Easter lilies also are exceedingly plentiful. Some cornflowers are beginning to appear, but the supply is too limited for them to be much of a feature. Liberal offerings of buttercups, poppies and several other wild flowers find a ready market. An abundance of peach blossoms finds an outlet at fairly good prices. There still is a good cut of freesias, and many anemones and ranunculi are being used to advantage. A nice cut of Chrysolora tulips is arriving from San Leandro. There are plenty of good potted hyacinths, and many azaleas are in evidence. More rhododendrons are coming in and they are welcome, and good potted lilacs are arriving. Rambler roses in pots are attracting considerable attention. Roses, generally, are in better supply and good stock is readily absorbed. Cecile Brunner, Ophelia, Russell and Sunburst are popular. An active demand is reported for plants for bedding, nice pansies being unusually popular. Orchids and gardenias are fine and move fairly well. Asparagus is improving, but is still rather scarce, and other greens are in good demand.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was held on the evening of March 4, with the new president, E. James, in the chair for the first time, for he was unable to attend the previous meeting. The committee on revision of by-laws, consisting of Daniel MacRorie and H. Plath, submitted a report which was read and recorded. It provides for admitting to life membership, on payment of the $25 dues, anyone interested in ornamental horticulture, whereas heretofore membership has been limited to members of the trade. Provision also is made for the segregation of the funds into management funds and permanent funds, the former to be made up of regular dues, interest, etc., and two-fifths of the life membership fees, and the latter to be derived from three-fifths of the life membership fees and other funds voted for the purpose. The permanent fund is not to be drawn upon except by a two-thirds vote of the members and the sanction of five directors elected by the life members.

On behalf of the S. A. F. convention finance committee, Mr. Plath made a favorable report and turned the funds on hand over to the treasurer. He announced that plans are well under way for the entertainment and dance to be given March 25, which promises to be one of the most enjoyable social functions ever attempted by the society. Announcement was made that it is time for the fall flower show committee to meet, and a report probably will be forthcoming at the next regular session. Applications for membership were received from Frank Forrest, Peter Filipelli, Ernest Stover and J. R. MacDonald, all of whom are connected with the Fairmont Floral Co., of 141 Powell street.

The evening's exhibits made a creditable showing and much satisfaction was expressed by various members over the splendid character of the exhibits so far this year and the interest being shown in them. Three vases of Erica persoluta rosea, by E. James, took 90 points; a spray each of Cattleya Schroederæ, C. Fournieri and C. Thorntonii, by J. A. Carbone, 95 points; a vase of Phalænopsis Luddemanniana, P. amabilis, P. Stuartiana, P. Schilleriana and P. leucorrhoda, by the MacRorie-McLaren Co., 90 points.

The business session was followed by a smoker, but it was not largely attended, as it had not been previously announced. With a little effort, however, those present succeeded in getting around a liberal supply of ham and sandwiches. As soon as refreshments were opened a toast was drunk to the members on the other side of the Rockies. T. Taylor and D. Raymond competed as story-tellers, and the time passed pleasantly despite the light attendance.

Various Notes.

Two Berkeley florists were victimized recently by a clever bogus check artist. The man, well dressed and with a pleasing manner, first walked into Walter Norton's shop, greeted Mr. Norton familiarly, inquired how business was, etc. Mr. Norton did not recognize him, but thought he must have met him before, so he carried out his part, not wishing to betray himself. The man finally left an order for an elaborate floral piece to be delivered that day at a large funeral. He asked to have it charged, or said he would pay cash if Mr. Norton would cash a check for about twice the amount of his bill. This Mr. Norton did. When the floral piece was delivered at the funeral no one there had ever heard of the man, and the check turned out to be bogus. Soon after it was learned that the same game had been worked successfully on the Pacific Floral Co.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. is bringing in a nice cut of heather, much of which has been used in decorative work.

The cut of carnations at the Peninsular Nursery, San Mateo, has been light, but an especially fine crop of Pink Sensation and Mrs. C. W. Ward now is coming from the range. N. Peterson, proprietor, says he is well cleaned up on rooted cuttings.

The Sacramento Florists' Society is preparing to hold a fall flower show, which will be the first event of the kind ever held in the Capitol City. Several florists of that vicinity are working hard for the success of the show, as they believe it will have far-reaching effect in popularizing flowers. Mark Ebel, who is one of the enthusiastic supporters, was in San Francisco last week.

The $1,000 prize rose grown and exhibited at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition has been named Lillian Moore, after the wife of Charles C. Moore, president of the exposition. The international jury of awards, which had the naming of the rose, made the announcement a few days ago, after sending the prize check of $1,000 to Hugh Dickson, of Belfast, Ireland, its creator.

Terra cotta urns, vases and pots have been added to the list of terra cotta articles that may be shipped from Sacramento, Cal., to Portland, Ore., for 22½ cents per hundred pounds. The rate from San Francisco and Oakland is 20 cents per hundred pounds.

Mr. Azzora, who has stores in Stockton and Fresno, is opening a wholesale place at 335 Twelfth street, Oakland, in the old location formerly occupied by the former Hogan-Kooyman Co.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is bringing in a fine cut of Cecile Brunner roses, getting about enough to meet the demand, though they still clean up quickly.

Frank Pelicano says that Quaker Lady violets, a special variety which he offered in commercial quantity for the first time this season, took well. They are going off crop now, after a two months' run, having been held back at the start by bad weather.

About forty were present at the social given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society on the evening of March 2, which took the place of the regular meeting. Various members of the Horticultural Society participated in the festivities, and the entertainment provided by the committee in charge of the affair was greatly enjoyed. S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Cold rains, with occasional flurries of snow, prevailed nearly all last week and had a depressing effect on business. The demand for flowers for social events and funerals was below normal. The cut of carnations had fallen off until there was no oversupply to speak of. Roses sufficient to supply local demands came in, but more could have been used to fill shipping orders. Potted bulbous stock still is offered in considerable quantity and is meeting with a rather slow sale. Many varieties of perennial plants are shown at the seed stores.

Various Notes.

The Portland Floral Society will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday evening, March 21, in the Masonic Temple.

R. C. Cook reports that he now is receiving violets of the Giant variety, from California. The season for Princess is over.

James Forbes, of Martin & Forbes, left March 15 to attend the National Flower Show, to be held at Philadelphia. He went by one of the northern routes and will spend a day each in several of the northwest cities. He expects to visit New York, Pittsburgh, Richmond, St. Louis, Denver and Salt Lake City on his return trip.

F. McCabe, representing the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, called on Portland florists last week.

Clarke Bros. last week showed their first Keizerskroon tulips, also some blooming potted white lilacs.

The campaign to get subscribers to share in the Schoener Scientific Gardens is being pushed vigorously.

The wet condition of the soil has interfered with the progress of some of the landscape work.

Martin & Forbes displayed some fine orchids last week, especially Cattleya Trianæ and C. Schroederæ.

The better varieties in single and pompon Chrysanthemums will bring you more money than the standards. I have them. A fine line of Mensa ready in a few days. Also the best in standards. Write for list and prices, and your inquiries for anything you may need will be appreciated.

P. S.—I send out quality—that's why Cyclamen seedlings are all sold.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE death of Lyman T. Curtis, nurseryman of Flint, Mich., is reported in the obituary column of this issue.

SALE OF NURSERIES.

The right of a buyer of a nursery to recover damages from the seller for misrepresenting the number of trees growing on the premises sold is not affected by the opportunity open to the buyer at the time of the sale to verify the seller's statement, according to a decision handed down by the California Supreme court (154 Pacific Reporter 851).

The plaintiff bought from the defendant two citrus nurseries near Los Angeles, for $37,000, the contract containing a clause evidencing an understanding that there were, in round numbers, 60,000 budded trees on one place and 25,000 on the other. It was not claimed by the plaintiff that this statement constituted a warranty, but it was relied upon as a representation which induced the purchase. The sum of $34,000 had been paid on the purchase price when the plaintiff discovered, as he claims, that there were not more than 65,346 trees on both tracts. He brought suit against the seller, asserting that he had been damaged to the extent of $12,000. The defendant counterclaimed for the $3,000 still due, denying that any actionable misrepresentations had been made. A trial of the case resulted in a judgment in the defendant's, or seller's favor, but it was reversed on the plaintiff's appeal to the Supreme court, which said in its opinion:

"We think it must be held that the trial court erred in instructing the jury, as it did, in effect, that a party who has relied upon a misrepresentation made by another and has suffered injury thereby is precluded from recovering damages, if he had an opportunity, and did not avail himself thereof, to test the truth of the representations by independent investigation.

"Whenever a positive representation of fact is made, the party receiving it is, in general, entitled to rely and act upon it, and is not bound to verify it by an independent investigation. Where a representation is made of facts which are or may be presumed to be within the knowledge of the party making it, the knowledge of the receiving party concerning the real facts, which shall prevent his relying on and being misled by it, must be clearly and conclusively established by the evidence. The mere existence of opportunities for examination or of sources of information is not sufficient, even though by means of these opportunities and sources, in the absence of any representation at all, a constructive notice to the party would be inferred; the doctrine of constructive notice does not apply where there has been such a representation of fact." TO CONTROL CHESTNUT BLIGHT.

How to checkmate the new chestnut blight, or bark disease, that is causing such vast destruction is a problem of no small importance. From its obscure beginnings in eastern New York about twelve years ago, it has swept into nineteen states, and now affects about all of the northern half of our native chestnut stands, doing damage estimated at close to $50,000,000. It attacks the trees in twig, branch and trunk, causing death in a year or two, and soon recurs in the sprouts or suckers sent up from the still living roots. No native chestnut appears to be spared in the long run, but the little eastern bush, chinquapin, with its smoother bark and comparative freedom from insect enemies, appears less readily attacked. The European chestnut, in its

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large-flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front, since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell, of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal, over a strong class of competitors, at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points favorite varieties, is subject to the disease, but when we come to the chestnuts of Japan and China we find great resistance, amounting in some varieties to almost practical immunity. There now appears to be no method of controlling this disease, which is caused by a fungus whose spores are carried about by birds and insects, creating new infections wherever they reach the sap wood, or inner bark, of the chestnut tree. There is no apparent diminution of its virulence since it came under observation.

The most obvious means of replacing the great losses of chestnut timber and nuts would seem to lie in substituting for our native forms the Asiatic species that best resist the disease, having evidently for ages been accustomed to its presence, and also in breeding the chestnut as a valuable genus of forest trees, by hybridization and selection of varieties better adapted for our purposes.

Some chestnut breeding has already been accomplished in various parts of our country, and generally with good results. A promising experiment of this character has been under the direction of the office of forest pathology of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for several years.

Hybrids between the highly resistant Japanese chestnut and our native chinquapin have been grown in considerable numbers, quickly forming handsome dwarf trees, bearing at an early age profuse crops of nuts of excellent quality, five or six times the size of those of the wild chinquapin parent, and ripening weeks before any other chestnuts. So far these trees show a high degree of disease-resistance. The second generation of hybrids, grown from self or chance-pollinated nuts, appear to be as good as their parents, which is an important feature when the cost of propagation of nut trees by budding and grafting is considered.

Another line of breeding lies in the intercrossing of disease-resisting Japanese and Chinese varieties that are rapidly being imported into this country by the office of foreign seed and plant introduction, and selection of the best resulting forms. Four generations of crossbred Japanese chestnuts of an early-bearing type, producing nuts when two or three years old, have already been grown, and the varietal characters appear to be well fixed. Some of the Chinese chestnuts are said to grow nearly 100 feet high in their home forests, and it may be possible by their use to replace in some measure our vanishing native chestnut stands, and perhaps develop superior varieties during the process of acclimatization.

The hybrid chinquapins and cross-bred chestnuts referred to in this article are not yet available for distribution to the public for testing, since they are being held for further observations as to their varietal characters and the degree of disease-resistance.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The days preceding Ash Wednesday were busy ones socially, and consequently there was an accelerated demand for cut flowers that kept the dealers on the jump. The growers report that they have been cleaned up on their crops and that the outlook for Easter is satisfactory. Already the dealers have been scurrying around looking for their Easter stock, and the indications are that prices will rule about the same as those of last year.

Various Notes.

William McGregor has been elected a member of the Pawtucket park commission for a term of three years.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, who fell upon the ice a fortnight ago and was injured, is reported as being able to be about again.

W. N. Craig, president of the National Association of Gardeners, in speaking before a large audience at Brown University last week, urged his auditors to have gardens around their houses and reminded them that the grounds would always be more interesting when each person was his own landscape planner. Mr. Craig discussed the treatment of shrubs, trees and flowers in the general effect and gave advice as to the varieties of plants to be used and their methods of culture.

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Connor has been granted permission for extensive alterations in the office and greenhouse at Slater avenue and Lorraine street.

A flower department has been opened at The Outlet, in charge of Miss King, formerly with Littman. W. H. M.

McCray Florists' Refrigerators

The McCRAY construction keeps flowers cool and fresh longer than by any other system of refrigeration. It provides an even temperature of the correct degree for cut flowers and stops the great waste and profit loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The various compartments in a McCRAY are of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flower stems and your flowers are given an inviting display.

For interior linings you have your choice of either handsome bevel plate mirror or beautiful white enamel, which are very easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your store woodwork or other fixtures.

Invest in a McCRAY. Make it a partner in your business. You will value it more highly than its mere intrinsic dollar-and-cents value. Investigate anyway!

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

On account of the bad weather last week, the florists' business in Newark and vicinity was slow. One of the hardest snow storms of the season came the first of the week and others followed. This prevented people getting out to shop and curtailed sales, excepting those of funeral pieces. Even in that item there was a loss. The dark, cloudy days checked the development of flowers, causing a slight scarcity in many kinds and holding the prices a little above those of a few weeks ago. The least affected was the bulbous stock. This has been arriving in such large quantities that it can be purchased at a decidedly reasonable price. Orchids have taken a jump of late from the low price at which they had been selling earlier in the season. Fine calla lilies are coming into the market now. Now that Lent has begun, the florists do not expect much work from society events. The average business since the first of the year has been unusually good, however.

Various Notes.

H. C. Strobell & Co. report business quiet at the present time. Automobiles and movies are said to have made considerable inroads on the florists' business here.

H. A. Strobell says business was fair last week, but not quite up to what it was several weeks before. There is considerable funeral work.

Fred P. Wolfinger states that business continues to be good with him. He has had four blankets to make within a few days, besides much other funeral work.

Lyman B. Coddington, of New Providence, denies that twenty men employed at his greenhouses have gone on strike, though the men are not working and state that they have struck for an increase in pay. They have been receiving $1.50 per day.

J. F. Noll & Co. report that the seed business is starting in well and that it appears as if the coming season would be a good one. There is some trouble in getting shipments from Europe. Some of the consignments have come through, but others have been held up.

Charles Trauth states that he continues to be rushed with funeral work, the last few months this class of work having been far above the average.

Our Specialty is Grafted Roses

WE grow many other young plants for the shipping trade, but "Grafted Roses" is the specialty. A visit to Cromwell will prove to you that we can back up our offers with stock that is of the highest quality. We are growing 700,000 this season, for we know that this year we will see much replanting that was not done last year. A good part of this quantity is already sold, and orders have been very gratifying.

If you are going to plant or replant, get in touch with us now. Give us a chance to give you the best plants that can be grown. Our prices are graded to suit the quantity, and the quality graded to be above competition. Write us now, or, better still, come and see what we have to offer.

THE BEST RED CARNATION

RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT!

WINNER of the Silver Medal of the American Carnation Society, at Buffalo, 1915; also WINNER of the SAME MEDAL in the same class at ST. LOUIS, 1916; also of Silver Medal of S. A. F. and O. H., at St. Louis, 1916. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is 3½ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.

We have 1500 plants growing in our greenhouses at Hollywood, Cal., devoted exclusively to rooted cuttings.

Orders for Pacific Coast States will please be sent to our Western Branch, care of E. B. Washburn, 252 South Orange Grove Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Bruce W. Walker, of Johnstown, Pa., for the last few weeks has had the smile that won't come off. The reason? A baby girl.

T. Malbranc, of Johnstown, has a heavy cut of carnations. A beautiful array of spring plants was on display in the window last week.

Miss Margaret Schneider, of Johnstown, will shortly have the store redecorated and will also install a new refrigerator.

A beautiful arrangement of primroses, daffodils and carnations was on display last week at the store of William Schrader, of Johnstown.

Karl Kuny, of Altoona, Pa., is devoting most of his time to the growing of ferns and plants for the wholesale trade.

The greenhouses of C. W. Espy & Son, of Brookville, Pa., now form a modern range of 56,000 square feet of glass. Over half of the glass is devoted to the growing of carnations. Two houses of roses also are grown, besides many novelties and bedding plants.

Oscar Magnuson, of the Kane Greenhouses, Kane, Pa., will build this spring a Lord & Burnham house 28x150. This will be the beginning of a range which will be enlarged as conditions warrant.

The St. Marys Greenhouse Co., of St. Marys, Pa., has had a heavy run of funeral work for the last three or four weeks.

Joe Schloder, of St. Marys, is looking after two private greenhouses, besides his own house. This keeps him rather busy, but the stock under his care is surpassed by none.

The Crissman Greenhouse Co., of Punxsutawney, Pa., is busy with plants and vegetables for spring, besides handling a lot of seeds.

G. Lawrence Graham, of Bradford, Pa., has been busy with funeral work and potted plants. Some artistic designs were in evidence, besides many beautiful baskets.

The increase of business necessitated rearranging the interior of the Red Rock Rosery, of Bradford. The space gained gives Mr. Gunton an unusual opportunity for the displaying of potted plants and novelties. W. T. U.

The Market.

Business during the first two weeks of March has been decidedly good, notwithstanding the wintry weather and the beginning of the Lenten season. Both retailers and growers report that the arrival of Lent has not affected business as yet. Several rays of sunshine have improved the quality of flowers and increased the supply. There is an excellent demand for blooming plants, especially Dorothy Perkins and Crimson Rambler roses and all bulbous stock. Cut roses are in much better supply than a week ago. Especially is this true of Shawyer, Russell, Richmond and Ophelia. Carnations are exceedingly plentiful. There is a fine lot of Easter lilies on the market. Callas are plentiful; so are Spencer sweet peas, which are in big demand. Freesias are somewhat scarce. Violets are in fair supply. Yellow primroses are among the novelties on the market. Pansies and yellow daisies are in good supply.

Decorations for dances and teas formed a large part of the business in the last few days preceding Lent. Funeral work also has been heavy, and sales of spring flowers and potted plants for the sick have been large.

Various Notes.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting a fine crop of Easter lilies and report that business is not affected by Lent.

The Doswell Floral Co. is cutting some extra good roses, especially Ophelia. The firm's violets continue to bloom prolifically and the Spencer sweet pea crop is heavy.

The Flick Floral Co. has been exceedingly busy with funeral work. The firm also furnished the decorations for an elaborate reception and dance.

Mrs. Aaron Shive, of the Flick Floral Co., has received word of the serious illness of her sister, Miss Helen F. Patten, of the Patten Flower Store, Toledo, O. Miss Patten is suffering from a tumor and expects to submit to an operation within a few days.

O. Henry Allen, county agent for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, delivered an interesting lecture on "Field Experiments" before the Toledo College Club, March 10. R. F.

The Market.

Lent is with us again and the customary drop in business is the result. The drop is not so marked, however, as it has been in previous years. This may be due to some extent to the large quantity of funeral work, which has kept the florists busy for the last few weeks. The number of deaths has been large and the epidemic of typhoid fever may be responsible for this to some degree. The weather has been favorable and stock in general is in fine condition. The supply is sufficient for all needs.

Roses are in especially fine shape and are plentiful. There still is a shortage in Mrs. Chas. Russell, especially of the shorter grades. This seems to be the only variety that is not in large enough supply to equal the demand. Carnations are plentiful and the stock is good. There is no surplus, as the cut is moving readily at fair prices. White seems somewhat scarce, but St. Patrick's day usually develops this condition.

Sweet peas are in abundant supply, but are moving well. Some exceptionally fine stock is seen in the market and is bringing good prices. Wisconsin-grown violets are still holding up and are in prime condition. They are not bringing so good prices as they should, owing to the quantity of stock on the market. Bulbous stock of all kinds is in fine condition and selling better than usual. There has been an extra good demand for potted plants and these have been disposed of in large quantities.

Various Notes.

Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was in town March 9. E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, visited the trade Friday, March 10.

The M. A. McKenney Co. last week had a window display of plants that called forth much favorable comment. The store had a fine day in this line and sold a large quantity of stock.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WILL ADD ONE HOUSE.

I now have an opportunity to buy 2-inch and 2½-inch pipe for less money than if I wait till later. I should like to know, therefore, how many 2½-inch flows and 2-inch returns will be needed to heat a greenhouse 20x50. It will run east and west and will be connected to the south side of the present house, which is of the same dimensions. The boiler room is at the west end; the east end will be exposed. The south wall will consist of three feet of tile and three feet of glass. I want a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. I should like to put the returns on the side walls, connecting the returns to manifolds, if this arrangement is advisable. The boiler is an upright tubular, with a grate thirty-six inches in diameter. The boiler now has one 4-inch flow and two 2-inch flows, and the same returns. Will these be sufficient for both houses, or would you advise having another 4-inch flow and 4-inch return put in the boiler?

O. B.—O.

To heat a house 20x50, with one exposed side wall containing three feet of glass, we would use two 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns. If the top of the boiler is below the level of the returns, we would carry one flow pipe upon each side plate; otherwise they should be placed about two feet below the ridge or under the purlins. If the flow pipes are given a slight fall, the expansion tank may be connected with the highest part of the system and there will be no occasion for using air valves. The return pipes may be placed in coils on the side walls. Especially if the outer wall is much exposed to cold winds, we would place seven returns on this wall and five on the inner wall, connecting them by means of manifolds.

While it is not possible to judge the capacity of a boiler accurately by means of its grate area, we would expect to heat four houses 20x50 to 60 degrees with a boiler having a grate three feet in diameter. Considering the number of returns, we would prefer to run a 3½-inch flow pipe to each house, but if it is not convenient to do this it will answer if one 4-inch main flow pipe is used to supply both houses, and from this a 3-inch flow pipe may be run to each house. The returns should be of the same size as the flows. For each of the houses about 100 linear feet of 2½-inch pipe and 600 feet of 2-inch pipe will be required.

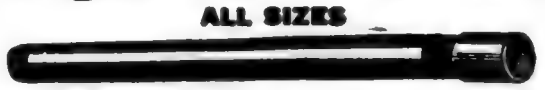
THE COAL MARKET.

Among recent developments in the coal trade, the event that surpassed all others in interest and importance was the signing, March 9, of the new wage contract between the operators and miners in the bituminous districts. The new agreement is to take effect April 1 and continue for two years. It will add, according to the estimates of the operators, between 7 and 9 cents a ton to the cost of mining the fuel. This peace treaty at the mines was instantaneous in its results, causing an unmistakable lull in activities by stopping a large part of the buying for storage, a kind of precautionary buying that had been proceeding at a lively rate. Aside from the closing of the bituminous conference, the only influential factor in the control of the business is the congestion of railroad traffic in the Atlantic states, with the slight stimulus or false strength thus imparted to the eastern market.



Of course it does not follow, because a strike has thus been averted at the bituminous mines, that the prices of soft coal in the coming season will be the same as formerly. On the contrary, an increase in prices, sufficient at least to cover fully the additional cost of operation, is as sure as fate and is already decreed. The only point still to be determined is the amount of the boost. Neither does it follow that a settlement with the anthracite miners can be reached as promptly as with the bituminous miners. Nevertheless, the situation is much better than it might be—much better than any except the most optimistic of observers had dared to hope it would be. Present prices, on smokeless coal as on other grades, are uncertain. Few sales are being made at the full circular prices.

DURABILITY OF COIL BOILERS.

I use two boilers. When I bought them I wanted to put in coils of 2-inch pipe instead of the boilers, but I was told that the pipe would burn out in about two years if I used soft coal as fuel, and that it was cheaper, therefore, in the long run, to buy boilers. Now, if that is true, why is it economical to use water-tube boilers? I examined one of the tubes used in a water-tube boiler and it was of steel and not more than half as thick as a 2-inch pipe, and the fuel used was soft coal. H. B.—Ohio.

Under proper conditions a heating coil made from 2-inch pipe should last much longer than two years, but a cast-iron or a tubular steel or wrought-iron boiler would usually last still longer. Screw joints are used in making coil boilers, and, unless great care is taken, several of the threads will be exposed at each of the joints. It is here that the corrosion will be most rapid. While 2-inch pipe will last fairly well, especially if care is taken to have all of the threads covered, I have seen boilers made from 1-inch pipe that had to be replaced within two years, even when hard coal was used. Some of the pipes were entirely eaten through and others were but little thicker than newspaper, where the threads were exposed. If the fittings are reamed out so that the threads can be "made in," I do not see why coil boilers will not last nearly as long as tubular boilers.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The monthly meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held March 7 at the greenhouses of Gallivan Bros., at Smiths Ferry. There was a good attendance and in the absence of President Butler, Vice-president George Strugnell occupied the chair. After the business session James Whiting read the paper "Is Gardening a Profession?" sent by the National Association of Gardeners, which met with hearty approval. K. B. Ullman presented a paper on "Advertising," which provoked a lively discussion and brought the retailers out of their shells.

Exhibits made a fine showing and, as usual, were of high quality. Mr. Schwartz, in charge of the Gallivan greenhouses, arranged a bank of Murillo tulips, a mixed group of ericas, azaleas and ferns, and also staged plants of a crimson form of Primula obconica. G. H. Sinclair & Son had pans of a lavender variety of Primula vulgaris and vases of mignonette, snapdragon, sweet peas and White Wonder, Rosette and Princess Dagmar carnations. F. D. Keyes & Son showed carnations, White Wonder, Enchantress and an unnamed pink variety of good form. H. E. Downer staged a plant of Dendrobium nobile with 150 open blooms, a specimen plant of Bauera rubioides, a pot of Hyacinthus giganteus, vases of Schizanthus Wisetonensis and Tulip Flamingo.

Congratulations to G. H. Sinclair were in order, for that day he was appointed a park commissioner of Holyoke. H. E. D.

LINCOLN, ILL.

C. G. Anderson, recently of the Minneapolis Floral Co., Minneapolis, Minn., and formerly in charge of the plant range of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill., March 1 became foreman for Gullett & Sons. Because Mr. Anderson's youngest daughter is in her third year in the Minneapolis High School, he will not remove his family to Lincoln until the close of the school year in June.

Gullett & Sons are actively engaged in the work of grafting a large stock of rose plants at their new range on the east side. This work is in charge of Adolph Nielsen and excellent results are being secured. A look at the rose houses at this large new range shows they are in good condition. The cut flowers are marketed partly in Chicago, where consignment is made to the A. L. Randall Co., and partly in St. Louis, by H. G. Berning.

DIRT BANDS

Very soon every grower will be making free use of dirt bands for the growing of all plants. Certainly, no florist can afford to pass them by. They are time and money savers, producing better plants at less cost and with less labor. It simply is a question of getting the best band.

Our new READY-USE dirt band tells its own story. Send a postal for free samples and see how it does it. It comes to you ready to set the plant in, which means saving of very valuable time required to fold the ordinary strips of paper commonly offered for bands.

We make plain bands, too, from high-grade, hard finish stock. Samples will be sent. Compare them with others and put them to any test. It is not how cheap, but how good, is our motto.

PRICES OF PLAIN SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1000	5000	10,000	20,000	50,000	100,000
2-in.....	$0.70	$2.20	$ 4.10	$ 7.70	$17.25	$30.00

4-in.....	1.10	5.40	10.20	21.00	48.00	92.00

Plain bands require folding, but our simplified instructions make it easy.

PRICE OF READY-USE SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1,000	5,000	10,000	50,000	100,000
2x2x2-in....	$1.00	$4.00	$ 7.50	$35.00	$60.00

3x3x2-in.	1.25	6.00	10.00	47.50	92.00

Our ready-use bands are complete and ready to set up. The lap is glued down and each band opens up square. No folding required, nor time lost in setting them up.

Send a postal for free samples of our bands and decide for yourself. All orders positively cash. State whether express or freight shipment. We guarantee satisfaction.

The Market.

With the opening of the Lenten season everyone looked for a decrease in the demand for cut flowers, but it turned out to be just the reverse. The epidemic of scarlet fever and the grip was the cause of an extra demand for flowers and plants. Violets are beginning to be a glut, some retailers selling them as low as 20 cents a hundred. Both single and double daffodils are in unlimited supply.

Various Notes.

The proprietor of the Parker Flower Shop, who started business a few months ago, is enthusiastic over the volume of business done so far and states that prospects seem promising.

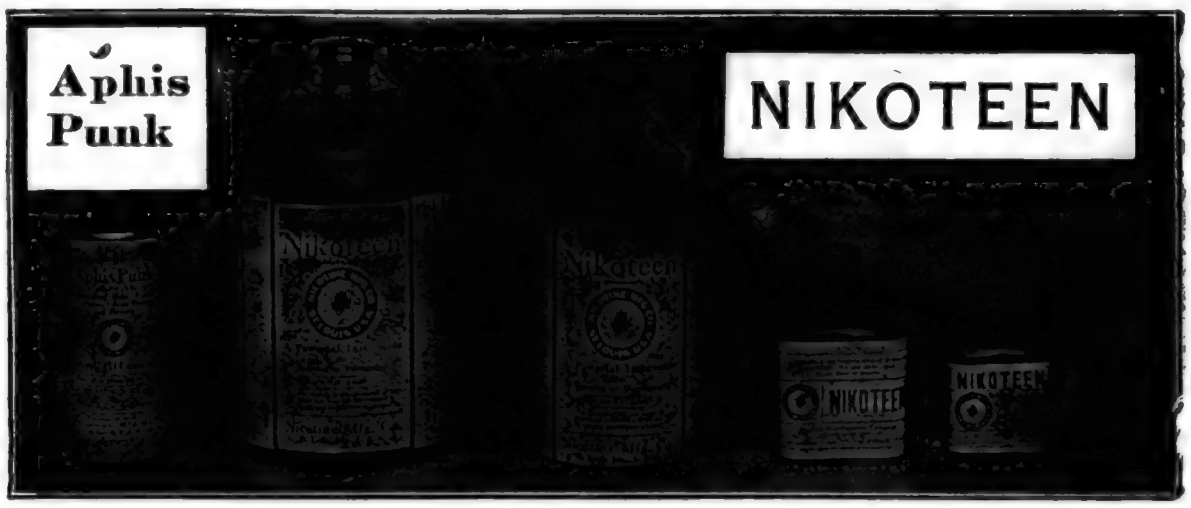
George Suris, in charge of the cut flower department at the Burgess-Nash store, says he is getting his share of the trade.

George Zimmer has had an excellent cut of carnations all winter, but he is off crop now and, unfortunately, will be off for Easter. The rest of his stock is in excellent condition.

The Fernery, on South Sixteenth street, reports business good but stock hard to get.

A trip to the Hanscom park greenhouses Sunday afternoon proved worth while. The bedding stock is the best in years and much credit is due Superintendent Wolff. For want of space, they have had to throw out the carnation stock and put in geraniums, of which there were several thousands in 4-inch pots. They are about the best plants to be found here.

J. J. Hess leaves the latter part of this month for Philadelphia, to attend the annual meeting of the directors of the S. A. F. He expects to take with him the names of a number of applicants for membership. L. S. H.



Fairburg, Ill.—E. N. Kring has secured a patent on a dibbler that has been in use for two years in the greenhouses of Kring Bros. It is planned to put the device on the market.

Williamsport, Pa.—The firm of Evenden Bros. was incorporated February 15 under the name of Evenden Bros Co. The incorporators are George W. Evenden, William J. Evenden, Charles T. Evenden and Harry L. Evenden. The younger members of the corporation are the third generation of the family to carry on the business founded by their grandfather, Thomas Evenden. The Market.

This market is well supplied with good stock of every kind, Beauties perhaps being the only exception. Roses are in good supply and their quality is good. Carnations never were better than now and bulbous stock of every kind is of good quality. Business has been such that the market remains well cleaned up of good stock. There are, of course, always some daffodils and tulips to spare, but this is nothing unusual.

Various Notes.

B. Schroeter is showing some of the finest azaleas ever seen here, and among the best are plants kept over from last year.

John B. Dinser, of Highland Park, is sending in two or three loads of bulbous plants every day. His stock is in splendid condition.

Charles H. Plumb, our other plant specialist, has found it necessary to add another large delivery car to his equipment. H. S.

ELLIS, MASS.

The new carnation Alice, sent out by Peter Fisher last year, fills a good deal of the bench space here. It has made good nearly everywhere and the demands for cuttings are again heavy. This is easily the freest-blooming carnation in cultivation, as any grower can prove by planting it alongside other standard sorts. Benora and Beacon, both of which originated here, are the favorites in their color. Matchless, White Wonder and White Enchantress are grown for white. At this season White Enchantress bursts considerably. Mr. Fisher says this can be remedied by growing it in solid beds in lieu of raised benches. Matchless blooms sparsely compared with White Wonder.

Pink Sensation and Good Cheer are both under trial. Mr. Fisher likes the latter and, with careful selection of stock, it should give a better account of itself a year hence. Flaked Beauty fills the greater proportion of one bench. To anyone wanting a beautiful flaked carnation, this variety should appeal. For a fancy variety it blooms with great freedom. There were batches of fine seedlings from which may come worthy successors to Lawson, Enchantress, Beacon, Benora, Alice and other Ellis creations. Gorgeous, sent out as a strictly fancy variety, will not be retained another season, as its color does not hold true.

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24¼ inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The market was well supplied with stock all week, and, although the demand was not as heavy as that of the week previous, everyone was well satisfied with the quantity of business transacted. Roses were plentiful throughout the week, but the quotations were unchanged. American Beauties were off crop, but some extra fine Russell roses were received and they practically replaced the Beauties. Killarneys arrived in large quantities. The carnation supply is short and prices have risen. This is due to an off crop with practically every grower in this vicinity.

Violets and sweet peas were in heavy supply all week, resulting in a drop in prices. The sweet peas were of excellent quality and had long stems. Lilies were too plentiful last week and a glut is looked for during several weeks. Bulbous stock is scarce, whereas last year there easily was too much of it.

Various Notes.

W. J. Barnes had the decorations at a large dry goods store for its Easter opening. He used twenty-two dozen palms and ferns and about twenty dozen blooming plants of rhododendrons, cinerarias, lilies, deutzias, spiræas and lilacs. Mr. Barnes has had this annual decoration for more than sixteen years.

Arthur Newell reports that the pot plant business has easily exceeded his expectations and that it is hard to get enough to fill the demand for the plants.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a unique window display of birds and bird houses last week. The window was a big drawing card.

William Foith was confined to the sick room all of last week, with the grip. Sunday he was able to take a walk to the greenhouses.

Miss Lou E. Boggess last week had a large batch of funeral work for Carrollton.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had another large run of out-of-town funeral work, besides the city work. Stock was rather scarce with this concern.

Henry Kusik & Co. report that the wire and supply department is working overtime to fill the orders.

Samuel Murray was exceedingly busy last week, decorations continuing to be a heavy item. W. J. B.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

A severe snow storm was in progress March 8, the meeting day of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, and, consequently, the attendance was considerably smaller than usual. The meeting was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, and was called to order by President James MacDonald at 2 p. m. Notwithstanding the small attendance, there was a good display of flowers and plants on the exhibition table, and all the entries were of first-class quality. John Everitt, Ernest Westlake and James Duthie acted as judges and turned in the following report: Six spikes of antirrhinum, Robert Jones, first; plant of cyclamen, Robert Jones, first; special prize offered by Robert Jones for twelve carnations, James MacDonald, first; James McCarthy, second. Robert Jones also exhibited a bunch of violets of exceptional quality, for which he was awarded a certificate of culture. A vase of gardenias, exhibited by Harry Jones, was highly commended. By request, Robert Jones gave an account of his method of growing violets, which was followed by an interesting discussion on the same subject.

James Holloway favored us with an essay on "Outdoor Fruit." His treatise proved to be of more than ordinary interest. An animated discussion followed, and Mr. Holloway was questioned at considerable length with regard to fruit growing. Martin Ebel, of the National Association of Gardeners, sent in an admirable essay to be read at this meeting, entitled "The Use of Native Plants for Ornamental Planting," by S. P. Jensen, of Missouri. The essay was instructive and well received by those present. Arthur Herrington paid us a visit and spoke on the coming International Flower Show to be held at New York. He described some of the prospective features and prophesied that this show would surpass any of the previous exhibitions held in New York. Beginning next month, April, our meetings will be held in the evening at 7 p. m., instead of in the afternoon.

What our system did for another of our customers, South Bend Floral Co., South Bend, Ind.:

"Our Peonies, receiving the moisture at a very critical time, gave us magnificent blooms on 30 to 36-inch stems, while those planted in the same soil beyond the reach of the System, and receiving a very generous supply of cow manure, but lacking the badly needed rains, gave us under size blooms and short stems."

Range of Greenhouses which we built for Mr. N. Grillo, Rose Grower, of Milldale, Conn. There is absolutely no shade in these houses. The Jacobs patented construction eliminated it entirely.

ANY GROWER WHO WANTS HIS GREENHOUSE BUILT at the lowest cost, and in the shortest time, consistent with good workmanship, can get just what he desires by employing the Jacobs organization for the job. This is a fact which is conceded by many of the biggest greenhouse owners in the country.

While we have been at it almost half a century, we come to you not only with the knowledge accumulated through all this experience, but we are always right up with the times on what's what, and what's new in Greenhouses.

THE LIFE OF A GREENHOUSE IS THE GUTTER

Garland gutters that were put up unpainted 20 years ago are as good as new today (we can prove this) and are good for 100 years more.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago's largest growers, are using 14 miles of Garland gutters and will use no other. Altogether we have hundreds of miles of our gutters in commercial ranges all over the country and can refer you to the owners.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Market.

Florists generally report good trade in all lines during the last two or three weeks. There have been several large public affairs and private receptions, which called for many corsages and decorations. This week's trade called for many potted plants, such as tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and azaleas. Daffodils are in good demand. Lily of the valley is scarce. Good Easter and calla lilies also are scarce. Sweet peas are abundant and the sales are good. Carnations are scarce, on account of the dark weather last week. Roses are plentiful, with Russell and Ophelia proving the best sellers. The funeral of the late Charles Robinson, a prominent brewer, was, from the florists' point of view, the largest held in some time.

Various Notes.

From the reports, the show April 6 to 8 will outclass any other show in Pennsylvania, aside from the National Show.

Muir & Co. had the family work for the Robinson funeral, including a blanket of violets and valley and a number of large designs.

A visit to William MacDonald, at Moosic, Pa., found everything looking fine for Easter. His rambler roses never looked better. The lilies, hydrangeas, tulips, daffodils and spiræas were also in the best of condition.

D. W. Evans is cutting some fine carnations and the crop is larger than for several months.

The Fernery had an unusually attractive window display of baskets of cut flowers and potted plants last week.

S. Edelman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, had a large display of baskets and florists' supplies at the Hotel Casey.

Miss Anna Griffiths, of the West Side Floral Co., is preparing for a large Easter business and has laid in a large stock of fancy baskets.

The New York Floral Co. is doing a rushing business at the branch store at Wilkes-Barre. F. J. M.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been fair for the last two weeks. Stock is plentiful and is selling tolerably well. Roses are becoming more plentiful and are bringing medium prices. Carnations are about equal to the demand. Bulbous stock is plentiful, with only an average call. Sweet peas are in good supply and are finding a good demand. Pot plants, such as azaleas, lilacs, rhododendrons, cyclamens and bulbous stock, are plentiful and are having a good call.

Various Notes.

William Hament is supplying the market with a fine quality of sweet peas.

Adolph Baur has a fine new 8-pound boy, who no doubt will be known as Adolph, Jr.

Homer Wiegand is back on the job after a three weeks' vacation in the south.

Hartje & Elder are putting in posts for two new houses, to be erected this spring.

Peter Weiland has been shipping some fine sweet peas into this market.

The Roepke Floral Co. is putting up a new greenhouse at the East Washington street place.

Alvin Schrieber, with the Bertermann Bros. Co., has a fine lot of ramblers coming on for Easter.

Clarence Thomas, with the E. G. Hill Co., reports business brisk. He says he had fourteen door wreaths in one day and funeral work was plentiful.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. is busy with store decorations.

The Smith & Young Co. is cutting some first-class Killarney.

Robert Fohl has taken a place with the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The Market.

Retail trade was not especially good last week. Two of the largest snow storms Worcester has had this winter came last week and kept people indoors, which hurt the retail trade greatly. Bulbous stock still is in demand, also roses and sweet peas. A few people still prefer azaleas, cyclamens, cinerarias and heather to the spring plants.

Horticultural Society Show.

The Worcester County Horticultural Society held its annual spring show Thursday and Friday, March 9 and 10. Although the ground was covered with a foot of snow, the hall gave the appearance of spring.

The feature of the show this year was an old-fashioned flower garden, occupying the entire center of the hall. The center of the garden was an oval-shaped bed of yellow narcissi, with a huge yellow genista in the center. On each side were two large gardens with many varieties of plants. H. F. A. Lange did the center and one of the large side gardens. His side garden contained azaleas, acacias, heather, cinerarias, chorizemas and bulbous stock. The entire border of this garden was of tulips. E. W. Breed had the other large garden, which consisted of primulas, tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, crocuses and boxwood trees. The other two small gardens were furnished by Charles Potter and A. W. Hixon. Harry I. Randall had four large baskets of 100 long-stemmed roses in the corners of the hall, making a beautiful showing.

The awards were:

Cut flowers—H. F. A. Lange, first; Charles Potter, second.
Carnations—Alfred H. Knight, first; W. M. Estabrook, second; Paul Brigham, third.
Orchids—Mrs. J. C. Whitin, first.
Azalea Indica—H. F. A. Lange, first; Lucy Coulson, second.
Cinerarias—H. F. A. Lange, first; A. W. Hixon, second; Worcester Conservatories, third.
Cyclamens—H. F. A. Lange, first; A. W. Hixon, second.
Cyclamen plant—H. F. A. Lange, first.
Primula Sinensis—A. W. Hixon, first.
Primulas, any variety—H. F. A. Lange, first; A. W. Hixon, second; Worcester Conservatories, third.
Basket, open face—H. F. A. Lange, first; Mrs. L. C. Midgley, second; Mrs. W. E. Sargent, third.
Narcissi—H. F. A. Lange, first.
Violets—D. C. Murdock, first; Charles Potter, second; Mrs. W. E. Sargent, third.
Flower garden—H. F. A. Lange, first; E. W. Breed, second; Charles Potter, third; A. W. Hixon, fourth.
Cineraria, one plant—Charles Potter, first.
Pansies—L. C. Midgley, first; R. D. Ross, second.
Snapdragons—R. D. Ross, first.
Roses in basket—Harry I. Randall, first.
Roses—H. F. A. Lange, first.

Various Notes.

Harry I. Randall reports business as being good, but a little slower than previously. Mr. Randall lays the small drop in trade to the storms. He has had some exceptionally good roses.

H. F. A. Lange had a good window displaying his exhibition stock. The new line of tango bowls with the birds and butterflies is receiving a great deal of attention.

E. W. Breed, of Clinton, has received many orders for spring in his landscape gardening work. Mr. Breed specializes in this work.

ASTERS UNDER GLASS.

Will asters do well under glass? When would they be in flower if kept growing from now on?

A. L. R.—N. J.

Asters can be successfully grown under glass. Soil such as you would use for chrysanthemums suits them. Queen of the Market, also called Queen of the Earlies, is the best early variety. Comet, also, can be grown well under glass. One good point about aster culture under glass is that they can be brought into flower earlier than if grown outdoors and, not being exposed to storms such as frequently spoil plants in the open, their quality is such that they always command a higher market price.

Sioux City, Ia.—The J. C. Rennison Co. has placed a contract with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, for the erection of two steel frame houses, 36x200 feet each. These houses are to replace two cypress houses and will be devoted to a general line of stock. The total cost of the new houses will be about $12,000. Work on the new structures will begin in June.

Lamar, Colo.—Roy White has applied for a patent on a device similar to the self-watering flower boxes except that it is for use with pot plants. The reservoir, of metal, sits at the bottom of the pot cover, the pot fitting inside a rim, with a sponge-filled tube sticking up into the soil through the drainage hole of the pot. Mr. White says plants used in the store for decorative purposes give fifty per cent better results if set on one of these self-watering bases.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF SALESMANSHIP

The growers of plants and cut flowers have reduced their art almost to a science; they have developed their trade almost to a profession. But what of the sales end of the business? What feature of it has been standardized? How much thought has been put upon cause and effect in merchandising flowers?

By PROF. PAUL H. NEYSTROM.

WITH all your good buying, all your good system in store work in every respect, your good accounting, your advertising, and your window trimming, you must still recognize that the whole system rests on your salespeople. But salesmanship is a big subject. Most flower store workers are not good salespeople, because they know little about the science of salesmanship. It requires study to make good in salesmanship.

In salesmanship our problem is to get the customer to know the facts about our goods and to feel favorably towards them. Our problem is to get ideas about our stock into his mind and the openings through which the raw material passes, out of which ideas are constructed, are the nerves that pass out from the brain; the principal ones being the nerves of sight, hearing, smell, taste and touch.

Appeal to Senses.

In selling flowers, the salesperson who understands these elementary facts attempts to give his customer ideas not only through the eye and ear but also through the sense of smell, and, if possible, through the sense of touch.

The salesman appeals to the eye by showing the goods and pointing out what he wants to be seen. He appeals to the ear by telling about the goods, and he appeals to the sense of touch by getting the flowers into the hands of the customer, as, in the case of shoes or garments, he would do by getting the customer to try them on. Every good salesman follows this principle of using several of the customer's senses, whether he knows it or not. Every retail salesman should follow this principle, appeal to his customer's mind by presenting ideas through as many senses as possible.

Another fact of psychology is that the rate at which nerve currents enter the brain and from the brain into the mind is not the same in all people, nor is it the same for each person at different times.

Hammering It Home.

The salesman must recognize that if he is presenting ideas about his stock faster than his customer can take care of them, he will not be understood and will lose interest. Nor must the salesman present ideas too slowly, or the customer's mind will run away from him and grow interested in something else. If he shows too few flowers he will fail to interest his customer; if he shows too many he will bewilder him.

When the nerve currents enter the brain from the eye, ear or other parts of the body they travel with a considerable rate of speed, although this speed varies greatly among individuals. When the current comes to its appropriate place in the brain, it strikes a blow in its particular brain cell. The impression can be made deeper in either of two ways—by putting more force in the nerve current that causes it, or by repetition or concentrating the mind with all its power on the one incoming idea. One other thing is necessary and that is plenty of pathways or connections to the mark or indentation that represents the idea to be recalled.

There are two more facts of psychology that I would like to present. One is that every idea that enters a customer's mind is accompanied by some feeling, either good or bad, pleasant or unpleasant, satisfactory or unsatisfactory to the customer. The mind never accepts an idea in a neutral way. It accepts or rejects and classifies as good or bad every impression that it receives. Every impression that your customer receives of you, your goods, your store and its equipment either helps or hinders you in making sales.

"Watch Your Step."

The other fact is that every idea that enters the customer's mind tends to be expressed, not only by speech, but also such things as brightness of the eyes, actions of the body, smiles, frowns, movements of the hands and of the face and head. It is this expression that the salesman must watch to learn whether he is on the right track or not, whether he is showing the right kind of flowers or offering the right kind of selling arguments. One can not sell flowers successfully without watching customers' expressions.

The customer gets ideas not only about the flowers the retailer tries to sell to him, but also from everything about the store. The store's advertising in some newspaper may reach the customer before he comes to the store, and he gets ideas from that. They may be partly or wholly unconscious impressions, but in so far as they reach the mind at all, either in definite or indefinite forms, there is certain to be an effect of feeling either for, or against, as an accompaniment of what he saw, heard, smelled or felt.

Referring to the form of the advertisement in the newspaper, it may be of interest to note that oblongs are generally more attractive than squares and that ovals are better than circles. The oblong of proportions of three in DOING THINGS WELL.

There is a switch tender who regulates the street car traffic at one of the busy crossings in New York who has the reputation of being the best man in his business.

His is the humble calling of wig-wagging with a soiled red rag on a stick, but there's nothing that prevents him from making a real job out of it.

Whatever success we, any of us, achieve in life is due, not to any mysterious access to favor, but solely to the fact that our zeal for hard, conscientious work burns with an intense, earnest, steady glow.

Adapted from a lecture before the recent Merchants' Short Course Class at the University of Kansas.

width to five in length, the proportions of the page of The Review, is always attractive. Other forms may be made beautiful, and often most appropriate, but none are so generally attractive as the oblong.

Another detail of retailing that has its effect on the customer is the architecture of the store, particularly the store front, its construction and its colorings. Even the color of paint used makes a difference that is either favorable or unfavorable to the kind of business carried on. Some of the large chain store concerns have made a scientific study of color schemes for store fronts.

A few years ago five-and-ten-cent stores were painted all sorts of colors. The owner of several of them made up his mind that he would find out what color was best for a five-and-ten-cent store business. After a careful study he concluded that red and gold was the best. He applied these colors to all of his stores with success. Now it is hard to find a five-and-ten-cent store, whether owned by a syndicate or independent, that is not painted red and trimmed with gold. Red and gold is the scientific color scheme for the five-and-ten-cent business at the present time.

Grocery chains are working with orange and gold, yellow and gold and white. Red seems to be the wrong color for food stores. The United Cigar Stores have settled upon red, black and white, with gilt lettering. What is the best color scheme for flower stores? It is not red. Perhaps it is green and gold. Have you ever given it a thought?

Department stores are working towards a more uniform system of architecture and coloring. They are finding that there is a harmony of architecture of the store with the goods to be sold which when followed helps the store to succeed, and when not followed hinders success.

Life's Little Irritations.

Window trimming presents ideas to customers and likewise fosters good or bad feeling. The entrance and doorway produce a favorable or unfavorable impression upon all who enter and go out. Uneven steps, sloping walks, slippery places, sticking doors, squeaky hinges, doors that slam with a bang, doors hard to open or close, all cause customers some irritation or bad feeling, and while these are in most cases small things, they hinder the successful selling of flowers.

The internal arrangement of the store, the layout of the counters, refrigerator and cases, the location of the stock and the ways in which the flowers and plants are displayed are all important factors in building a good impression in a customer's mind. If that impression is not good, it will be bad.

One of the difficult matters about all these details is that what gives good impressions to one customer does not necessarily appeal to another in the same way. The best that a retailer can do is to build and plan his store and its displays in such a way as to appeal to the largest possible number. It will be impossible to suit everybody perfectly.

The Salesman.

Next in order among the things likely to attract the customer's attention and to produce ideas and consequently feelings, is the salesman himself. The way he approaches the customer, the way he stands, walks, his looks, his interest, the way he is dressed, his voice, the way he speaks, his cleanliness of clothes and person are highly important factors in giving a good or bad impression in the customer's mind.

The salesman needs to be appropriately dressed for his work. Not too flashy or richly, nor too poorly. Either extreme will attract attention to itself and will detract from the purpose of the store and of the salesman to sell goods. Jewelry and ornaments of all kinds are likely to give trouble.

I once knew a traveling salesman who said that his house gave him a diamond stick pin for a Christmas present because of his excellent work. He said to me, "Do you know, that stick pin lost me more sales than any other thing I could mention? Often when I had a customer on the point of getting deeply interested in my proposition, his eye would catch that diamond and he would look at that instead of at me, with the result that I had to go all over my selling talk again."

On the Telephone.

The importance of the voice of the salesman is nowhere so evident as in the use of the telephone. Not one person in ten knows how to use the telephone properly. Nothing goes over the wire but the sound of the voice. If the face is wreathed with smiles, if the eyes sparkle with pleasure, while the voice is cold and reserved, the listener at the other end of the line gets nothing but the cold, reserved voice expression and forms his impressions of the speaker accordingly. Many stores appoint as telephone clerk the one whose voice coincides with the telephone company's oft reiterated statement that "the voice with the smile wins."

Suppress All Odors.

Another matter of importance is the salesman's breath. Doctors tell us that one person out of every eight or ten has a bad breath. I need not tell you that this makes a difference in selling. The unfortunate thing about it is that the person who has a bad breath never knows about it until told. Store managers should handle cases of bad breath in a frank manner, and every salesperson should make sure that his or her breath is right by getting some frank friend to say whether the breath is sweet or not. An odor of drink, cloves or tobacco is almost as bad as fetid breath, and many persons find perfumes objectionable.

Successful retail selling rests upon a thousand and one details all performed well. Good retail salesmanship consists in making all the conditions right for the display of our stock under favorable conditions, and then in showing the flowers and plants in detail, just as the customer wants them shown.

Current Events in Advertising.

In any comprehensive textbook on advertising the reader will come upon a chapter dealing with current events as related to advertising, in which the author explains how occurrences of common interest to the masses may be profitably employed by advertisers. It is demonstrated that if an important event of the day or week is incorporated into the start, or headline, of the printed advertisement, the attention-winning power of that advertisement is greatly enhanced.

In the late summer of 1914, a few days before the declaration of war by the various powers of Europe, the newspaper carried large, black scare heads telling of the mobilization of troops by the countries now at war. The people of the United States easily consumed all the news printed about the approaching storm, talked war morning, noon and night; in fact, everybody was more than interested in the proceedings on the other side of the ocean.

An Example.

At Chicago, on the day that the daily papers told of Russia's mobilization of troops on its frontiers, a retailer came out with a large newspaper advertisement, with this headline in heavy, black type: "We are mobilizing ....." Directly underneath this display line, in light-faced type, the sentence read on: "20,000 shirts for tomorrow's sale." This is a fair example of advertising in which a subject of current interest was utilized. There is no doubt that the heading, "We are mobilizing," on that day caught the eyes of many readers who would not have seen the advertisement had it been headed something like this: "Shirts tomorrow at $1.50." The people were looking for literature on the war, and this advertiser, by his clever headline, got a good many of them to read his ad. Subsequently the same advertiser devised other more clever headlines, all dealing with the war, but, nevertheless, relevant to the text that followed.

In Window Displays.

But this adaptation of current events to advertising is not confined to the printed advertisement. Window displays, which are a form of advertising, can be made to more efficiently attract the passers-by by the same means. We have had war windows, showing miniature aëroplanes, submarines, forts, etc. Then there are windows for Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays, Thanksgiving day, baseball and, during the sweltering days of midsummer, the bathing beach windows.

This year Babies' week came into greater prominence than last year. Much publicity was given the week set aside for babies and as the years go by it is probable that this week will be more generally observed. The newspapers in all parts of the country gave columns of matter to the health and care of babies, under the slogan of "Baby's Health; Nation's Wealth." To take advantage of the wave of publicity given a subject of interest to mothers, some of the department stores in their display windows advertised their infants' wear sections and held special sales of wearing apparel for "tots."

A Babies' Week Window.

In Kansas City, the Alpha Floral Co., at 1105 Walnut street, had a special baby window, as shown in the accompanying illustration. Dolls were used to make the window typical of Babies' week. In the center of the window was a medical scale, on which reclined an 8-pound boy, in imitation, of course. Many of those interested in this movement, particularly the women, in passing along Walnut street, were attracted to the window. There they not only saw what interested them, but also hyacinths, carnations and roses, for sale within. In advertising parlance, the Alpha Floral Co. is said to have "borrowed" some of the publicity given Babies' week.

The committee in charge of the program for Babies' week in Kansas City thought so well of the Alpha window that a photographic record was made of it, which is the one reproduced here with.

THE CORNELL RETAILER.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph of the store of G. M. Cosh, at Ithaca, N. Y., whom A. C. Hottes, of the department of floriculture at Cornell, believes to be worthy of encouragement in his efforts to conduct an up-to-date flower store.

"Mr. Cosh has made a special point of having attractive window displays," says Mr. Hottes. "He believes that money spent in window displays is one of the best forms of advertising. Previous to the display shown, he has had bulb beds, football games, table decorations and other features which are new to the flower stores of Ithaca. Mr. Cosh was formerly the gardener for the department of horticulture at Cornell, and afterward became manager of the Brazos Greenhouses at Houston, Tex. About a year ago he started in business for himself in Ithaca. The store is located on perhaps one of the busiest corners and, as may be seen from the photograph, it is almost all windows."

AN EXCHANGE OF BOUQUETS.

That Albany violet, William C. Gloeckner, always is breaking out in a new place—something doing all the time when he is around. Under date of March 18 he wrote The Review as follows:

That article in reference to Emil Uhl you had in The Review last week looked awfully good to me and I showed it to Frank A. Tierney, secretary to former Governor Glynn of this state, who is now doing special work on Mr. Glynn's paper. He tore the page out and I am enclosing you a sheet of the paper to show you how he handled it. This reference to booming Albany comes from the fact that I am president of our local Boosters' Club and was last year vice-president of our Chamber of Commerce.

There is no use in talking, The Review does have some live stuff. William C. Gloeckner.

The article in the Times-Union was as follows:

"BILL THE FLORIST."

Bill Gloeckner, the florist, thinks we ought to have a "Greater Albany." Bill is for everything big. He is a great town booster. When he walks downtown he puts enthusiasm into every step. When he says "Good Morning" he says it enthusiastically and his accompanying smile is a tonic.

When Cemetery avenue cradled Bill in the late seventies he was nursing a ray of sunshine that has lost none of its warmth through the process of age.

If Bill ever had a care, or if fate ever double-crossed him she got none of her delight out of the publicity that he gave to the incident. He's one of those rare specimens that refuses to follow your hard luck story with one of his own.

Whenever there is a holiday on, Bill is out with the bloom from the houses of glass. Somehow or other America will always associate a flower with every gala day, religious, social or patriotic.

Easter brings the lily in all its loveliness for our admiration.

Memorial day, as a matter of tribute, brings out all varieties.

Thanksgiving gives us the chrysanthemum, big and fluffy and in all the shades which the specialists are able to produce.

When Christmas comes, then the poinsettia makes its appearance, natural, artificial, or both, and on all these days and others of lesser import, Bill is on hand with a downtown store that flower lovers may step in and admire and buy for themselves or their friends.

(And I guess if we don't have our Easter flowers very good and very reasonable we don't know what throwing a hint means.)

Richmond, Ind.—The C. Knopf Floral Co. has filed a preliminary certificate of dissolution. The founder of the business, Charles Knopf, died in 1912. Less than a month ago the establishment was acquired by W. H. Gardener, formerly manager of the P. J. Olinger houses, at Newcastle.

Geraniums

MORE ON NUTT GERANIUM.

The S. A. Nutt geranium was introduced by Simmons & Sons, of Geneva, O., and was named after one of Geneva's best citizens by Mr. Simmons. This concern also sent out Silver Spray, Portia, J. J. Harrison and Daybreak carnations. Anson Simmons still resides in Geneva, O.

I am staying at Kramer, Ind., for a few weeks, trying to get my health back, and I am "coming right down the pike." Harry Balsley.

STEM-ROT ON GERANIUMS.

Can you tell us why the stem of the enclosed geranium has been rotting and dying away? The disease seems to start at the roots and work up, as you will see the top still shows signs of life. Is there a remedy for this?

A. E. P. & S.—Ill.

This is a common trouble, not only with geraniums but many other plants. Among the probable causes are. leaving the cuttings too long in the propagating bench, too deep potting, or burying the stem too much, and the use of soil containing too much plant food of a nitrogenous nature. There is nothing you can do once the disease has started, but be careful not to leave the cuttings too long in the sand. It is a common practice to do this and, as the cuttings become leggy, to bury a good part of the stem. Use soil containing no fresh manure. A little fine bone and old manure, well broken up, will be found satisfactory. C. W.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE RED.

We enclose several geranium leaves that have turned red. The stems of the plants are taking on the same color. They are in 3-inch pots, almost ready to shift to 4-inch pots, and have been doing nicely until a few weeks ago. Possibly we have sprayed them too heavily with Nicoticide, as we have used this for white fly. Kindly tell us what to do and especially how to make them sprout out, for it now seems as if we will have no leaves near the bottom of the plant at all. Shall we cut off the red leaves, or just break them, to induce some growth at the bottom of the plant? H. M.—Ill.

It is barely possible that spraying or strong fumigation may have helped to develop the red foliage. It is more likely to be an excess of some fertilizing element in the potting soil; too much bone or potash is the most probable cause. Break off the leaves, but not until they are hopelessly affected. I would shake out the plants and repot them in a compost of loam, with some old, well decayed manure added in the proportion of one to four; also, a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each wheelbarrow load of compost. Be careful not to overwater your plants at any time and refrain from spraying them overhead. A temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night, plenty of sun, fresh air and a dry atmosphere are conditions geraniums like. Do not stand your plants on a coat of coal ashes unless it is an extremely thin one.

C. W.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE DISEASED.

I am enclosing samples of diseased S. A. Nutt geranium leaves. The cuttings were made last fall, rooted in clean, sharp, coarse sand, and have done well until the present time. Some show red leaves which later dry up; others are spotted or the edges are slowly wilting. A few days ago I used for the first time Fungine, about one-half pint to five quarts of rain water. Is this mixture all right or should there be more water added? Will the plants overcome the disease and become strong plants for spring bedding outdoors? How often should the spraying of Fungine be repeated, and at what time of the day?

I am keeping the geraniums in a night temperature of 55 degrees. The house is new, has plenty of air and light. I keep the plants on the dry side, not allowing the foliage to become wet. A brother florist thought the disease was caused by keeping the pots on coal ashes, because the ashes contained too much sulphur, so I removed as much soil as possible and transplanted the plants into new pots. The soil now consists of light, old compost, with a little ground rock lime. There was no manure in the compost.

A. P. W.—Wis.

You have used the Fungine much too strong. One part of Fungine to forty parts of water is sufficiently strong, or half the strength you have been using. As the plants are strong, I feel sure they will come out all right by bedding time. Spray the plants when the foliage is perfectly dry and preferably in the morning, when the sun is on them. It is not wise to spray in the evening, as the plants should be dry over night.

The old compost is often much lacking in plant food and ground rock lime would be of no value unless your soil was of an acid nature. If you would shake out your plants and repot them in a mixture of four parts of loam, one part old cow or horse manure, well screened, and a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each barrow load of compost, your plants would make better headway and the red appearance of the leaves, a sign of improper soil or starvation, would disappear. While too many coal ashes below geraniums may prevent the roots coming out at the bottom, a thin coating of well screened ashes I have never found harmful. All kinds of plants are plunged year after year outdoors in coal ashes and I have never seen any harm come to such plants. Such harm as might come to the geraniums would be more in the fact that roots could not so easily strike any loam below them, than in probable injury from sulphur in the ashes themselves. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Winter-flowering Begonias.

Early propagated plants of Cincinnati and Lorraine begonias should now be well rooted in 2½-inch pots and ready for a shift into 3½-inch or 4-inch pots. Continue to use a compost largely composed of not too much decayed leaf-mold and sand, with a little old manure added. Stand them on a bench where they will continue to get some bottom heat, and have a night temperature of 60 degrees.

Pot off leaf cuttings as soon as they are nicely rooted. Do not wait for any growths appearing above the sand. They will come more quickly and vigorously in pots than in the cutting bench. A last batch of leaves can now be put in, but after this date we cannot get so steady bottom heat as during the winter, and propagation becomes more difficult. Propagation from shoots, however, can be successfully carried out until June.

Propagating Antirrhinums.

During April is a good time to take cuttings from any specially fine snapdragons to be benched in August for a fall and winter crop. Cuttings will not produce plants of the same vigor as seedlings, but are necessary to perpetuate specially good forms, which can later be grown without other varieties near them, so that seed can be saved, and will give plants true to type. What is particularly needed is a good winter-blooming pink variety, one which will flower through the cold months as freely as does Phelps' White. We are much in need of such a snapdragon, as pink is a far more salable color than either white or yellow.

When propagating snapdragons use only the best cuttings. This will greatly improve your stock. Be careful not to leave them in the cutting bench any longer than you can help after they are rooted.

Dutch Bulbs For Easter.

As Easter comes late, it will be necessary to do some retarding in the case of Dutch bulbous stock in pans, pots or flats for that occasion. If a good cold pit is at disposal, the bulk of the bulbs will come along in ample time if placed in the greenhouses a couple of weeks before they are needed. Where bulbs are kept outdoors they will be, in many cases, still buried in ice and snow. This is just as we would wish it to be, for such stock can be kept back nicely. Murillo tulips, Victoria and Golden Spur narcissi are likely to be the leading bulbs in pans the coming Easter, with a probability that many species will have passed.

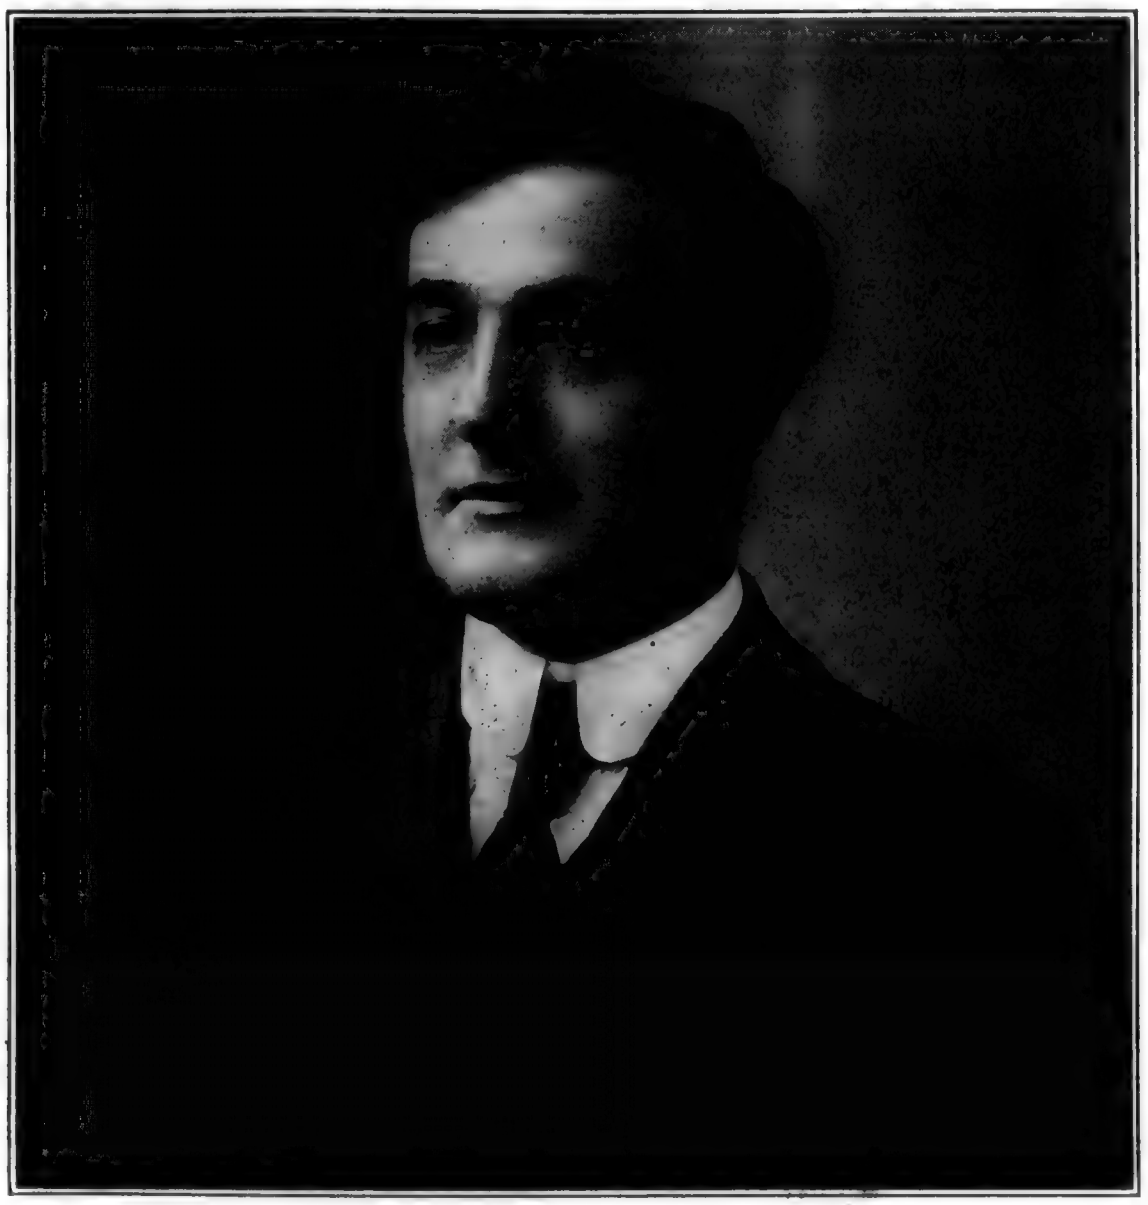
Easter Lilies.

If the lilies have buds which are two to three inches long April 1, they will come along all right for Easter if given a minimum of 60 to 65 degrees and are freely syringed. If the buds can only be seen standing erect and clustered thickly together, they are late and need all the heat you can give them. Of course we may have a warm April and, in such a case, three weeks in that month may be worth as much as the whole of March, but weather is a most uncertain factor and it is not wise to take too much for granted. Giganteums are always inclined to be a little too dwarf and some shade on the glass will help to give them the necessary length.

If the buds in Lilium candidum can be counted April 1 they will be on time, but remember this lily will not tolerate hard forcing; 50 degrees at night should not be exceeded if blooms of good size and substance are wanted.

Calceolarias.

Keep the calceolarias cool, no matter whether you are growing the herbaceous varieties or the rugosa, with its intermediate forms, of which Stewarti is still the best. It is of no use trying to force calceolarias. You will simply ruin them if you do so. A cold, clammy-feeling house seems to suit them to a nicety. When the pots are well filled with roots use liquid manure, quite weak at first, a little stronger as the spikes develop. If the leaves are at all pale, use a little soot water to tone them up. Never omit fumigation. Do it once a week in order to be on the safe side.



Marguerites.

If you want some large, bushy marguerites to flower from the first of December onward, take some cuttings now. The old Paris daisy with small, white flowers, or Chrysanthemum frutescens, is far ahead of all others as a pot plant. These cuttings will throw flower buds all summer, but keep them picked off and give the plants the necessary pinching, plunging them outdoors through the summer. These plants will be large and bushy before fall and will flower as early as December or as late as May, according to how much you pinch them. The yellow marguerites and the large white varieties, such as Queen Alexandra and Mrs. Sander, do not make nice, shapely pot plants like the old variety, nor will they bloom as early or as freely.

Shading.

While we have spells of dark weather, the sun is now getting quite strong and some shade on palms, ferns and other foliage plants is necessary. Kerosene and white lead makes a neat and easily applied shade. It can be made thin to apply with a force pump or can be put on with a long-handled whitewash brush. Only a thin shade should be applied as yet. Some orchids, especially such as are in flower, will need shade, also flowering plants of any variety which it is desired to retard. It is important to shade newly potted cuttings, but this is better in the form of cheesecloth or something movable, rather than a permanent roof shade.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

FRED COWPERTHWAITE.

FRED COWPERTHWAITE.

WHEN you meet Fred Cowperthwaite at the National Flower Show you are at liberty to fire at him all the questions that you have been choking up inside you from the moment you stepped within the door of that wonderful exhibition—that's what Cowperthwaite is there for, to fire questions at. Probably you know a lot of men who can answer questions if you give them time, but how many do you know who can come right slap-bang back at you with the answer, the right answer, every time? But that's Cowperthwaite. He seems to have his great store of knowledge all card-indexed in his mind, where he can get it out at a moment's notice. That's why they made him chairman of the Committee on Information for America's greatest show. And it's why he is a popular lecturer before the garden clubs around Philadelphia, where they have a habit of trying to heckle the speaker. It can't be done with Cowperthwaite.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Alvin, Tex.—Negotiations are pending by which the receivership of the Alvin-Japanese Nursery Co., which has been in the courts for a year and a half, will be terminated, according to papers filed in the Eleventh District court in Texas. An order was issued by the court directing the sale of the nursery and other property of the company near Alvin within thirty days, dating from March 13. When the receiver was appointed the assets of the company were said to amount to $200,000 and the liabilities $110,000. By good management and sales of property at different times, all the creditors are being satisfied. The final sale of the property and the payment of all debts will terminate the receivership. The business, of course, will be continued by the purchasers.

Springfield, O.—At a recent meeting of the Springfield Florists' Club tree planting in the city was discussed by the members. As a step to better the conditions pertaining to this work and to bring about an organized effort, a committee consisting of George H. Mellen, George D. Leedle and Arthur J. Todd was appointed to recommend to the city that a forester be appointed. R. H. Murphy, of Urbana, and Thomas McBeth, of this city, discussed the planting of trees, and A. C. MICHIGANDERS MEET.

Saginaw-Bay City Society.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society was held March 14, at Teutonia hall, Saginaw. From this meeting will spring the initiative for the organization of a state association of florists and gardeners. The annual business and election of officers were postponed until the next monthly meeting of the society, April 3. The April meeting will be held at the Boehringer Bros. store, Bay City, and the members will be the guests of John Irvine. The postponement of the annual election was made on account of the large number of out-of-town attendants. The afternoon was largely spent in getting acquainted, many of the attending florists having never met before.

The meeting was held on the second floor of the building, and the entire hall was handsomely decorated by Saginaw florists. A large emblem of the society, about three feet in diameter, was cleverly made of carnations and ferns.

The Banquet.

At 7 o'clock the assemblage sat down to the annual banquet. The decorations of the tables were unique, being made up of red, pink and white carnations and roses. Each of the ladies was presented with a corsage bouquet of violets. After the serving, Rudolph Boehringer, of Bay City, president of the society, assumed the role of toastmaster, and called upon a number of those present for toasts in "flower language." Many things of interest to the profession were discussed at length, both by the members of the club and by the guests, prominent among these being Harry Balsley, of Detroit. Mr. Balsley spoke primarily on the possibilities of a state organization, offering as an example the accomplishment by the Illinois State Florists' Association of securing a plant disease college. He also spoke of the necessity for the florist to inventory his physical strength, as well as his business strength, yearly. Following this toast a vote was taken, and the unanimous approval of the gathering was for the appointment of a committee by the society to confer with other local clubs or societies on the formation of a state organization. This committee will be selected at the next meeting of the society.

The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society was organized in 1913 at a meeting held in Saginaw, and has grown rapidly in numbers and in popularity.

BOSTON SPRING EXHIBITION.

Successful Despite Cold.

In spite of a much restricted schedule in deference to the Philadelphia show and unusually severe climatic conditions, roads being blocked with snow and the temperature down to zero both March 17 and 18, the spring show held at Horticultural hall March 17 to March 19 was an excellent one, all halls being well filled. The large rambler roses and hard-wooded plants were missed, but groups, bulbous plants, cyclamens, carnations and orchids were particularly good. The show was well staged and every credit is due the exhibitors who sent in their plants under such adverse weather conditions. The awards follow:

Specimen acacia—W. W. Edgar Co., first, with a plant of A. heterophylla; William Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, second.

Six cinerarias, grandiflora type—Henry Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren, first; W. C. Rust, gardener to Mrs. C. G. Weld, second.

Specimen Cineraria grandiflora—W. C. Rust, first.

Six cinerarias, stellata type—William Thatcher, first; Duncan Finlayson, gardener for Weld Garden, second.

Specimen Cineraria stellata—William Thatcher, first; Duncan Finlayson, second.

Cyclamens, eight plants—E. H. Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. Lester Leland, first; William Thatcher, second.

Cyclamens, six plants—William Thatcher, first; Donald McKenzie, gardener to E. B. Dane, second.

Cyclamens, ten plants, $50 cup offered by Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston—E. H. Wetterlow.

Six cytisus and six ericas—Henry Stewart, first in each class.

Six hard-wooded plants other than acacias and ericas—W. W. Edgar Co., first; Duncan Finlayson, second.

Six pans hyacinths—Duncan Finlayson, first.

One pan hyacinths—J. L. Smith, gardener to A. W. Preston, first and second.

Twelve lilies—W. W. Edgar Co., first.

Six lily of the valley—J. L. Smith, first; Edward Parker, gardener to Oliver Ames, second.

Narcissi, large trumpet, twelve pots—J. L. Smith, first, with a splendid lot consisting of Vanda, Van Waveren's Giant, King Alfred, Sampson, Empress, Mrs. J. B. M. Camm, Glory of Noordwijk, Spring Glory and Glory of Leiden; Duncan Finlayson, second.

Narcissi, large trumpet, four pots—Duncan Finlayson, first.

Narcissi, short trumpet, twelve pots—J. L. Smith, first, with Gloria Mundi, Lucifer, Stella superba, Mrs. Langtry, Leedsii Grand Duchess, Minnie Hume, Lulworth Beauty, Princess Mary, Cynosure, Sir Watkin and poeticus Grand Praecox; Duncan Finlayson, second.

Orchid group, arranged for effect—W. C. Rust, first.

The Large Exhibits.

William T. Walke had a fine 500-foot group of foliage and flowering plants. It included some grand French hydrangeas, six feet across, rambler roses, etc. For the best-arranged group of flowering and foliage plants there was a close contest between the W. W. Edgar Co. and W. C. Rust, who finally won in that order.

T. D. Hatfield, gardener to Walter Hunnewell, who had a splendid group of Dendrobium nobile in numerous forms, was awarded a first-class certificate. He also displayed large Erica melanthera. Donald McKenzie secured a silver medal for a plant of Odontioda Bradshawiæ, and a cultural certificate for Sophro-Cattleya Thwaitsiæ. Thomas Roland had a table of beautifully flowered Erica melanthera. William Thatcher also had a display of this erica. Donald McKenzie had a fine display of cyclamens. Thomas T. Watt had tree peonies, Osgood Bros. excellent pansies and Henry Stewart one of his big, notable specimens of Dendrobium nobile.

No prizes were offered for retailers, but quite a number made nice displays. The Boston Cut Flower Co. had several decorated dinner tables. H. R. Comley and Caplan, the Florist, decorated other tables. The Houghton-Gorney Co. had an artistic display of cut flowers and plants.

Paul E. Richwagen showed several vases of seedling antirrhinums. W. C. Rust received a certificate of merit for his pink antirrhinum, Weld Pink. The F. H. Lemon Co. received a certificate of merit for a nice pink form of Primula malacoides named rosea. A. N. Pierson received honorable mention for Red Radiance and Lady Alice Stanley roses. W. R. Nicholson and S. J. Goddard showed a vase of Dorner's latest seedlings. E. A. Richards showed a new deep pink seedling carnation.

The largest and most notable display in the exhibition was that of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., which was in the form of a charming spring flower garden. A fountain played in the center, around which were beds of various spring bulbous plants. Banked up along the sides were quantities of forced shrubs and soft-wooded plants. The laburnums, wistaria and Azalea Kæmpferi were worthy of special note; also Lilium myriophyllum, or regale. This fine exhibit, which entailed a lot of labor, was worthily awarded a gold medal.

There was a good attendance at the exhibition, the halls being particularly crowded on the closing day, Sunday, March 19. W. N. Craig.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met in New York March 13, to go over the work of preparation for the coming exhibition and annual meeting. The annual meeting will be held in Convention hall, Philadelphia, at 7:30 p. m., Monday, March 27.

The judges appointed for the various classes at the show are as follows:

Private cut roses, March 27, 2 p. m.—Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y.; Eugene Dailledouze, Flatbush, N. Y.; Victor Groshens, Roslyn, Pa.
Commercial growers, March 27, 2 p. m.—Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill.; John H. Dunlop, Toronto; Wm. L. Rock, Kansas City.
Class for 25s, March 27, 2 p. m.—Frank H. Traendly, New York; Fred Burki, Pittsburgh; Robert Craig, Philadelphia.
Plants, March 25, 1 p. m.—Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; Alex. B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; George C. Thomas, Jr., Philadelphia.
Rose display, March 30, 2 p. m.—A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia; James Forbes, Portland, Ore.; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo.

MICHIGANDERS MEET.

Saginaw-Bay City Society.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society was held March 14, at Teutonia hall, Saginaw. From this meeting will spring the initiative for the organization of a state association of florists and gardeners. The annual business and election of officers were postponed until the next monthly meeting of the society, April 3. The April meeting will be held at the Boehringer Bros. store, Bay City, and the members will be the guests of John Irvine. The postponement of the annual election was made on account of the large number of out-of-town attendants. The afternoon was largely spent in getting acquainted, many of the attending florists having never met before.

The meeting was held on the second floor of the building, and the entire hall was handsomely decorated by Saginaw florists. A large emblem of the society, about three feet in diameter, was cleverly made of carnations and ferns.

The Banquet.

At 7 o'clock the assemblage sat down to the annual banquet. The decorations of the tables were unique, being made up of red, pink and white carnations and roses. Each of the ladies was presented with a corsage bouquet of violets. After the serving, Rudolph Boehringer, of Bay City, president of the society, assumed the role of toastmaster, and called upon a number of those present for toasts in "flower language." Many things of interest to the profession were discussed at length, both by the members of the club and by the guests, prominent among these being Harry Balsley, of Detroit. Mr. Balsley spoke primarily on the possibilities of a state organization, offering as an example the accomplishment by the Illinois State Florists' Association of securing a plant disease college. He also spoke of the necessity for the florist to inventory his physical strength, as well as his business strength, yearly. Following this toast a vote was taken, and the unanimous approval of the gathering was for the appointment of a committee by the society to confer with other local clubs or societies on the formation of a state organization. This committee will be selected at the next meeting of the society.

The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society was organized in 1913 at a meeting held in Saginaw, and has grown rapidly in numbers and in popularity.

BOSTON SPRING EXHIBITION.

Successful Despite Cold.

In spite of a much restricted schedule in deference to the Philadelphia show and unusually severe climatic conditions, roads being blocked with snow and the temperature down to zero both March 17 and 18, the spring show held at Horticultural hall March 17 to March 19 was an excellent one, all halls being well filled. The large rambler roses and hard-wooded plants were missed, but groups, bulbous plants, cyclamens, carnations and orchids were particularly good. The show was well staged and every credit is due the exhibitors who sent in their plants under such adverse weather conditions. The awards follow:

Specimen acacia—W. W. Edgar Co., first, with a plant of A. heterophylla; William Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, second.

Six cinerarias, grandiflora type—Henry Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren, first; W. C. Rust, gardener to Mrs. C. G. Weld, second.

Specimen Cineraria grandiflora—W. C. Rust, first.

Six cinerarias, stellata type—William Thatcher, first; Duncan Finlayson, gardener for Weld Garden, second.

Specimen Cineraria stellata—William Thatcher, first; Duncan Finlayson, second.

Cyclamens, eight plants—E. H. Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. Lester Leland, first; William Thatcher, second.

Cyclamens, six plants—William Thatcher, first; Donald McKenzie, gardener to E. B. Dane, second.

Cyclamens, ten plants, $50 cup offered by Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston—E. H. Wetterlow.

Six cytisus and six ericas—Henry Stewart, first in each class.

Six hard-wooded plants other than acacias and ericas—W. W. Edgar Co., first; Duncan Finlayson, second.

Six pans hyacinths—Duncan Finlayson, first.

One pan hyacinths—J. L. Smith, gardener to A. W. Preston, first and second.

Twelve lilies—W. W. Edgar Co., first.

Six lily of the valley—J. L. Smith, first; Edward Parker, gardener to Oliver Ames, second.

Narcissi, large trumpet, twelve pots—J. L. Smith, first, with a splendid lot consisting of Vanda, Van Waveren's Giant, King Alfred, Sampson, Empress, Mrs. J. B. M. Camm, Glory of Noordwijk, Spring Glory and Glory of Leiden; Duncan Finlayson, second.

Narcissi, large trumpet, four pots—Duncan Finlayson, first.

Narcissi, short trumpet, twelve pots—J. L. Smith, first, with Gloria Mundi, Lucifer, Stella superba, Mrs. Langtry, Leedsii Grand Duchess, Minnie Hume, Lulworth Beauty, Princess Mary, Cynosure, Sir Watkin and poeticus Grand Prae cox; Duncan Finlayson, second.

AMONG TEWKSBURY GROWERS.

Louis E. Small.

Mr. Small is probably the most successful grower of bachelor's buttons in New England, if not in America. Three roomy houses are devoted to them. The plants now average four to four and one-half feet in height and give a lot of flowers, which realize as much money as carnations. Two houses are devoted to carnations. Champion I have never seen better grown than here. There are few splits. Alice has proved to be a free bloomer. Pink Delight has been dropped. White Wonder proves far more floriferous than Matchless. A scarlet and a deep pink seedling looked promising.

A. Streckwald.

Sweet peas are grown at Mr. Streckwald's place; also a considerable number of carnations. Benora, Pink Delight and Winsor looked particularly well.

J. K. Chandler & Sons.

Among the newer Tewksbury firms are J. K. Chandler & Sons. Yellow marguerites are largely grown and are doing well. Sweet peas were coming along in quantity. Violets, Spanish iris, gladioli and calendulas are all grown well. Carnations are also grown. The best varieties noted were Beacon, Benora, Champion, Matchless, White Wonder and Philadelphia.

H. S. Chandler & Sons.

Another new firm is that of H. S. Chandler & Sons, who grow chrysanthemums heavily, particularly the early ones; these are followed by single violets and Spencer sweet peas.

There are other Tewksbury establishments, in addition to those named, which time would not permit me to visit on this trip. W. N. Craig.

POTTED PLANTS FOR BLOOM.

Will you please give me a list of the best plants to grow in pots to bloom in the house from the end of June until the end of September? I would like to grow them from seeds or bulbs, anything except hydrangeas. What could be grown now, and what could be grown for another year?

J. C. S.—Ill.

The following flowering plants will bloom after the end of June: Gloxinias and tuberous begonias, each from seeds sown early, or from bulbs, which can be purchased now; fuchsias, propagated from cuttings; Allamanda Williamsi, from cuttings; achimenes, plant corms now; Trachelium cæruleum, from seeds or cuttings of previous year; Clerodendron fallax, from seed; zonale geraniums, and abutilons, from cuttings; browallias, seeds or cuttings; Lasiandra macrantha; Linum trigynum, cuttings; such fibrous-rooted begonias as Gloire de Chatelaine, seeds or cuttings; Lilium speciosum and L. auratum, potted the previous winter. C. W.

Rochester, N. Y.—Owing to a severe case of quinsy, it will be necessary for Horace J. Head to undergo special treatment at one of the city hospitals. Mr. Head trusts that there will be no inconvenience caused by the omission of the weekly Rochester letter from The Review for a short time.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Moisture and Ventilation.

In two previous articles, in the issues of The Review dated March 9 and 16, the writer offered some suggestions on sowing tomato seed and on transplanting the seedlings to flats.

While these young tomato plants are growing, we must not forget that tomatoes require a dry, buoyant atmosphere. Too much moisture will cause weak and sappy growth, a most undesirable state of things. Great care must be taken in watering the young plants. Do not water them unless they want it, and then soak them thoroughly.

Free ventilation should always be given when possible. Always avoid a draft, but ventilate sufficiently to maintain a dry, buoyant atmosphere. In extremely hot weather leave the ventilators open all night.

Planting on Benches.

As soon as the plants in 3-inch pots have filled the pots with roots, plant them out in their permanent quarters. This is an operation that should never be delayed. If the plants remain in the pots too long, they will become potbound. The foliage will turn yellow and drop off. The plants will rapidly deteriorate and will not be of much use to the grower. It is better to plant them out a week early than a week too late. To be in time, you must plant in time.

To get tomatoes really early, they should be planted on raised benches. The bottom heat thus obtained will accelerate the growth and make it continuous. Tomatoes like a dry, warm atmosphere, with plenty of air. To get them early, the temperature in the daytime must range from 65 to 80 degrees or more, in clear weather. A steady, regular heat is the best. A low temperature and chill will hold back the early crop of tomatoes for weeks, and in many cases the chill will cause the flowers to drop instead of setting.

Compost for the Benches.

The compost for an ordinary 6-inch bench should consist of good fibrous loam, to which has been added well decayed stable manure in the proportion of one to six. This will give both chemical and physical action, invaluable to the plants. To this compost I would add one-fourth pound of superphosphate, one-half pound of bone meal and two ounces of potash sulphate to every two square yards of bench, forking this in just before planting the tomatoes. Some growers may object to this, but experience proves that tomatoes are heavy and balanced feeders. True, they can be spoiled in the early stage by gross feeding either in the form of sappy manure or an overdose of some compounded nitrogenous manure. This I have avoided, and it should always be avoided. It is an easy matter to turn a fruiting plant into a foliage plant, thereby having your first fruit trusses a foot from the soil instead of having two bunches in that space.

The condition of the compost is an essential point. It should be sufficiently moist to hold together in the hand when squeezed, and dry enough to fall to pieces when released. A sodden soil means a cold soil; a cold soil means no root action; no root action means no growth, and this spells disaster.

Taking it for granted that we are going to grow the plants on the single stem, they should be planted eighteen inches apart each way. Make the ground quite firm around the plants when planting. F. E. B.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Last week several hundred feet of motion pictures, a part of a weekly news film, showed a large field of Easter lilies in full bloom in Massachusetts. Outdoors, in March! If there were any florists in the audience it is safe to say that they were mildly astounded at seeing Easter lilies flowering in the open in Massachusetts the second week of March. The literature accompanying the picture said that the lilies recently were photographed at the R. & J. Farquhar & Co. greenhouses, Roslindale, Mass., and, further, that these flowers were grown in large nummers in anticipation of a heavy demand at Easter. Notwithstanding that Easter this year is April 23, these motion picture lilies persisted in blooming outdoors more than a month ahead of time! Perhaps the whole thing was a trick of photography, intended to fool the people but not the florists. The truth probably is that a field of Lilium myriophyllum was photographed sometime last summer, and the film put on the shelf for a year. But then, better late than never.

FLOWER GUM.

Can you give me any information as to a preparation of mucilage for pelargoniums? It is called floral cement in England, and is dropped in the center of the flowers from a small oil can, to prevent the flowers from falling. Where can it be bought? J. E. T.—Wis.

Floral gum, or cement, is used to a large extent in England and has been for many years, especially in the centers of pelargonium flowers, either cut or on the plants, when they are sent to the market. A single drop suffices for each flower. Thin mucilage might answer, but is not so colorless as floral gum. I do not know of any American concern offering this cement. Sutton & Sons and other English houses offer it at 1 shilling and 2 shillings per bottle. It would import easily. C. W.

LILY LEAVES BROWNING.

Will you please tell us the cause of the brown spots on the ends of the enclosed lily leaves? You will notice that only the tips of the leaves are affected. K. & S. C.—Wis.

This may be due to disease in the bulbs, improper temperatures or too much water. Keep your temperature for giganteums about 60 degrees at night, water them carefully and spray them freely, and I do not think the trouble will spread. Such leaves often appear when bulbs have been overwatered in the early stages of growth and the plants kept too cool. C. W.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Various Notes.

Northrup, King & Co. have altered their retail department, and now certainly have one of the finest seed stores in the country. A splendidly equipped counter runs the entire length of the store. It is tastefully set out, and all kinds of garden seeds are nicely displayed. One great feature of this concern is its sale of return collections of boxed seeds. The cases are a decoration to any store, and the seeds are reliable in quality and germination.

O. C. Swanson last week had a good display of spring flowers in his store on Nicollet avenue. Attractive baskets are always a feature, and it is really surprising what can be done without repeating the decoration.

The Chicago Avenue Greenhouses have a fine lot of stock coming on for the Easter trade. Business has been up to the standard this winter.

Hans Rosacker now has 60,000 square feet of glass. He is handling a fine cut of roses and carnations. The new block of houses was constructed with an eye to economy. Consider this for a motto: "Economize and you will rise." Where can this be more true than in the florists' business? Before building decide what you are going to grow, and have your houses built accordingly. This and more Mr. Rosacker has done.

The Eldridge Floral Co. is making improvements in its store and carries a good stock of high-grade flowers.

The Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses have a fine lot of schizanthus hybrids, mostly in 7-inch pots, for cutting. The color is something marvelous. I counted more than thirty shades of color in a hundred plants. Some of the plants were three feet high, and the foliage was fine.

The Lenten season has commenced, and the sale of cut flowers naturally has fallen off. All the growers are doing all they can to get their Easter stock in fine shape. Easter is a long way ahead, and the stock must be handled with great care.

St. Patrick's day was boosted for all it was worth. White carnations were dyed green. If a beautiful carnation could see itself dyed, I fully believe that it would really want to die. But then, why should the owl to the moon complain? The dyed carnation has its commercial value, and fills a good purpose, so here's to the gay and gallant Irish! May they live happily and die of old age.

The Mazey Floral Co. had a nice display of bulbous stock and an appropriate show for St. Patrick's day.

The Lake Street Florist Shop, Mr. Mitchell, proprietor, is certainly forging ahead. New interior decorations and two electric signs, backed by a nice selection of stock, have brought good business. Mr. Mitchell says if you want your wheelbarrow to go, push it yourself.

H. B. Whitted's window was decked out for St. Patrick's day. The decoration consisted of a typical "Pat" with a wheelbarrow full of "praties." Bedad, the whiskers of him were fine. Some said that he was from Mayo. One man said he was sure from Connemara. Another said he was from Tipperary, and grew his whiskers in the trenches. Just then a newsboy said: "Gee, Jimmy, his head's just a cocoanut!" It is surprising how one nut will draw another. This window was the essence of advertising. Attractive ads of attractive goods attract the attention of attentive people. The result is all-round satisfaction; advertise to emphasize.

The members of the Minneapolis park board were practically unanimous in favoring an increase in salary to $6,000 for Superintendent Wirth. Mr. Wirth, it is understood, has a $7,500 offer from Boston. The board members approved an increase of $300 for Mr. Bossen, assistant to Mr. Wirth, making his salary $2,700. The board engineer still is scheduled for an increase from $2,700 to $3,000. When the committee reached the proposed $300 increase for the head forester it encouraged objections from other members of the board; also on the proposal to increase the salary of the head gardener from $1,600 to $1,800. The increases were not allowed.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

About the only feature of last week's business was the heavy demand for white carnations. A sermon by Billy Sunday, on "Mothers," at which he requested his audience to wear white flowers, coupled with the demand for white for coloring for St. Patrick's day, made white carnations rather hard to secure and many orders were necessarily turned down. The Lenten season does not seem to have much effect on retail business. The stores are buying as largely as usual, but there has been a considerable decrease in funeral work. Stock generally has increased in supply; consequently prices have dropped somewhat, but no surplus of any size is noted.

Roses are in good supply and moving fairly well, but, strange to say, white is not in the demand it was up to a short time ago. Carnations have not as yet caught up with the demand, although dark-colored ones are lower in price. In bulbous stock tulips have shortened in supply, but there are enough of them for all demands. Daffodils are plentiful, but not moving briskly. In valley both the supply and the demand are light. Violets have been moving slowly and smilax still remains scarce. Asparagus is in good crop and selling well.

Various Notes.

Frank J. Le Clair, until recently salesman for the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., will engage in business for himself and open a city office at 409 North Howard street, about March 25, where a full line of sample nursery stock will be shown.

Philip B. Welsh has placed his order for material for a pipe-frame house, 37x100, to be added to his range at Glen Morris during the summer.

The first southern daffodils were seen on the streets last week. They are small and short of stem and are not being handled by the wholesale florists' houses, but by the street fakers, who have an agency through which they secure them from the southern growers.

The Griffith & Turner Co., in addition to its line of seeds and implements, has taken the agency for a well known make of automobile tires.

A. A. Niessen, of Philadelphia, was a caller last week.

The street merchants who have sold flowers along Lexington street for many years were notified March 18 that that would be their last day. This is a subject which has created considerable discussion among the trade at different times. The street venders have been removed often, only to be back at their old stands shortly afterwards. This, however, seems to be the final disposition of them, as the city officials have taken the matter up in earnest. This will not interfere with those occupying licensed stands on Eutaw street and Lexington street, about twenty-five feet east of Eutaw, but any stall or stand outside the market limits is prohibited.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the party attending the National Flower Show at Philadelphia has decided on going Wednesday, March 29, on the train leaving Union station at 9 a. m. This is a through train and makes the trip in two hours. Many members of the local club have signified their intention of going and it is hoped that as many as possible will go on this date, so as to make the best possible showing for the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore.

William F. Gude and a committee from Washington were on a visit to this city last week to secure entries for the Atlantic Coast Bowling Tournament, which will be held at Washington in April.

The next club meeting will be held March 27.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Club's Monthly Trip.

Tuesday morning, March 14, at 11:30, the Lancaster County Florists' Club left on its monthly visiting trip, to call on Maurice J. Brinton, at Christiana. As is well known, Mr. Brinton is one of the foremost lily growers in the country, having quantities of blooms every day of the year. He had an immense planting of Paper Whites this winter, and realized good prices for them. Four large houses of carnations were in fine condition. The old variety, Victory, as grown here, leaves nothing to be desired in color. Mr. Brinton will erect a new greenhouse this spring, 40x140 feet. Quality is the keynote of the product of this establishment, and a visit to it is always a privilege.

A call was then made on J. Rutter Hess & Son, at Gap, Pa. They grow carnations extensively and the stock looked well. White Enchantress does especially well here and is preferred to Matchless. They grow large quantities of vegetable plants in the spring, which are sold locally. The place throughout is a model of neatness.

Paradise, Pa., was the next stop-over, and here Ira H. Landis was called upon. Considerable space is devoted to carnations. His stock is in fine order and an examination of the plants revealed a heavy cut during midwinter. Mr. Landis is a firm believer in growing the various shades of carnations, other than white, pink and red. His beds of Princess Dagmar, Benora and Yellow Prince were especially fine. Mrs. Akehurst has given such a good account of itself here that the planting of it will be largely increased next season. Mr. Landis also grows quantities of freesias, calendulas, lupines, Spanish iris, gladioli, etc. Last, but not least, the host had the visitors sample his home-made cherry wine and Mrs. Landis' delicious cookies, both of which were pronounced splendid.

Charles M. Weaver, of Ronks, was the next grower called upon. His two 400-foot houses, planted to peas, were a pleasing sight. From one of the houses blooms have been cut since December, while from the other house the first blooms are being cut. Mr. Weaver has a number of varieties of his own selection, which are distinct and rank among the best in the market today.

At the Elmer J. Weaver place, also at Ronks, the standard varieties of carnations are grown in quantity. A house which produced a crop of tomatoes earlier in the season is planted to sweet peas, stocks and lettuce—a good combination for a follow-up crop. Many thousands of asters are on their way and the usual large planting will be made.

The Club Meeting.

Returning to Lancaster, a dozen of the florists sat down to dinner at the Brunswick hotel with R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., who had just arrived for the evening meeting of the club.

At 7:30 p. m. President Harry A. Schroyer called the meeting to order. The following were elected members: R. J. Antes, Frank Hauck, Paul Murphy and W. M. Hawman.

The club voted $50 to the city's fund to secure a site for the proposed armory, which will be built by the state and which will be an appropriate place to hold the chrysanthemum shows of the club in the future. The committee arranging a ladies' night for April reported progress.

The club has ordered 100 tickets for the National Flower Show and indications are that Lancaster county florists will be there almost to a man. The event of the evening was the lecture of R. Vincent, Jr., on "The Bulb Fields of Holland," illustrated with a large number of slides. Most of the pictures were taken by members of Mr. Vincent's party when they visited Holland a few years ago. Most of the ladies of the Florists' Club were present and all voted the meeting one of the most pleasant ever held.

Various Notes.

The Lancaster City and County Florists' and Gardeners' Employees' Fraternity is the name of a floricultural organization recently formed. The officers are: President, Louis Benner; secretary, Edward Geiter. The fraternity has secured the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the meetings. The membership numbers forty. The object of the fraternity is to assist its members morally, financially and educationally. The next meeting will be held March 28. Steps are being taken to arrange a series of lectures on plant life and propagation of plants. Alphonse Peters is taking an active part in organizing the association. The Lancaster County Florists' Club extends its best wishes to the new association.

H. K. R.

Dallas, Tex.—March 6 was rose planting day in Dallas. The mayor in a proclamation asked the people to beautify their homes by planting rose bushes. Apparently the mayor is a good business booster.

New Orleans, La.—Plans for the spring flower show of the New Orleans Horticultural Society have been completed. The beneficiary of the exhibition this year will be the Louisiana Anti-Tuberculosis League, and the officers of the society, Henry Scheuermann, J. Farley, C. R. Panter and John Eblen, are working hard to break the attendance record during the four days of the show, April 6 to 9.

Knoxville, Tenn.—"Baum's Home of Flowers," the new store of Charles L. Baum, at Market street and Clinch avenue, had an auspicious formal opening March 9 and 10. Every visitor was presented with a flower souvenir. The well known proprietor is assisted by his two sons, Karl P. Baum, manager, who recently was elected president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, and Roy L. Baum, who has charge of the growing end, at the greenhouses. Charles Baum is a member of the board of directors of the S. A. F.

Orange, Tex.—A greenhouse, 33x75 feet, is being erected by Mrs. H. J. Lutcher.

Houston, Tex.—Louis Buchner, formerly grower at the Brazos Greenhouses, has gone into business for himself on Hutchins street.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Another woman to enter the business is Mrs. R. King, who grows flowers for the retail trade and does a little market gardening on the side.

Louisville, Ky.—The contract for decorating the exhibition hall of this year's automobile show was awarded to the E. G. Reimers & Sons Co. The large hall, 200x300 feet, was decorated to resemble a colonial rose garden. The many booths were separated by white-enameled picket fences, which were covered with southern smilax and pink roses. The overhead decoration was obtained by running wires lengthwise and crosswise, and attaching to these smilax and roses. Frosted lights at intervals of eighteen inches enhanced the effect at night. The balcony was elaborately decorated with cedar trees and laurel. More than 6,000 paper roses, a carload of smilax and fifty palms and ferns were used.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Matthew Crawford.

Mrs. Ellen K. Crawford was instantly killed on the evening of March 2, by an interurban car in Cuyahoga Falls, O., where she had lived for many years. In crossing the tracks she became confused by the glare of a swiftly passing automobile and stepped back in the way of an approaching car. She was not cut or mangled, but the injuries were such as to cause instant death. Mrs. Crawford was the wife of the well known horticulturist, Matthew Crawford. She was born in 1840 and they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary December 31, 1915. She was a prominent teacher for many years, one of the public schools being named in her honor. She leaves her husband, two sons and a host of friends. The Gladiolus Society of Ohio, of which she was a charter member, through a committee has prepared a memorial of appreciation of her beautiful life.

W. A. C.

Wickliffe L. Smith.

Wickliffe L. Smith, for more than fifty years a florist, died March 17 in the St. Joseph's hospital, Aurora, Ill., at the age of 64. Mr. Smith was taken ill early in the winter and gradually grew weaker until three weeks ago, when he was taken to the hospital for treatment.

The deceased moved to Aurora from the east in 1860 and established his business on North View street. In his prime he was considered one of the best florists in the middle west and was unusually successful in propagating plants. In 1902 Mr. Smith retired from the business, and from that time on worked for various concerns in Aurora. He was a charter member of the S. A. F. His wife and three daughters survive him.

Mr. Smith was well known in the east, having worked there for several years. At the funeral March 19 there were many floral tributes from his friends in the trade. The pallbearers, all of whom are florists, were J. M. Smely, Frank Shaffer, C. Nielsen and Peter A. Freeman, all of Aurora; L. C. Worth, of Mooseheart, Ill., and Charles McCauley, of Geneva, Ill.

John Adam Klehm.

John Adam Klehm, of Arlington Heights, Ill., a pioneer nurseryman, died March 16, aged 81 years. The funeral was held March 18, at his late residence, Rev. Charles Noack officiating. Interment in the Lutheran cemetery.

John Adam Klehm was born July 14, 1834, in Duedelsheim, Hessen Darmstadt, Germany. His father died July 5, 1840, and in June, 1851, his mother and her two sons, John and George, came to America. They lived in the town of Seneca and the city of Buffalo, N. Y., until the spring of 1855, when they moved to Jefferson Park, Ill. Two years later, they moved to Arlington Heights, then called Dunton, where John Klehm lived until his death. He was married to Elizabeth Stitz January 11, 1862, in Chicago. The young couple took up married life in Arlington Heights, and were identified with the early advancement and growth of the village. To them were born five children, three of whom, George, Charles and Henry, are living.

Klehm's Nurseries will ever stand as a monument to the memory of the man who gave the best years of his life to developing it, who raised three sons, of exemplary character, and educated them in the ways of business, until they lifted the burden from their father's shoulders.

Mr. Klehm suffered for a large share of his life, but he seldom complained, even during the last eight months of his life, when he was unable to lie down, but was compelled to remain in an easy chair.

There remain to cherish his memory his wife, three sons, George and Charles, of Arlington Heights, Henry, of Moline, fifteen grandchildren, and a brother in Niles Center, Ill.

George L. Freeman.

George L. Freeman, of Fall River, Mass., died at his home, 469 Locust street, March 9, after an illness of only two days.

Quiet and unassuming in manner, it is doubtful if there was any florist who had a more comprehensive knowledge of the trade in this country, or who enjoyed a larger acquaintance. He was known and liked as well on the Pacific coast and in the middle west as in his own native New England. For many years he had done a large business in imported orchid plants, making collecting trips to Central and South America to obtain stock to fill orders accumulated as the result of long journeys through the United States to call on orchid growers; he once told the writer of this note that he had for years averaged 30,000 miles of travel per year and his stories of his varied experiences in the business made him an always welcome visitor wherever trade information is in request. There was no one who had a more exact knowledge of commercial orchids or of the market conditions as relates to orchid blooms. While he specialized on orchids his views were so broad that his knowledge extended to all other flowers competing with orchids in the markets and in retail stores. Mr. Freeman had booked passage for South America, intending to sail from New York March 15, and the portrait herewith presented is prepared from a photograph made on the Monday before his death.

Mr. Freeman was born at Wellfleet, Mass., where he conducted his orchid business for some years before he removed to Fall River. The remains were taken to Wellfleet for interment by the Adams lodge of Masons. He is survived by his widow, Catherine J. Freeman, who, as administratrix of his estate, will carry on the business.

George L. Freeman.

Jacob H. Harvey.

Funeral services for Jacob Henry Harvey, of 189 Broad street, Newark, N. J., were held from his late home Thursday evening, March 16. Mr. Harvey died after a five weeks' illness from the grip and pleuro-pneumonia, at St. Michael's hospital, March 14. Early in the year Mr. Harvey contracted the grip and was obliged to quit business. A few days later Mrs. Harvey also got the grip. She recovered in a short time, but Mr. Harvey had a series of relapses. About three weeks before his death he and Mrs. Harvey went to Atlantic City, in the hope that the change would do them good. While there he seemed to be improving, but after he returned home pleuro-pneumonia set in and he was taken to the hospital.

Mr. Harvey was born in Newark, but was educated in a private school in Richmond, Va. For a while he was in the florists' business in the south. When he returned to Newark he started a flower store on Broad street, opposite the Continental hotel. Mr. Harvey was the fourth generation of Newark florists of that name. His great-grandfather, Jacob J., and his grandfather, Levinas J. Harvey, carried on a florists' business on a tract of land on Belleville avenue, near where the Mt. Pleasant cemetery now is. Harvey street, which now extends through that plot, was named after Mr. Harvey's grandfather.

Surviving him are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. William W. Macknaughton, and three sons, Otley C., Jacob J. and Blakely Harvey. Mr. Harvey also is survived by three sisters. R. B. M.

Ruth L. Plumb.

Ruth L. Plumb, wife of John C. Plumb, landscape gardener, died at the home of her parents, 7200 Yale avenue, Chicago, March 20. She was in her twenty-fourth year. Funeral services were held March 22. Interment was in Mount Hope cemetery. She is survived by her husband, both parents and a sister.

Elizabeth Klevern.

Following an illness extending over many months, Elizabeth Klevern, wife of Leonard Klevern, doing business at Chicago as the Fifty-ninth Street Florist, died March 18 of consumption. Mrs. Klevern was born in Holland, February 19, 1883. Funeral services were held in the home at 6008 Union avenue, at 2 p. m., March 21. Interment was in Mount Hope cemetery. She is survived by her husband and one child, a boy of 4 years.

Charles E. Pierce.

Charles E. Pierce, of Washington, D. C., died March 14 at one of the local hospitals, to which he had been taken a few hours before when stricken with a sudden illness. He was 39 years of age and is survived by four brothers, James F., John H., William T. and George E. Pierce. He was the son of the late William P. Pierce, who, prior to his death ten years ago, was engaged for a quarter of a century in the florists' business on Bowen road. The deceased succeeded his father in the business. C. L. L.

DIVIDING CANNA ROOTS.

Will you please tell me the best way to start cannas and how to cut them for starting? I have heretofore bought them ready for starting.

F. H. W.—N. Y.

Divide the roots with a strong, sharp knife, leaving a single strong eye to each division. Start these in a warm, moist house. Lay the sets in flats containing some moss, or stand them directly on the benches, preferably where they can get some bottom heat. Pot as soon as the roots are nicely started.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

PRACTICALLY all The Review's foreign mail, even that originating in Holland, arrives resealed with the stickers of the British censor.

THE market for geraniums appears to be absolutely without limit. At present it is the trade that is buying, but soon the public will be calling for them and then nothing but plants showing flower will do.

THERE is a decidedly active demand for cuttings of Carnation Good Cheer, with extremely few on the market. Those who bought it last year are reserving their stock for their own use next season.

A NEW steel frame greenhouse less than forty-one feet wide is an exception in the experience of Lord & Burnham Co., according to George Sykes, the western manager. Standard widths run from forty-one to eighty feet, he says.

IN the flower business the arrival of Lent scarcely was apparent this year. In the early days of the trade, business, except funeral work, practically ceased on Ash Wednesday and was light until Easter, but in these modern days flowers are not among the things eschewed during the forty days.

IF you send a man an order which cannot be filled at once you like to receive an acknowledgment of it with information as to the shipping date. Well, in case you receive such an order, apply the golden rule. A postal card will do. Have some printed so you only need fill in a couple of blanks. Keep them on hand. Send one on receipt of every order.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

PIPE PRICES BOOSTED AGAIN.

The National Tube Co., followed by all independent pipe concerns, March 15 announced an advance of from $2 to $6 a ton on all black pipe up to twelve inches in diameter and from $2 to $10 a ton on galvanized pipe in the same sizes, the same to take effect at once. A Pittsburgh trade authority says the advance was anticipated, owing to steadily increasing costs of production and serious situation regarding the supply of raw materials.

PRIZE ROSE IS NAMED.

Just for fear you missed this item in the San Francisco news-letter of The Review last week, the following item is reprinted here:

The $1,000 prize rose grown and exhibited at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition has been named Lillian Moore, after the wife of Charles C. Moore, president of the exposition. The international jury of awards, which had the naming of the rose, made the announcement a few days ago, after sending the prize check of $1,000 to Hugh Dickson, of Belfast, Ireland, its creator.

The rose is to be distributed next year by Charles H. Totty, who is American agent for Dickson's novelties.

THE TELEGRAPH DELIVERY.

A meeting of the members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery is scheduled for Thursday, March 30, 2 p. m., at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia.

In connection with the National Flower Show the F. T. D. will work a unique publicity stunt, assisted by its members and the Western Union Telegraph Co. On the morning of the opening of the show at Philadelphia each member of the F. T. D. will receive a night letter signed and sent from the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Publicity Booth, directing the member to send a box of flowers to the mayor of his town. The telegram, which will come from Secretary Pochelon, will direct that the card on the flowers should read: "Greetings to your Honor from the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Service, Fourth National Show at Philadelphia."

The mayor of every town can be expected to reply and the replies will be pinned onto a 9-foot map of the United States which will show the towns in which there are members. This map will be in the F. T. D. booth during the time of the national show.

The committee that has charge of the publicity for the F. T. D. work at the National Flower Show was much impressed with this scheme and Secretary Pochelon is sure the trade will get a lot of good from it.

TO KEW MEN IN AMERICA.

A reunion and banquet for Kewites and their wives and friends has been arranged to be held at Shanley's, 117 West Forty-second street, New York, April 5, at 7 p. m., the opening day of the New York flower show. Tickets for the reunion may be had from William Free, of the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens, Brooklyn, N. Y., at $1.50 each. It is desired that all Kewites who wish to attend will write to Mr. Free and secure tickets, also for information regarding the reunion. The business meeting will be held at 7 p. m., and the banquet at 8 p. m., and arrangements have been made for the entertainment of the ladies during the business meeting. All Kewites are urged to attend. So do not forget the date, April 5; the place, Shanley's; the time, 7 p. m.

S. R. Candler, Cor. Sec'y.

ONCE AGAIN, CAN YOU BEAT IT?

When it comes to selling a lot of advertised goods at small cost for advertising, The Review is widely recognized as holding the record. Like this:

We enclose 60 cents to pay for classified ad. It did the business; cleaned us out and could have sold more had we been able to supply the stock.—Doty & Huggett, Grand Ledge, Mich., March 13, 1916.

I enclose $5.60 to cover your statement of March 1 for my 1-inch display ad. It is with pleasure I am paying this bill, as it gives the best returns of any investment I ever made.—H. L. Olsson, Spokane, Wash., March 11, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The official advent of spring, March 20, was accompanied, at Chicago, by a melange of rain, snow and sunshine. The last named element played only a subordinate part. The first two, however, had the effect of somewhat checking an unusually active market for the Lenten season. It is really remarkable what a negligible factor in market conditions Lent has thus far proved to be. Whether it is less generally observed than usual, or whether there are more funerals and sickness, it is hard to determine. The fact remains that with the exception of one or two days when the weather was decidedly disagreeable, the demand has been such as to leave little room for complaint. The market was practically cleaned out March 18 and 19.

The supply of spring Beauties is slowly gathering volume and there is a marked improvement in the quality of those appearing on the market. Russell, however, is still quite generally being offered as a substitute for Beauties. Russell is in good supply and is clearing, but not at an altogether satisfactory price. Milady manages to remain in the spotlight. Supply and demand for Killarney and Killarney Brilliant are balancing. A week ago White Killarney betrayed a tendency to drag, but by the end of the week there developed a lively demand for short stock to be used in funeral work. Ophelia, Sunburst and Ward are clearing. Long stock, however, in all varieties, is moving much more slowly than short stock.

The general demand for carnations is much more active than it was a week ago. If there is any variation in supply, it is toward the short side of the market. It is gratifying to note that the percentage of splits is growing smaller. Quality, on the whole, is fairly good. The demand for violets experienced a regenerating influence the end of last week, which completely cleared the market of both singles and doubles. It is complained, however, that doubles have been coming into the market in such poor condition that it is generally quite difficult to move them.

There is practically no change in the market conditions of miscellaneous stock. Jonquils are not moving in a satisfactory way and, as a result, there are many holdovers. Tulips still enjoy a fair degree of trade favor, the supply being small because so many have come blind this year. Freesia and sweet peas are giving a good account of themselves. The short side of the market still holds a strange fascination for valley. Easter lilies, of course, are brushing up to come into their own, and in consequence are objects of more than usual interest. The supply seems to be fair and the quality good. Calendulas, snapdragons, daisies, mignonette and pansies are available and move, though without any degree of ostentation.

Greens have been moving well and all kinds are in good supply with the exception of smilax.

Various Notes.

Having renewed his lease at the stand occupied for so many years, on Michigan avenue at Thirty-first street, W. J. Smyth will receive compensation for an increased rental through a new front to be put in this summer. At present the store has its principal window frontage on Thirty-first street, but after alterations are made the Michigan avenue side will be practically all display space to catch the eyes of automobilists who throng the boulevard.

John Prochazka has placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co. for material for three greenhouses 40x250 feet to be erected at his new location in Niles Center. Mr. Prochazka some years ago bought the original Adam Zender place in Rogers Park, whence he now is removing.

At a meeting March 18, called by Fred Lautenschlager, the greenhouse

The American Beauty rose will hold its place in the establishment of Wietor Bros. N. J. Wietor says he is convinced that on the whole the variety is losing its vitality, but that the Wietor Beauty houses have given so good an account of themselves that thus far there is nothing pays better.

If everyone could grow Killarney Brilliant like the crop now being cut by Meyer & Dramm Co., at Elmhurst, one never would hear a word of criticism of that variety.

Richard Rolston has not been with the Fleischman Floral Co. since March 15, his duties having been taken over by Arthur Weatherwax. Mr. Rolston says he is planning, with a partner, a start for himself.

White has been the standard color for wholesale cut flower establishments in this market, but the E. C. Amling Co. has just redecorated in buff, producing a most cheerful atmosphere.

When two automobiles collided at Montrose and Ashland avenues, March 19, August Poehlmann, his family and their guests were thrown to the pavement. A 4-year-old child was slightly injured, but the others escaped with a shaking up, although the Poehlmann Winton turned on its side. Miss Virginia was driving.

Practically all the material for George C. Weiland's new houses is on the ground at Niles Center and operations will begin as soon as frost is out of the ground. The location requires the movement of quite a quantity of soil to level the site before posts can be set.

When Emil Reichling carries his pedometer as he makes his rounds of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses it shows that one walks exactly a mile in passing once across each house in the range, down the center cross aisles, returning to the starting point.

At a meeting of the Horticultural Society last week it was decided to assume the $600 deficit that will remain after collecting the guarantees on the fall show. There were only two opposing votes, but there now is a resignation on file for future consideration.

A. L. Randall and Mrs. Randall returned March 17 from their annual Lenten visit to West Baden. Carl N. Thomas, who has spent the four winter months in the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., returned to his home at West Springfield, Pa., March 19. He is expected in Chicago again in the autumn.

and a severe attack of neuralgia, Otto Frese, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., is still on the job. John Enders is convalescing as rapidly as could be expected.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is regretting his inability to attend the National Flower Show, which will be held in his home town.

After a most enjoyable visit with relatives in Rock Island, Mrs. Allie Zech returned to Chicago March 19.

As a first step in preparedness for Easter, Louis W. Biermann, of Elmhurst, made a thorough inspection of the plant department of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, this week.

Several nice landscaping contracts are occupying the attention of D. D. P. Roy these days.

The Golden Floral Co., a wholesale establishment, was officially opened for business March 16 at 173 North Wabash avenue. J. M. Lampert, manager, says the new house will specialize in outdoor-grown stock and novelties. A remarkable feature of this concern is the fact that all stock handled by it is grown in California, whence shipments are made twice a week.

The smiling face of Charles Erne was seen on the market March 20 for the first time since his sojourn in Michael Reese hospital. It is hard to believe that he has been ill. His general appearance would indicate a two weeks' vacation at Palm Beach. Mr. Erne said the long hours in a hospital ward would have been unendurable but for The Review, which was sent to the hospital regularly.

Grafted rose stock has sold better this year than ever before in the experience of C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn. Ground was broken March 20 for the new greenhouses at Greggs. According to Mr. Washburn, this will give that firm 400,000 square feet of glass, and he says by the end of next year the total will be 1,000,000 square feet. This, he figures, will keep a building crew on the job until late fall and will give it work again as soon as frost is out of the ground next spring. Sunday, March 19, the Greggs range was visited by Otto and Walter Amling, who motored over from Maywood.

The shipping department of J. A. Budlong can again take a long breath. Roswell Schupp has sent word from Hot Springs, Ark., that he will be back on the job by the end of the week.

Some excellent stocks are being shipped by Charles Wiffin, of Des Plaines, to O. A. & L. A. Tonner.

March 20, the first day of spring, J. C. Michal opened his new store at 1168 Sixty-third street. Handsome new fixtures have been installed, so that the store makes a good appearance in spite of its old-fashioned front, which no doubt soon will come out. There now are four flower stores within two blocks on that street.

Chicago is too well represented in this week's obituary column. It records the death of the father of the Klehm brothers and the wives of Leonard Klevern and J. C. Plumb.

enough roses to meet the demand. Beauties are scarce and command good prices. In white and pink roses the medium grades are more sought after than the shorts or fancies. Carnations are still on the increase, but it does not seem to affect the price, as they are bringing $3 to $5 per hundred. Sweet peas, while long in quantity and short as to quality, are selling well. Violets are about the same as last reported. Snapdragons, mignonette, Paper Whites, valley and hyacinths are in somewhat small supply. There are sufficient tulips in all colors and plenty of greens of all kinds with the exception of plumosus sprays. Some extra fine Dutch hyacinths are to be seen in the market and find ready sale.

Various Notes.

The Stewart Seed Co., doing business on North Sixteenth street, is remodeling and redecorating both the interior and front of the building and changing the style of the show windows, which makes quite an improvement over the old place. The company has been doing an excellent business in cut flowers and pot plants, taking into consideration the general disorder of things while making repairs. The springlike weather the last two weeks gave the store several days of rushing business in garden tools and seeds. Mr. Stewart anticipates that the coming year's volume of business will exceed any ever experienced.

Bert Howse, the popular and ever genial pot plant grower for Chas. Faulkner, was married last week, his bride being Miss Jean Stevenson. Their many friends in the trade wish them all the joys of wedlock.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The St. Patrick's day business was profitable to the Newark florists, there being a large demand for green carnations, tulips, jonquils, sweet peas and roses. White flowers suitable for coloring green sold at high prices in the New York market for several days previous to St. Patrick's day. White carnations brought $6 per hundred wholesale and other white flowers were correspondingly high. Real shamrocks in small pots and clay pipes sold in large numbers. Roses were cheaper during the last ten days than for a long time. The favorites seem to be Beauty, Stanley, Ophelia, Sunburst and Mock. Violets now coming into the market are generally of good quality and sell at reasonable prices. Valley is plentiful, of good quality and reasonable in price. Sweet peas are in good demand and cheap. Easter lilies of excellent quality are selling at a medium price. The quality of daffodils is better than that of last year and the price of these keeps up well. Tulips are of fine quality, but the demand, while fair, is not large. The double varieties seem to take the best. There continues to be much funeral work, but there is a lull in other work, owing largely to Lent. The florists are expecting a fine Easter trade.

County Florists' Club, held March 16 in the Krueger Auditorium, Prof. Lipman, of the New Jersey State Experimental Station at New Brunswick, gave an address on "Fertilizers." The committee in charge of the ladies' night program of the preceding month made its report. A campaign to persuade the people of Newark to decorate their homes with window boxes during the coming summer, when Newark will be celebrating the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its founding, was discussed. The Florists' Club will cooperate in this matter with the lot and garden committee and the Newark shade tree commission. A committee consisting of Newark florists will represent the Florists' Club. The club also discussed preliminary plans for another flower show next fall. Following the business meeting refreshments were served.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Beauties and sweet peas are more plentiful. That covers the change from last week's report. The buoyant conditions that have prevailed almost since Lent set in, continue. The supply is daily sold at good prices—a remarkable condition for the third week of March, due to the severe, steady cold. But that it is unusual is shown by the fact that the National Flower Show is almost upon us, and in selecting the time for the show market conditions are considered; that is, probable market conditions—the third week of Lent is expected to be dull. Prices on Beauties and sweet peas have declined; the former because they were abnormally high, the latter because the large cuts of a week ago have been doubled this week.

Double violets are the heaviest flowers on the list. The price does not interfere with their sale—no one seems to want them. Single violets sell moderately well; the quantity now is smaller; some come from the houses, some from the frames.

Carnations felt the stimulus of St. Patrick's day, that is, so far as white is concerned, and of mortuary demands. It hardly seemed as though there was as much dyeing as usual. Prices on white carnations remained at $1 to $2 per dozen higher than colored, up to the day after the anniversary; since then they have declined to the level of colored. Daffodils and tulips have been enjoying public favor; both are in fine form and bring fair prices for the season. Asparagus, which dragged a week ago, has sold better, while ferns are in demand. All good roses have been selling briskly, with varying reports of the strength of the support given to the different varieties, colors and grades. Southern daffodils have arrived.

The National Flower Show.

The preliminary work that has lasted for two years is nearly over—work that has been well and faithfully done by a large body of representative men. The question that all florists outside of Philadelphia want to ask is: "Will it be worth while for me to go to the show?" I will try to answer that question fairly, by giving a single illustration of what is being done. J. G. Eisele, vice-president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has forced 1,800 roses in 6-inch pots, which will be in bloom at the show. These roses carry from four to six flowers each, borne on strong stems. They cover a wide range of varieties, many of them novelties that have never before been flowered in this country. This exhibit alone will be of a size and quality such as have never been attempted at any show in this country. It will give opportunity for study and comparison of extraordinary value. This is merely one exhibit; there may, there undoubtedly will, be other exhibits of the greatest value. Each firm or individual exhibitor is planning to do something a little better than has ever been done before. I am confident the results will justify every florist in making a special effort to come. The program is: General exhibition opens March 25, at 2 p. m.; cut roses staged March 27; carnations staged March 28; sweet peas staged March 29; banquet, retail florists' exhibits and general display of roses, March 30; display of carnations by commercial growers and retail florists' carnation exhibits, March 31. The exhibition closes April 2.

Greenhouse Contracts.

William J. Muth, who represents the King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y., has grabbed sufficient time to furnish a partial list of his building activities. The word grabbed exactly covers the case, for between visits to his customers and to the telegraph offices, Mr. Muth has little time indeed to devote to the amenities of life. The list of contracts follows:

Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., propagating house 16x250; C. P. Barnard, Northbrook, Pa., one house 42x158, pipe-frame construction; Chalfont Cut Flower Co., Chalfont, Pa., one pipe-frame house 35x250, one propagating house 12x133; Pauline Saldutti, Avondale, Pa., one house 28x100; R. Jamison & Son, Germantown, Pa., one house 25x150; Edwards Floral Hall Co., Atlantic City, N. J., three connected propagating houses, each 10x50; Walter Thoms, Atlantic City, N. J., one house 18x50; Lewis R. Page, Villa Nova, Pa., curved-eave house 21x50; U. C. Wanner, Sewell, N. J., curved-eave house 18x25; James Verner, Garrettford, Pa., one house 42x 183, pipe-frame construction; Mrs. Barger Wallach, Jericho, N. Y., one house 15x50.

Various Notes.

J. Ralph Cornish accepted a position with the Voltax Paint Co. March 20.

P. M. Read distributed funny little pipes made of 1-inch pots, with stems, on behalf of the Whilldin Pottery Co., at the March meeting of the Florists' Club.

Peter Hellburg has been growing such splendid carnations for the Chalfont Cut Flower Co. that another 250-foot King house is to be built.

The early closing of the single violet season is such an important feature of the market that it is worthy of mention that the late August Gontram, of Holmesburg, first introduced the method hereabouts. It consists of giving the violets in the houses a little more heat through the winter, so that their flowering season is shortened; then follow them with a crop of sweet peas. Most of the single violets now coming to town are from frames.

Raymond Mayhew says that Prima Donna rose has sold so well that it is necessary to make an extra propagation. The Florex Gardens will plant 15,000 Prima Donnas, in addition to those carried over.

Alphonse Pericat, of Collingdale, Pa., suffered a severe loss by fire last week. His boiler shed caught fire on the night of March 16. It is believed the flames were started by a defective flue. The shed and the ends of four greenhouses were burned. The contents of the houses, consisting of valuable orchids, were ruined by the smoke and cold. Alfred M. Campbell sent over some men to help save part of the stock.

National Flower Show Visitors

Make your headquarters with us. We are within one-half block of the Reading Terminal and two (2) blocks from the Broad St. Station on the Penna. R. R., and one block from the trolley line that runs direct to the Convention Hall to the Flower Show.

Our display at the Flower Show will be small in comparison with the display at our immense establishment, where everything can be seen which comprises the best of all florists' supplies and novelties. Our autos will be ready to bring any of our friends from Convention Hall to our store. For the benefit of those whose time is limited, we will be open each evening during show week; for the convenience of our visitors we will be open Sundays, March 26 and April 2.

city as an employee of Robert Crawford, Jr., and who has been for the last nine years with J. A. Valentine, of Denver, Colo., came east to attend the funeral of his father in Pottstown, Pa. Mr. Nieman will be in this city to see his friends for a few days and will remain to see the National Flower Show. He is much interested in his work in Denver, where conditions differ widely from those in the east. Mr. Nieman says that George H. Cooper, formerly with H. H. Battles, is doing well in Denver.

William Bayersdorfer, father of H. Bayersdorfer, died at 3:45 a. m., March 20, at the age of 80. Funeral services were held from his late residence, 1946 North Nineteenth street, March 22. Interment at Sinai.

Emile F. Lieker, of Lansdowne, Pa., will exhibit his new carnation, George Henry, at the National Flower Show.

Harry S. Betz spoke before the Garden and Orchard Society March 22, on "The Practical Side of Rose Culture." He illustrated his talk with plants, showing methods of pruning and flowers that would result therefrom.

Mrs. Charles Russell is unusually fine at the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

John G. Whilldin and P. M. Reid have gathered a most interesting collection of antique flower pots, which recall the good old days before Mr. Whilldin made our standard pots. Zero weather, mud, slush and snow did not deter the Whilldinites from collecting in their car these curios, which include the square pots of long ago. The collection will be exhibited at the flower show and will show how we have progressed. Phil.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is no great change to report in market conditions. The weather has remained unseasonably cold, with some heavy snow storms and an excess of overcast skies. The severe weather limited supplies, but at the same time checked buying. Roses remain in a good position for the season, but one or two clear, warm days are likely to cause a sharp drop in prices. American Beauties have softened in price, $50 now buying the specials. The heaviest demand of late has been for medium quality blooms. These have sold

Are You Going to the Show?

THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, which is to be held in Philadelphia from March 25th to April 2nd, will be the largest attended Flower Show ever held in any part of the country.

Having in mind the past inconveniences the attending florists have had to contend with in receiving mail and answering same, also for a meeting place where their wants and messages could be left, with proper attention given them—we have decided to arrange for all these purposes RIGHT AT THE SHOW. You can leave your address at home c/o The NEIDINGER SERVICE BUREAU, CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, PA. All telegrams, mail or any other business you may care to transact shall be attended to in a prompt and satisfactory manner.

This Bureau has been established for the convenience of all attending florists, whether customer or no customer, as our aim is to make the stay in Philadelphia of every florist as pleasant as possible, and one long to be remembered as the one show where every comfort and convenience was afforded them.

Trust you will make full use of this FREE SERVICE BUREAU while in our city and that on your return you will always remember the courtesy and attention given you in our city.

DON'T FORGET THE ADDRESS!!

much better than fancy and short-stemmed stock. Ophelia remains the leader in popularity, with Hadley, which now is of splendid quality, Russell, Sunburst, Francis Scott Key, Killarney Queen and Killarney Brilliant next in favor. White Killarney is slower to move. A large supply of Mlle. Cecile Brunner comes in, but cleans up well. The single Irish roses also meet with a good sale.

Carnations have been firmer, but are softening in price this week. With many growers off crop and the dark weather, the supply has not been heavy. Sweet peas are of fine quality. The Spencers easily bring double the price of the grandifloras, but some growers claim that the latter pay much better in midwinter, as they bloom so much more freely. Single violets will finish in about ten days, but the doubles will linger until May. Their price has varied but little of late. Good lily of the valley is bringing excellent prices.

Dutch bulbous flowers are in large supply, but the surplus each day is not large. Trade in these has been satisfactory this season. Pansies are abundant; good colors sell well. There is a larger supply of both lilies and callas, with prices somewhat lower.

Wallflowers, English primroses, polyanthus, schizanthus, mignonette, cornflowers and yellow marguerites are more abundant. The two last-named are especially good sellers. Antirrhinums are more plentiful and lower in price. Forget-me-not sells slowly. Gardenias are coming in much more freely. Schroederæ is the leading cattleya, but a few C. Mossiæ are appearing. Pot

Club Meeting.

There were 120 present at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club March 21. The invitation by the members of the W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, that the club hold its field day with them April 8, was accepted.

The club voted to make fifty reservations for the trip to the sweet pea show at Bar Harbor, Me., in July, the voyage to be made by water.

The exhibits for the evening included fine Streptosolen Jamesonii, by William Thatcher, of Brookline; Celosia Golden Spray, by James Methven, of Readville, awarded a report of merit; Primula malacoides rosea, by the F. H. Lemon Co., of Richmond, Ind.; Darwin tulips, by Duncan Finlayson.

The report of the club's banquet showed a good balance on hand, which was voted a nucleus fund for the picnic. William H. Judd read an interesting and exhaustive paper on "Desirable Trees and Shrubs; Month by Month." The committee appointed to draw up resolutions on the death of Albert Roper consists of Peter Fisher, William Nicholson and S. J. Goddard.

Various Notes.

Wheeler & Co., of Waban, are building a house 25x60, for gardenias. They have been flowering these plants freely in midwinter and plan to largely increase their culture. In their phalænopsis house they now have hundreds of spikes of Schilleriana and amabilis.

Robert Hutcheon, of Stoughton, has had a successful bulb season. He is nearly through cutting his Darwin tulips, which have done finely. He and Mrs. Hutcheon will visit both the Philadelphia and New York shows.

A large party from Boston and vicinity will visit the Philadelphia show. Messrs. Roland, Farquhar, P. Welch, Murray and others are leaving March 23; others will go March 24 and 25. The largest party, however, will leave on the noon and midnight trains March 27. The fact that the show seems likely to be closed March 26 will keep some White Killarney roses. All are sold out quickly each day.

With the exception of 1874, the present winter has broken all records for snowfall. Temperatures of zero and several degrees below were recorded here March 18, and the snow at the time of writing is deeper than at any time during the winter.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, who used to be the largest growers of lilies for Easter in this section, are not growing any this season. The largest part of their range is devoted to roses and they expect to add a house 50x300 this season. D'Arenberg does particularly well with them; also, Ophelia, Killarney Queen and Mlle. Cecile Brunner.

Patrick Welch reports the cut flower business as being good. He is getting large shipments of roses and reports a splendid call, especially for medium grades. His valley is exceptionally fine.

The T. J. Grey Co. reports mail-order business extremely heavy. The men have been obliged to work evenings to keep abreast of orders. Counter trade, owing to the severe weather, has been lighter than usual, but is now improving.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, continues to bring in superior double and single violets. He was successful in capturing first prizes in each class at the exhibition in Horticultural hall last week.

Charles Walter, of North Stoughton, is shipping in a splendid lot of Christmas Pink sweet peas and Golden Spur narcissi.

At Penn's some baskets of sweet peas, with Cœlogyne cristata on the handles, were an attractive window feature. General business continues remarkably good.

T. J. Benwell says that the A. H. Hews Co., which he represents, has had an unprecedentedly busy season. The greatest trouble has been in making deliveries, owing to the deep snow and railroad embargoes.

Ellery Briggs, of Dighton, is sending in fine lots of winter Spencer sweet peas; also callas and single violets.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

M. M. Dye, of Salamanca, N. Y., is cutting some fine orchid-flowering sweet peas. Good specimens of genistas also were on view.

Dana R. Herron, of Olean, N. Y., is taking a large cut of carnations of more than ordinary quality.

W. H. Ronolder, of Olean, had a good showing of potted plants and cut flowers. The calla lilies were especially good, having long stems and immense flowers.

P. E. Llewellyn, of Olean, reports business as being good. Mr. Llewellyn is devoting his entire time to the retail store.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Lancaster, Pa., will have a special day at the National Flower Show, for 100 members of the Lancaster County Florists' Club, headed by President Harry Schroyer, expect to attend in a body, according to Albert M. Herr, who is boosting the trip.

H. D. Rohrer, of Lancaster, possibly will make an exhibit of his famous myosotis at the National Flower Show, also some exquisite new colors in a trial lot of Zvolanek's sweet peas. A fine lot of calceolarias and cinerarias was noted.

E. P. Hostetter, of Manheim, Pa., will show Sweet Pea Rose Queen, a prize-winner in this locality. He also has a pure white selection of Primula Forbesi, which is believed to be the finest in commerce.

Fred Frank, of Reading, Pa., will exhibit a batch of Primula obconica, of his own selection, as a sample of high cultivation. Mr. Frank says it is the result of soil preparation.

J. L. Dillon, of Bloomsburg, Pa., will show a group of verbenas of sixty varieties. Sales of this popular bedder were more than 250,000 plants last year.

William Ahlers, of Bloomsburg, will exhibit Killarneys, on which he expects to secure some prizes.

E. J. Le Duc, of Danville, Pa., will have a fine display of his well grown stock in the carnation section.

The Benjamin Dorrance Greenhouses, of Dorranceton, Pa., probably will be represented at the National Flower Show by an exhibit of roses, especially Radiance and Hoosier Beauty, which are giving great satisfaction. Richmond has been dropped entirely. Market returns have been gratifying during the entire season, a strong contrast to that of last year. Mr. Dorrance is under the sunny skies in Florida. Miss Dorrance had a severe attack of the grip.

John Welsh Young, of Upsal Station, Philadelphia, invited the writer to accompany him to Enfield, the home of that beautiful rose, Lady Alice Stanley. "Phil" explained that, for several reasons, he used the Pennsylvania railroad in preference to an automobile. The attention shown him on the train caused me to think that he is much interested in that immense corporation. Some six years ago, in rambling through the attractive valley, an estate of sixteen acres was observed for sale, and it struck "Phil" that, while it meant a small mountain of responsibility to assume, the site for a greenhouse range was ideal. In quick order the purchase was made. There is a range of houses, each 35x300, with perfect surroundings, and a model residence for the foreman, Clarence Upton, who is justly proud of his charge. "Phil" specializes in roses, My Maryland and Lady Alice Stanley, for which an enviable reputation has been made in the Philadelphia market.

Adolph Fischer is occupying the store vacated by C. H. Buenning and looks for a continuation of the success enjoyed by its former occupant. W. M.

The Market.

There was considerable activity shown in the market last week. The demand, though large, did not consume the large quantity of flowers coming in daily. Prices were lowered in order to move the stock. Lent does not seem to affect the florists any; in fact, several report excellent trade in cut flowers and plants. There was quite a demand for light-colored stock, owing to many large funeral orders. Sweet peas were a glut in the market last week. The extra fancy grade held up in price, but the greater bulk are short-stemmed and are sold in thousand lots as low as 15 cents per hundred. Violets, too, are arriving in large quantities. Roses are coming in freely. Prices, excepting on the extra fancy grades, have been lowered. The same may be said of carnations. The white varieties were high in price, while colored stock went begging. Von Sions and all varieties of jonquils are abundant. Lilies, callas, valley and snapdragons hold their own. Smilax is scarce, but other greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Jules Bourdet, chairman of the executive committee of the spring flower show, called a meeting of the chairmen of the general committees March 16. Those who responded to the call were W. A. Rowe, finance; Adolph Jaenicke, corted him through the various growing establishments. He was much impressed with the headway made by our growers in handling sweet peas.

August Mirring, of East St. Louis, Ill., has many fine blooming plants. He will add about 10,000 feet of glass to his range this summer. He reports a splendid business this season.

Albert Senger, on Lexington avenue, has extra fine quality blooming plants, which will be in right for Easter sales. He reports that this season is the best he has had since he started business.

A. F. Longren, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., last week showed their line of baskets at the Jefferson hotel.

Lechner Bros., who have offices in the Caxton building, Third and Olive streets, have quite a number of lily bulbs in cold storage, which will come in handy for late orders. This firm has done remarkably well. Extra good quality bulbs and right prices have brought double business this season.

Florists in all parts of the city made attractive window displays for St. Patrick's day. Downtown florists report a good demand for green carnations. Shamrocks in pots had a better sale this year than last.

representing Schloss Bros., New York, were with us last week.

The "Blue Flower," published by Penn, the Florist, of Boston, has made a big impression on those in the local trade who were fortunate enough to receive a copy each month.

The volume of mail orders coming in at the various seed houses should indicate an early business. The cold weather and snow last week stopped activity for a few days.

St. Patrick's day could not pass without Paddy Patton creating some excitement in the wholesale district. He appeared on the morning of March 17 with a green straw hat, which, by evening, was slightly disfigured but still in the ring.

Local nurserymen are hoping the ground will open up sufficiently to allow them to dig shrubs and trees, so as to start filling the many advance orders. They say the last few snows gave abundance of moisture for lifting.

The opening of the German-American Bank in its new quarters in the Missouri Athletic Club building, March 20, created some good business for the florists. Nearly all florists in the city had a design or two for the opening. Among these were Fred C. Weber, M. S. Newman, Grimm & Gorly, Diemer Floral Co., F. W. Bruenig, F. H. Weber, G. Waldbart, Young's, Ayres and the Riessen Floral Co.

A visit to the A. S. Cerny place, at Van Buren and Woodbine avenues, in company with W. C. Smith, was a real treat. Here we found everything in first-class shape. Here we saw those fine Ophelias, Killarneys and Russells that the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. handles. A bench of gladioli that will soon produce a lot of fine flowering spikes was seen. Mr. Cerny recently purchased several hundred additional feet of ground, which will give him an excellent opportunity to build one of the largest greenhouse ranges in Kirkwood. A visit also was made to the greenhouses of W. A. Rowe, who is noted for growing fine bulbous stock, carnations and sweet peas. At Mr. Rowe's new place, a few blocks away, carnations are being planted. A 300-foot house will be built here this summer.

The big window display of the St. Louis Seed Co., consisting of garden tools, seeds, goldfishes and chicks, is a great attraction at Washington avenue and Broadway. J. J. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Snow storms and a temperature of 4 degrees below zero March 18 was the weather record of last week. Notwithstanding St. Patrick's day and its seductive "emerald" carnations, sweet peas, lilies, roses and tulips, the quantity of unsold stock of every kind carried over Saturday evening was far from satisfactory to the wholesalers. Fortunately, shipments of roses have been light and these were really the steadying force that held the market and saved the situation. American Beauties are few, but prices are low. The best of them sold at $40 per hundred and Hadley commanded the same prices. Beauties will have to look to their laurels in the future, or be distanced by their latest rival. Almost every other variety of roses is lower in price than last week. The same conditions prevail as to carnations. The top price for white and novelties is $3 per hundred and so on down to $10 per thousand for the short-stemmed or imperfect ones. Shipments are increasing. The best orchids, cattleyas, have advanced to 40 cents. A few extras touched 50 cents Saturday. The inferior and smaller varieties sold as low as 15 cents each.

Lilies are quite abundant, but there are few of the higher grade, and $8 per hundred seems to be the top price at present for all but the selects. Thousands sold as low as $5 per hundred. Valley, especially the short-stemmed stock, is abundant. The price ranges from $1 to $3 per hundred. Gardenias are abundant and prices lower. From $2 down to 50 cents per dozen are the quotations. There are more tulips than the market needs and prices are extremely low. Daffodils and narcissi are here in large quantities, as well as callas and daisies. Freesias are becoming fewer. There are altogether too many sweet peas, there being no sale for most of them. The Spencers only are worth while. There were more than 100 boxes of violets on hand Saturday afternoon. The quality was good, but the price was low; 25 cents per hundred was the high mark, and the imperfect stock sold as low as $1 a thousand. The daily shipments of spring flowers of all kinds, pansies, forget-me-nots, lilac, etc., continue.

Various Notes.

March 28 half a thousand or more New Yorkers will take the special train at the Pennsylvania station, at 10 a. m., arriving at Philadelphia at noon, in time for dinner at the Pennsylvania station before visiting the National Flower Show. Tickets, including dinner and admission to the show, are only $3.25. The return fare is under $2. Chairman Abraham Lincoln Miller has worked faithfully in behalf of this event and everything promises a brilliant success.

Notwithstanding zero weather and snow-covered gardens on every side of New York, the plant auctions opened their spring season this week with good attendance and the prices obtained were better than expected.

For the Randolph Film Co., of Chicago, featuring Billy Burke in a moving picture play that had as its chief feature an elaborate conservatory scene, Woodrow & Marketos had the contract, which included 300 large kentias in its decoration. It is the finest setting of its kind the movies have ever staged.

Hitchings & Co. have completed a large house for J. B. Coombs, of Hartford, who is adding to his big plant one house yearly. The Hitchings people had just completed a house for Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, Mass., whose untimely death so lately has been recorded. A large range is being built for H. P. Davidson, at Glen Cove, where Daniel Coughlin is superintendent; also three houses for J. G. Tamm, of Astoria.

The Kervan Co. now has over 30,000 cubic feet devoted to cold storage in its two stores.

There must have been a quarter million shamrocks sold this month, the Trepel stores alone distributing over 50,000. J. J. Coan used a small fancy basket with the pots that added greatly to their decorative value.

The Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont., is sending daily consignments of roses and valley to Gunther Bros. The variety Canadian Queen is well liked here.

President Anton Schultheis, of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., reports 4 degrees below zero at his College Point establishment March 17, the lowest March temperature ever known there.

Committees are meeting every Monday, at the Breslin, to complete the details for the flower show which will open April 5. Secretary Young and Manager Herrington are busy on it all the time and a success even greater than that of last year seems assured.

J. K. Allen has fully recovered from his recent illness.

John Miesem and A. J. Guttman have contributed many flowers to the German bazaar at Madison Square Garden and are in daily attendance.

The presidents' alumni of the Florists' Club will enjoy its second reunion and banquet on the afternoon of April 10, the date of the club's next meeting.

The Lord & Burnham Co. is building two houses, each 62x500 feet, and a power plant, 50x50, for Traendly & Schenck, at Rowayton, Conn., the summer home of F. H. Traendly. Two 150-horsepower boilers will be installed and the latest improved vacuum steam system. These are to be carnation houses and the enterprise will involve an expenditure of about $50,000. The same company is building for the Seabrook Farms Corporation, of Bridgeton, N. J., five houses, each 62x300, which will be given to vegetables. T. B. De Forest, of the Lord & Burnham Co., says, as compared with last season, that business shows an increase of 300 per cent and that everything indicates the greatest year of the company's business.

W. J. Manda, of West Orange, N. J., the youngest son of Joseph A. Manda, is in Cuba with a squadron of the United States marine corps. He is only 19 years of age and has won high honors as a sharpshooter.

raided the town. Mr. Childs, who was on the train from California on the morning of the attack, described the situation, in part, as follows: "Our train was approaching Columbus when we heard the firing and saw the smoke from the burning village. The driver brought the train to a stop and we waited in the coaches, not knowing what would happen and fearing the worst. There was no gun of any kind on the train so far as we could learn. We had been somewhat fearful of a raid while passing through that country and we did not know at that time that the raid was being conducted by Villa. After a while we saw the bandits in full flight and when we finally pulled into Columbus I saw at least fifty bodies lying about."

Students' Annual Trip to Boston.

Twelve of the students of floriculture at the Massachuetts Agricultural College, accompanied by Prof. Nehrling and A. S. Thurston, recently made the annual observation trip to Boston and vicinity. Three days were spent in visiting the various commercial ranges, private estates, stores and markets. At all places the party was received courteously and cordially, and, consequently, the trip could not help but be inspirational as well as educational. Due to the inconveniences caused by a heavy fall of snow, the party was unable to visit all the establishments they had planned to visit. The following places were visited: Waban Rose Conservatories, of Natick; J. T. Butterworth, of Framingham; S. J. Goddard, of Framingham; Faulkner Farm, W. N. Craig, of Brookline; Weld Garden, Duncan

Farmers' Week Lectures.

The series of floricultural lectures held at the college in conjunction with the Farmers' week program proved to be the most interesting ever given. The lectures began with a talk by F. E. Palmer, of Brookline, on "Selection and Care of House Plants." The subject was handled in an interesting and professional way, the information being a result of years of experience. Following this was a lecture by Prof. F. A. Waugh, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, on "Fashions in Plants," in which he spoke of the historical side of gardening and the changes which took place from time to time in the use of garden plants. The program for the afternoon was concluded with a talk on "Plant Propagation," by H. E. Downer, of the Smith College Botanical Gardens, of Northampton. The subject was well handled by Mr. Downer in a technical way and in it was brought out many personal experiences.

The program was continued the next day, March 15, the opening talk being given by Maurice Fuld, of New York, on the subject of "Commercial Possibilities of Herbaceous Perennials," in which he spoke of the business side of propagating and selling the stock. The next subject was "Minor Crops of the Florist," by G. H. Sinclair, of Holyoke, which proved to be exceedingly instructive. Following this hour, Dr. P. J. Anderson gave an instructive talk on "Diseases of Floricultural Plants." In the afternoon Robert Pyle, of the Conard & Jones Co., of West Grove, Pa., gave a fine lecture on "Roses at Home and Abroad," the lecture being illustrated by many lantern slides. The program was concluded by a question box, which was conducted by Prof. Nehrling. Many of the speakers remained to assist in answering the questions.

A good attendance was recorded for the lectures, considering the fact that at that time the country was hit by one of the worst snow storms of years. In addition to the lectures, the department had an educational exhibit in the building and a display of spring-flowering plants in the greenhouses, both of which attracted considerable attention. At the request of the students, Maurice Fuld gave a special lecture in which he spoke of business methods and how to interest the public. A. S. Thurston.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Blanket of Violets, Valley and Adiantum Made by Mrs. Alma C. Lehmann, San Jose, Cal.

PALL OF VIOLETS AND VALLEY.

In making the pall shown in the illustration on this page, violets and lilies of the valley were the flowers used, and liberal quantities of adiantum and smilax were included. Lily of the valley chiffon forms the large bows, and the streamers were tied with lavender baby cords. The piece was made at the store of Mrs. Alma C. Lehmann, 61 East Santa Clara street, San Jose, Cal.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The passing of a good deal of the bulbous stock has left a sort of hiatus, but there is ample stock to go around in other lines. The indoor flowers are good. Roses have not suffered from the heat to any extent. There is a good general demand for carnations, and, as usual, white ones cleaned up well for dyeing for St. Patrick's day. While all true flower lovers must deplore this absurd custom, the probability is that if the green carnations and daffodils were not worn, some other custom equally ridiculous and of no compensating value to the florist would take its place, so we shall probably have to "let 'er ride." Green dye ran out early in the day in several places.

The beautiful Delphinium Belladonna is again making a show in the windows; the delicate, pale blue of this fine herbaceous plant always makes a big bid for popularity. Shrub branches and fruit blossoms have been unusually fine this year and have held out well. Besides the cut branches, pretty, well flowered little specimens of Bechtel's crab, English hawthorn, Japanese quince, double-flowered almonds and other forced shrubs have made a tasteful display. Unfortunately, nearly if not quite all of this class of stock will be over long before Easter. Lilies will in some cases also be over, but in all probability there will be enough to go around. Rhododendrons are appearing already and it will need quite cool treatment to hold the usual Easter kinds for the date.

Various Notes.

Calling at the establishment of Charles Brazee, at Wilmington, I was a little late for the hyacinths, but in time to see a patch of many thousands of the beautiful pink Fabiola, which is a great favorite of Mr. Brazee's. The day's cut of daffodils included about 3,000 exquisite Sir Watkin, which is always cut here before it comes to its full color, finishing in the water before shipping. Emperor is another of the popular kinds, many thousands of this being grown. Tulips are not as extensively grown here as formerly, but there is a good showing of the Darwin types. A splendid type of statice is grown here in many of the most popular colors. Notwithstanding that he is in the rush of cutting, the whole place is in fine condition and reflects great credit on this well known and experienced grower. Most of the immense cut here is handled by the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., of this city.

Since centralizing its efforts at the Montebello ranch, the H. N. Gage Co. has made great strides in the growing end of the business. All through the shipping season for bulbous stock, daffodils, freesias and other flowers have been shipped at the rate of many thousands a day, while the plant trade has greatly increased. The whole place shows careful supervision and attenton to details.

Mrs. Garrett, of Eagle Rock, one of our most successful and up-to-date lady florists, has been shipping elegant stock this year to the L. A. Floral Co. Mrs. Garrett is planting a number of the new varieties of chrysanthemums this season and we are looking for something of interest.

Oscar Johanssen, of the Johanssen Seed Co., has just placed a large order with the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. for the new and improved strains of verbenas. The giant-flowered, clear-tinted pink and crimson types will be largely planted for seeding purposes this year by Mr. Johanssen, who evidently knows a good thing when he sees it.

The L. A. Floral Co. says out-of-town business is keeping up finely and there is no possibility of doubting this when one sees the big express vans loading up there daily.

Spring Glory, one of the newer daffodils being tried out at the nursery of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. this year, has proved to be a magnificent thing. It is of the bicolor type and far ahead of anything else in that section to date.

C. J. Groen, formerly of the firm of Polder & Groen, is busy getting his land in shape. He has purchased five acres in Montebello, on the foothills side, and intends to go into the culture of flowers for cutting.

Norris & Son have opened retail quarters in the new Rosslyn hotel, on Fifth street, and are making a pretty display of pot plants and some cut flowers.

The Nurserymen's Exchange met March 15, in the office of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. Mr. Meriweather, of the Roeding & Wood Nursery Co., gave an interesting account of his researches into the mysteries of freight charges. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The flower market is in rather poor shape. Since the Mardi Gras celebration social activity has subsided noticeably. Funeral work is less active and the fortnight of rather warm weather brought out enormous quantities of flowers of all seasonable varieties. There was a little extra demand for St. Patrick's day, but that failed to cause much improvement in prices, being limited largely to greens and white carnations for dyeing, the dyed stock being sold in liberal quantities. A good deal of green-dyed poeticus also was disposed of. Of course, shamrocks in small pots were strong sellers. A large cut of maidenhair ferns was moved and small dish ferns were popular, Boston ferns also being stimulated a little. Asparagus is still somewhat scarce. A notable new offering for the week was peonies, some good ones having appeared. There is quite an abundance of cut lilac, as well as some potted shrubs in bloom.

A large cut of good sweet peas is appearing, but has hard competition with bulbous stock. Some fine anemones and ranunculi are seen in the stores and there is a large cut of poeticus and the like. Freesias also are in fair supply. Emperor and Empress daffodils are about gone, but some later varieties are still to come, and there are more than plenty. Darwin tulips are showing up well, and are fairly popular. Violets are keeping up, and there are a few good lots of Marie Louise. Wild flowers of many kinds are a strong feature, such as poppies, buttercups, mission bells, wild iris, pansies, etc. Some statice is appearing.

The cut of roses is increasing rapidly and prices are easing off, ordinary stock being slow to move. Baby roses are about the strongest item. The supply of Easter lilies is rather excessive, though there has been a fair demand. Orchids of all kinds are coming in less freely, but more are expected soon, and there are plenty of gardenias. There is a little fine valley, which is much sought after. Rhododendrons, rambler roses and primulas are the principal features in potted stock.

Various Notes.

Bert Devincenzi, of the Eddy Floral Co., of Reno, Nev., is spending a few weeks visiting his old friends in San Francisco and arranging for shipments of stock and supplies. He has built up a nice business at Reno and is having a good season. He has built some greenhouses and now grows a good deal of his own stock, having had extensive growing experience in this vicinity.

Motroni's flower shop, on Fillmore street, is making a feature of wild flowers. Mr. Motroni says business with him has kept up well so far.

Emile Serveau, of Fillmore street, near Sacramento, went back to work last week after being ill for about six weeks with the grip and rheumatism. He says things have slowed down quite perceptibly during the last few days. He says callas will not be as plentiful as usual for Easter on account of the January frost, but that will help other stock. He believes that callas will be in good shape for Memorial day, when there is a big demand for them and when they are usually past their prime.

Albert R. Gould, who was with C. C. Morse & Co. last year, is laying out the Rothschild estate in San Mateo county.

The bankrupt stock of seeds, bulbs, etc., of the Luther Burbank Co., is being sold off at bargain prices at 225 Market street.

F. G. Cuthbertson, who is looking after the coming sweet pea show, says there is much interest in the event, which promises to have more entries than last year.

L. L. Morse, of C. C. Morse & Co., has returned from a long trip east, feeling much better in health than when he went away.

F. Schlotzhauer, of the Francis Floral Co., recently carried out some good window decorations for ladies' garment stores, in connection with the spring style openings. He got out a striking novelty for St. Patrick's day, consisting of a round basket made of a Hawaiian grass, colored old Irish green and caught with a ribbon of the same shade, filed with maidenhair ferns and carnations.

B. M. Joseph recently made a display on the lattice backing of his window of a remarkable variety of flowers, which produced a most pleasing spring-like effect. The combination included large pink peonies, pink primulas, poeticus narcissi, small bunches of sweet peas in several tones, anemones and two kinds of phalænopsis.

The board of trustees of Stanford University has provided for the increase of the Stanford arboretum to include more than 2,000 varieties, the general policy being placed in the hands of the department of botany.

William McDonald, an Oakland florist, recently was the victim of a spasm of law enforcement in Oakland, being arrested for technical violations of the building code in repairing his home and place of business.

Luther Burbank, of Santa Rosa, is on the way to recovery from an illness that has caused his friends considerable anxiety.

D. A. Madeira, a florist of Salinas, Cal., was recently in San Francisco.

Work has been started on a slat house, 64x240 feet, at the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, near Eureka. It is reported that the neighboring town of Arcata has made an offer of seventy-five acres of land to get a branch of the establishment in that district.

Carl Bade, who has been in the flower and nursery stock business at 13 West Tenth street, Santa Rosa, has retired from business.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business is good, with a fair demand for all seasonable flowers. Carnations, owing to the dull weather, are not arriving in profusion and there is good sale for those offered. Roses are by no means plentiful. There is a short supply of daffodils and prices remain good for them. A small quantity of local violets is offered and these sell readily. Hyacinths and tulips are plentiful; orchids and valley are sufficient to supply the demand. Pot plants now are moving nicely and there is more variety than has been the case in recent weeks.

The growers of lilies are beginning to warm their houses to hasten the tardy Easter lily buds.

The seedsmen are unusually busy for this time of the year, and indications point to increased business in all their lines. There is a good demand for nursery stock of all kinds and, although business in the fall was above the normal, there is more being sold this spring than for years. The rose shows held during the last three years have increased the demand for roses, especially for the newer kinds, and to do business nowadays one must keep the newest varieties.

Various Notes.

Carnation Rosette is of fine appearance in the houses of Buxton & Quillin, and is proving a better flower than Gorgeous in every respect. T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Favorable weather last week more than equalized the effect of Lent on the sale of flowers. The number of public events was decreased, but more flowers were worn and used in home affairs. Several large funerals cleaned up the surplus stock. The demand for potted stock was normal. Outdoor daffodils were offered in large quantities and retailed at prices ranging from 25 cents to 50 cents per dozen. Potted bulbous stock still is shown and sells fairly well. Some splendid azaleas are offered.

Home-grown violets are in oversupply and several growers let their crops go to waste. The quality of the carnation cut has improved and the supply is normal. The cut of Richmond and Killarney roses has increased, while that of Ophelia is below normal. St. Patrick's day brought the usual demand for tinted flowers and cleaned up everything that could be used for that purpose. Several stores made special displays of these flowers and of shamrocks. Asparagus still is decidedly scarce.

Various Notes.

August Zitzewitz is supplying excellent Primula obconica in light pink and lavender tints.

H. W. Von, who has been with the Wilson, Crout & Gehr Co., has taken a position in the store of Martin & Forbes.

The Routledge Seed & Floral Co. has opened a store at 145 and 147 Second street. Until June 1 this store will be a branch of the old store at 169 Second street. After that date the company will move its entire business to the new location, which will be refitted for the purpose. The new front offers better opportunities for display and the interior will be more conveniently arranged, with more room for stock and wider aisles for customers. This move was necessary, as the company found its business had outgrown the old quarters.

Clarke Bros. are making deliveries in a new Studebaker car, a neat and substantial appearing vehicle.

W. H. Dunham, superintendent of school gardens, reports that there will be thirty-six community gardens operated by the pupils this season.

F. A. Van Kirk reports heavy cuts of carnations during February, all of which were readily sold. At present he is unable to supply the demands for his flowers.

Martin & Forbes are cutting some good Fireflame roses.

The Retail Grocers' Association has started a movement to close the public market. Should it succeed, the flower stands there would be abolished.

In many places the hypericums, loquats and bridal myrtles have had their foliage destroyed by the severe cold, but the plants have not been killed.

William E. Dungee has a new delivery car of his own design. The running gear and body are of Ford manufacture, but all else is specially made. S. W. W.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

CONSIDERING the situation as regards supply, the prices of seeds have been held down, not boosted.

ONE of the difficulties the importers of Japanese bulbs will have to contend with this season will be lack of transportation, Japanese boats alone being now available.

ANTON C. ZVOLANEK, of Lompoc, Cal., whose specialty is seed of winter-flowering Spencer sweet peas, is making an eastern trip. He will be at Philadelphia next week, during the show.

THE California seed growers especially, but also those of other sections, are pretty well booked up with all the business they can handle for 1916, and in a general way they have been able to name their own contract prices.

ONION seed amounting to 39,654 pounds, valued at $40,828, was invoiced at the American consulate at Teneriffe, Canary Islands, for the United States during 1915, compared with 39,490 pounds, valued at $43,293, for 1914.

J. KAUFMANN, who styles himself "Authorized growers' contracting agent," has an office at 550 East Sixty-second street, Chicago, representing growers of onion sets in the district south of that city, where the onion set acreage has increased notably of recent years.

So unfavorable has the weather been that certain rather large seed houses are said to be from thirty to forty per cent behind the usual March business to date. It means a grand rush when the ground opens, with the probability of one of the shortest spring seasons on record. A short season never is a big season.

IT is reported that Sutton & Sons, of Reading, England, who have branches in New York and San Francisco, are about to open a large seed depot in Calcutta, which will act as a center for the distribution of seeds to every part of India. Hitherto the greater part of the seeds used there have been supplied by German seedsmen.

CHARLES DICKINSON, of the Albert Dickinson Co., was one of the first to lend assistance to the development of air craft and is president of the Aero Club of Illinois. When the United States army was ordered into Mexico last week Mr. Dickinson telegraphed to Washington an offer of the free use of the 640-acre field of the club at Chicago for an aviation training camp for military fliers.

SEED SALES IN IOWA.

While so many seedsmen are complaining of the backwardness of the season, it is pleasant to get this breath of spring in a letter from Henry Field, Shenandoah, Ia., dated March 20:

"I thought you would be interested in knowing how the mail orders are coming for us this season. Here are the figures:

"Week ending March 18, 12,200 orders, against 8,230 same week last year.

"Average size of order about $3.20, which is approximately five per cent above the size at the same time last year.

"Increase in number of orders over same period last year, about fifty per cent. Increase in volume a little more.

"This is all retail mail order, as we have no counter trade and do not sell to dealers or agents. Trade seems well

Old Fashioned Flowers with New Fashioned Clothes

HOOP skirts and poke bonnets, so they do say, are in style again. Along with them, will come a great demand for all the old fashiony things, especially flowers along with the rest.

You Americans, however, are so up-to-date you won't be satisfied with putting a touch of the new fashion to the old. That's why our new-old-fashioned flowers will be strong sellers.

For example, the Antirrhinums of grandmother's days, we have doubled in size and added to them wondrous colors. Our Foxgloves, Canterbury Bells and Delphiniums have lost none of their charm, although improved greatly.

And as for Phlox, the new varieties we list are lovelier than anything old Auntie Hobb ever dreamed of.

Send 35 cents for our catalogue and pick out some of these choice old fashioned flowers in new fashioned clothes. With your order for $5.00, we will promptly send back the 35 cents.

balanced in all departments. The increase is all along the line.

"Pay roll for last week shows 178 people, amounting to $1,728.92.

"The high point on orders is evidently not yet reached, as this week is starting off heavier than last. We look for the peak week to come about the second week in April."

ONIONS IN TEXAS.

The Texas onion crop of 1916 is estimated to cover 10,657 acres, as compared with 9,343 acres in 1915, an increase of fourteen per cent. The condition of the crop March 1 is estimated as 65.6 per cent of normal, which forecasts a yield of about 230 bushels per acre, or a total production of 5,328 cars of 460 bushels each. In 1915 the shipments amounted to about 4,607 cars.

The low condition of 65.6 is accounted for by two freezes and the general prevalence of the thrips, which is especially severe in the Laredo district. It is believed, however, that the ravages of this insect have been checked by the energetic efforts of the growers in spraying their crops.

Much California seed has been used this year and there are those who think it will displace the Teneriffe article. The season is about three weeks earlier than in 1915.

SEED GROWING IN ENGLAND.

The seed trade in America has formed the opinion that, if the war continues, chief reliance must hereafter be placed on England as the source of seed supply outside the United States. It is felt that France and Germany will grow few seeds for export so long as the war lasts and that the embargo by Holland will shut off most of the seeds from that country. Consequently, special interest attaches to conditions among British seed growers, as illustrated by the following extract from a letter received by a leading British seed firm from one of its growers:

We hope to send the remainder of your seeds on order the latter part of this week. We regret the delay in forwarding, but it is due to shortage of labor. We take the opportunity of drawing your attention to the fact that the position we are in with regard to labor is serious. I am losing several more men within the next fortnight; it is of no use trying to get ordinary daymen exempt from military service. Unless there is something done in the near future, the seed-growing industry in this neighborhood will practically cease to exist. There are farms in this district without a single dayman. We have a lot of contracts on our books for delivery after harvest, 1917, but if things go on as they are at present it will be simply impossible to plant same out when the time comes. I did not anticipate that the authorities would call the groups up so quickly. I have several men attested, and it will be a serious thing if they are called up.

Commenting on the situation as thus revealed, the Horticultural Advertiser (British) says: "The position of the seed-growing industry is becoming precarious, as so many men are being called up from the seed farms that it

SNAPDRAGON NEWS

By using the several varieties of snapdragon which we grow, you can do just what we have done the past year—cut blooms every day of every month. No matter what season, there will be one or more of our several varieties in bloom. This is a remarkable record for snapdragon, as the average variety does not flower until April. We have had an abundance of white, yellow, garnet and pink, and since February 15 have been cutting gorgeous spikes of our lovely, matchless Silver Queen.

Right here we "rise to say" that for richness, for beauty, for habit of growth, for productiveness, from cuttings, there is no snapdragon on earth to match SILVER QUEEN. Our stock of it was greatly reduced last summer by heavy rains, but we are "coming back," and offer a limited number of rooted cuttings at $10.00 per 100—ready next month.

Seed of our regular stand-by varieties should be freely sown at once. Price of seed of our original Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, Phelp's White, Yellow, Buxton and Fancy Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Plants of each of these varieties, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. Free directions. All orders cash or C. O. D.

will be almost impossible for the growers to get their stocks of annuals and biennials planted out this season. We, of course, realize that our first business as a nation is to win the war, and that in comparison with this great object, nothing else really counts; but at the same time we cannot forget that the seed-growing industry is one of national importance, and contributes directly and indirectly to a large extent to the food supply of the country. Any blow to this industry is an injury to our food supply, and to the agricultural industry which it is most desirable to foster. Also, we must face the fact that any shortage in supply of really necessary seeds will have to be met from abroad, which will further increase the drain upon our resources and depress our credit all over the world. We think the case of the seed grower is one which should have the careful consideration of the authorities, and that exemption should be granted, not

IN HOLLAND BULB FIELDS.

Word comes from Dutch bulb growers to their canvassers seeking orders here that the weather in February was unusually mild, with the result that the winter covering was stripped from the fields at an unusually early date and an early flowering season is expected, with its possibility of early ripening, digging, curing and shipping. None of the bulb fields has suffered from the floods, although a considerable area had been planted in one of the polders, but being on the high level side the damage caused by the water is likely to be slight and of no consequence for the general crop. The trade in gladiolus bulbs has come to a stop, but the quantities left are small, and in many lines a shortage, with a sharp rise in prices, is expected.

SCANDAL IN SEED CORN FAMILY.

The following play on the names of varieties of corn is by an employee of the Western Seed & Irrigation Co., Fremont, Neb.:

''When Longfellow went down the Genesee Valley to look after the Gold Mine, he found the Country Gentleman out with the Angel of Midnight along about the Peep O'Day. He notified the King of the Earliest, also the Minnesota King, who asked the Howling Mob to call up the Black Mexican and say: 'Ye Smutnose, go make an investigation of all the seed corn.' He did, and found O. S. Crosby with the Pride of the North enjoying life at the Wisconsin Carnival. They were stopping at Henderson's Metropolitan. O. S. Crosby wore a little White Cap. The Pride of the North was dressed in King Philip Red.

''He found C. S. Crosby out in Dakota following a Zigzag trail trying to locate a Silver Mine. Also found the Golden Beauty dressed in Calico trying to get the Australian to give up his Legal Tender for a bogus White Pearl

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Clarke Bros., Portland, Ore.—"Oregon Roses and Other Beautiful Flowers," a well illustrated, 64-page catalogue of roses, miscellaneous plants and flower seeds. In the first twenty-two pages are the rose lists, ending with an alphabetical index. Then follow gladioli, hardy shrubs and vines, outdoor and greenhouse plants, with the flower seeds in the last few pages.

Winterson's Seed Store, Chicago, Ill.—"Winterson's Garden Guide," as nearly a complete list of gardeners' requirements as can be packed, without undue crowding, into the seventy-two good-sized pages. Among the stock offered are old-fashioned garden flowers, perennials, vegetable and flower seeds, bedding plants, bays and other decoratives, ornamental trees and shrubs, fruit-bearing stock, grass seeds, fertilizers, tools and sundries.

Palisades Nurseries, Sparkill, N. Y.—"Palisades Popular Perennials," a handsomely illustrated, accurate, well printed catalogue of sixty-four unusually large pages. Besides the perennials, which occupy forty or more pages,

HERBERT & FLEISHAUER ASTER SPECIALISTS McMINNVILLE, OREGON

Mention The Review when you write.

the book offers extensive assortments of ornamental trees and shrubs, roses, fruit-bearing and nut-bearing stock, vegetable plants and roots.

Moore Seed Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Three illustrated catalogues, two of them wholesale, the other a 142-page general catalogue, entitled "The Seed Buyers' Guide." Of the two wholesale catalogues, one is intended especially for florists, the other for market gardeners. The florists' list, consisting of thirty pages and cover, offers plants, bulbs, flower seeds and sundries. In the gardeners' book, which contains seventy-eight pages, no flower seeds are listed, but the space is devoted entirely to vegetable and farm seeds, small fruits, tools and supplies.

Archias' Seed Store, Sedalia, Mo.—"Archias' Seed Annual, Thirty-third Year," a 96-page, illustrated catalogue of seeds, plants, bulbs, roses, nursery stock, vegetable plants and roots, poultry supplies, gardeners' and florists' sundries. A comprehensive catalogue in comparatively small bulk.

J. H. Troy, New Rochelle, N. Y.—"For Lovers of Roses," an artistic, finely illustrated catalogue of roses and general nursery stock; twenty good-sized pages. Accompanying this catalogue is an 8-page illustrated booklet showing specimens of rustic work, such as summer houses, settees, window boxes, stands, hanging baskets, porch furniture, etc.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—"Henderson's Implement and Tool Catalogue," listing "tools, requisites, fertilizers, insecticides, etc., for the garden, greenhouse, lawn, orchard, farm, dairy, poultry yard and household"; a 64-page illustrated book which is devoted entirely to this one department of the business and therefore treats the subject exhaustively. It proves anew that men "have sought out many inventions."

Perry's Hardy Plant Farm, Enfield, England.—A 23-page supplementary catalogue of rock and border plants, especially the newer and rarer varieties; "some are old, but remarkably scarce, while others are new to cultivation."

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—"The Willing Helper," offering florists' supplies, such as baskets and basket pot covers, plant stands, wedding gates, aisle standards, shepherds' crooks, wicker window boxes and vases, wreaths, doves, ribbons, artificial flowers, etc.; a well-illustrated catalogue of sixteen extra large pages, in an attractive cover.

Kelway & Son, Langport, England.—American edition of the "Wholesale Real Price Catalogue of Agricultural Seeds," such as grasses, forage crops and root seeds; is finely illustrated and contains twelve large pages, besides two full-page colored inserts.

Richard F. Gloede, Evanston, Ill.—A neat 56-page booklet, in a red cover which is artistically inscribed with the motto, "Leave the world more beautiful than you found it." The stock listed includes evergreens, roses, vines, perennials and greenhouse plants; there are illustrations showing some of the work of "Gloede's Landscape Service."

Zandbergen Bros., Valkenburg, Holland—A comprehensive, carefully classified bulb catalogue, with assortments, also, of roots and plants for both greenhouse and garden; included are some of the favorite plants for forcing, such as spiraeas or astilbes; a book of 112 clearly printed pages, without illustrations.

Theodore Payne, Los Angeles, Cal.—Twelfth annual catalogue of seeds, plants and nursery stock; sixty-four pages, illustrated. The seed lists comprise not only the ordinary lines, but large stocks of tree and shrub seeds, with directions about sowing eucalyptus seeds and transplanting the seedlings. Native California stock and subtropical varieties are a specialty.

Forbes & Keith, New Bedford, Mass.—"Prize Medal Dahlias," a well-illustrated, clearly printed, 34-page catalogue; offers not only the well-known standard varieties, but a notably large proportion of the latest introductions, including a collection of American seedling cactus dahlias exhibited at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Hillside Hardy Flower Gardens, Pittsburgh, Pa.—An illustrated, 32-page catalogue of perennials, hardy vines and climbers, climbing and trailing roses and "a few good flowering shrubs"; also medicinal herbs and roots and collections of perennial flower seeds.

Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn.—Wholesale catalogue of nursery stock; an accurate, businesslike book, compactly and clearly printed, and arranged so systematically as to be especially convenient for reference; seventy-two pages, with pointed descriptions, but with no illustrations.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THREE carloads of French seedlings consigned to D. S. Lake, Shenandoah, Ia., went down with the steamship Maroni, sunk by a German raider. The loss is partially covered by war risk insurance. The ship cleared from Bordeaux, France, February 16.

A NEW nursery concern enters the St. Paul field. Its officers are: President, C. A. Bazille; vice-president, Ashley Sjoholm; secretary and treasurer, E. W. Bazille. The Northern Nurseries, Inc., is the title of the new concern. The nursery will be maintained at Lake Vadnais, eight miles north of St. Paul.

WHAT DO BUYERS WANT?

In its 1916 spring catalogue the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., has departed somewhat from the usual style of nursery catalogues. Aside from a few pages devoted to general instructions and special lists, the catalogue is an out-and-out price list of popular common names, sizes and prices, without illustrations.

"This catalogue," says President Ernest F. Coe, "is intended largely for those who know what they desire to purchase and are seeking information as to varieties, sizes, prices, etc., of what we have for sale, arranged in compact and convenient form for reference.

"The question is, do any number of purchasers of nursery stock who place substantial orders depend to any considerable extent on elaborate catalogue descriptions and illustrations of standard stock when placing their orders? Are they not more generally guided by what they have actually seen, have read about in current magazines and books, or is recommended by friends?"

DAMAGES FOR WRONG VARIETY.

When it appears that a nurseryman has delivered fruit trees of a different variety from that ordered by a customer, and that the variance was not discovered until after the trees were planted and commenced to bear fruit, the damages recoverable by the buyer are to be measured by the difference between the value the orchard would have possessed had the trees been of the variety represented and the actual value of the orchard at the time the variance in variety was discovered.

This rule was laid down the other day by the appellate division of the New York Supreme court (157 New York Supplement 150). The buyer, a farmer, desiring to set out young trees for an orchard, purchased from a grower of nursery stock a quantity of young apple trees represented to be Baldwins. Whether they were of that variety or not could not be discovered by the buyer upon inspection of the trees delivered, but only when they began to bear fruit, so the court finds. Four years after the trees were set out it was discovered, when they began to bear fruit, that they were not Baldwin apple trees, but trees of an inferior variety. Thereupon the farmer brought suit to recover damages. At the trial he sought to prove as the proper measure of his damages the difference between the value of his orchard as it was at the time he discovered that the trees were not Baldwins and the value it would have been had the trees been of that variety. But the trial judge excluded evidence offered for this purpose, on an objection made by the nurseryman's counsel. The rule for measuring the farmer's damages adopted by the trial court was the difference between the value of the trees at the commencement of the suit and the value they would have had if they had been Baldwin apple trees, and the farmers gave evidence as to this difference in value. When the trial resulted in a judgment in the farmer's favor the nurseryman appealed to the appellate division, which affirmed the judgment, saying:

"We think the measure of the buyer's damages is the difference between the value of the orchard as it was and as it would have been had the trees been Baldwin apple trees, and that the buyer should have been allowed to give the testimony offered on that theory; but we also are of the opinion that the rule adopted by the trial judge has led to the same result, inasmuch as the witnesses who testified to the value of the trees as they were and as they would have been if Baldwin apple trees placed their value upon the trees as they stood in the ground for use as an orchard, and so, in effect, gave the amount which the trees reduced the value of the orchard." PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh still is in the lap of winter and the ground is nicely covered with snow. Stock of all kinds seems to have shortened in supply and one would scarcely know that Lent is here. Beauties are coming in more plentifully and are of much better quality than any since Christmas. Bulbous stock last week seemed to be finishing, and, as a result, the wholesale men cleaned up nicely, except on violets. The street men are the principal outlet for violets and it has been too cold for them to work. The retailers all seem to be fairly busy and have nothing unusual to report.

Various Notes.

Tuesday, March 14, a business meeting of the Horticultural Society was held in the Annex hotel. Seasonable flowers were shown and discussed, and a number of new members were elected, including T. P. Langhans and Oliver Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. James Stewart, foreman of the Edgeworth estate, was made an active member.

Harry Graves, formerly with the Zieger Co., now is a resident of California, going there to take a position made vacant when Walter Garbert, another Pittsburgh man, started in business for himself. I understand that they are both doing nicely.

Jack Frampton has left G. P. Weaklen & Co. to take a position with the Zieger Co., recently filled by Harry Graves. Frank Smith, formerly of Beaver Falls, Pa., has joined the G. P. Weaklen & Co. force. Clarke.

ATLANTA, GA.

A severe hail storm visited Atlanta March 7 and did great damage to glass in all parts of the city and vicinity. The hail was impartial and pelted every range, whether large or small. The small growers felt the misfortune more severely than the large establishments, even though they lost less glass. The plants timed for Easter suffered practically no injury and Easter will find everybody there with the goods, providence and hail permitting. As a cold wave followed the storm, there was some tall hustling done to replace the broken glass. Prices on glass soared immediately and the coal man came in for his share of the fun.

All agreed that this business of being targets for hailstones is not at all pleasant, but everybody seemed to be optimistic and faced the music with good grace.

The Westview Floral Co. perhaps suffered the most. This concern's loss was estimated at about $1,500. Wachendorff Bros. lost 500 panes of glass, and C. A. Britton is said to have lost one-half of his glass. T. C. and J. C. Coussey, Victor Lambert, W. A. Gresham and C. A. Dahl reported considerable broken glass. The Alto-Vista Floral Co. had about 1,500 panes broken by the storm. Mr. Witherspoon, who had just finished a new house, lost one-third of his glass.

Flowers are plentiful and business is normal. Blooming plants sell readily and we are expecting a big spring season. M. B. W.

¶ WE CORDIALLY INVITE ALL OUR FRIENDS who are coming to Philadelphia to the National Flower Show, to be held March 25 to April 2, to be our visitors. We will have an exhibit of our Craig Quality plant specialties at Convention Hall, Broad Street and Allegheny Avenue, where a hearty welcome awaits you. We also hope that you will arrange while in Philadelphia to visit our greenhouses, at 49th and Market Streets, and our new place, at Norwood, Delaware County, Pa. We think that both places will well repay you for the time spent in visiting them. Hoping to see all of our many friends in Philadelphia during the show, and to be of service to our visitors, we remain,

ROSE GROWERS

MME. PAUL EULER (Prima Donna)—You shouldn't be without it. A grand deep pink rose—darker, better form than the Russell—very fragrant and constant bloomer—always sells at highest American Beauty prices. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000. Order early.

CARNATION GROWERS

LAURA WEBER is a most pleasing shade of salmon-pink—a high-grade bloom, remains strong till summer, does not fade out, always commands better than the highest market price. You can't go wrong on buying 100 or 250 cuttings, if you don't care to get 1000 or more. Prices, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. First come, first served. Order now.

MUM GROWERS

Here are two most desirable varieties

ALEX. GUTTMAN—A very early lavender-pink, comes in bloom middle of September. Exhibition size, foliage not too large; can be planted close. $35.00 per 100. And EMMA—A Garza type anemone double pompon, light pink—it's a dandy. You will make no mistake in getting these. Comes in about November 15, stays to December. $15.00 per 100. Plants ready now.

Write us for further particulars. We have more good things coming!

The Market.

Trade is unusually heavy, with plenty of stock in most lines. Funeral work has been plentiful and has been the means of disposing of much stock. Roses are good and are more plentiful than for some time. Ophelia and Sunburst are becoming more plentiful and are welcome, as they are always in great demand, especially for corsages. Richmond, Killarney, Reid and Russell are doing nicely. Beauties still are scarce, with the demand on the increase. Carnations are a trifle off crop at this writing and on several occasions there has been quite a scramble for them.

Bulbous stock is not so plentiful as usual, and in most cases the receipts are cleaned up nicely. Valley has been scarce and the demand heavy at times. Lilies are more plentiful and there has been a good demand for them. Violets and sweet peas are moving well in corsages, of which there has been a great run. Potted plants sell readily and some good stock is to be had. Azaleas, lilacs, primulas and cinerarias are the offerings.

Various Notes.

The Livingston Seed Co. reports heavy business. This concern sold several thousand daffodils and jonquils in a special sale March 18.

The Munk Floral Co. is cutting some extra fine roses, with a good sprinkling of Sunburst.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is taking rose blooms from stock that will be run all summer. The carnations are off crop at present.

T. J. Ludwig has had a lively trade in baskets, at a special price, and reports business more than good.

C. A. Roth is well pleased with the returns at the greenhouses and says he is ahead of the game, as he has no high rent to pay.

S. S. Meyers, of Chicago, is moving his greenhouse and nursery business here. He has a place on East Main street, an unusually convenient location.

Our Specialty is Grafted Roses

WE grow many other young plants for the shipping trade, but "Grafted Roses" is the specialty. A visit to Cromwell will prove to you that we can back up our offers with stock that is of the highest quality. We are growing 700,000 this season, for we know that this year we will see much replanting that was not done last year. A good part of this quantity is already sold, and orders have been very gratifying.

If you are going to plant or replant, get in touch with us now. Give us a chance to give you the best plants that can be grown. Our prices are graded to suit the quantity, and the quality graded to be above competition. Write us now, or, better still, come and see what we have to offer.

THE BEST RED CARNATION

RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT!

WINNER of the Silver Medal of the American Carnation Society, at Buffalo, 1915; also WINNER of the SAME MEDAL in the same class at ST. LOUIS, 1916; also of Silver Medal of S. A. F. and O. H., at St. Louis, 1916. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is 3½ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.

We have 1500 plants growing in our greenhouses at Hollywood, Cal., devoted exclusively to rooted cuttings.

Orders for Pacific Coast States will please be sent to our Western Branch, care of E. B. Washburn, 252 South Orange Grove Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.

TRI-CITIES.

The Market.

Last week was a good one in the Tri-Cities. While there was a visible increase in the quantity of blooms, they cleaned up well at good prices. Carnations, which looked as though there would be a surplus, were disposed of without any decided break in prices. Bulbous stock is selling well, as are potted plants, for which there seems to be an ever-increasing demand. Sweet peas are more abundant, but are moving well; so are violets. Freesias and Paper Whites are in somewhat short supply.

General business has been satisfactory and funeral work has prevented any surplus from accumulating, giving a feeling of confidence.

Club Meeting.

The regular club meeting was held at Ludwig Stapp's place, in Rock Island. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, L. Stapp; vice-presidents, C. J. Reardon, H. Gaethje and Wm. Knees, Jr.; secretary, Wm. Goos; financial secretary, A. Andersen; treasurer, Wm. Knees, Sr.; trustees, E. Patten, H. Bills and W. C. Wilson.

The subject for discussion at the next meeting, as announced by C. O. E. Boehm, will be "Schizanthus Wisetonensis as a Commercial Plant." Members will also be asked to give their experience with Verbena venosa. The meeting will be held at the residence of William Knees, April 13.

Various Notes.

J. Staack reports that trade was unusually good last week.

Mrs. Forber, of Forber & Bird, says business has been decidedly better, with better prices than those of a year ago.

The P. T. Walsh funeral brought so heavy a demand for flowers of all kinds as to tax the capacity of the Davenport florists to the utmost. The large dealers had many outside telegraph orders, in addition to the home demand.

Miss M. A. Tierney, of the Bills Floral Co., disposed of 6,000 violets in one day last week. W. G.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The conditions of the market last week were about the same as those of the week previous, with one exception, that there was more funeral work. Stock is not too plentiful. Roses are more plentiful and of better quality; some exceptionally good Russell, Brilliant, Ophelia and Milady roses are received and they make quick sales. The Killarneys are not so much in demand, but there are none left over by evening. The carnations were short in supply, but not so short as the week previous. Lilies and bulbous stock of all kinds continue to hold up the cut flower market. There was less bulbous stock grown this year than during any of the last few years. Sweet peas were not quite so plentiful as before.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has its greenhouses in tiptop shape. The men are cutting daily about 4,000 carnations and 2,000 roses, all of especially good quality. The sweet peas are the best they have ever cut, some having 18-inch stems. This concern also has a fine line of pot plants that will be ready for the Easter trade. Mr. Rock has gone to Philadelphia to attend the National Flower Show.

August Luther supplied the Jones Dry Goods Co. with 400 ferns for decorations last week. He reports that funeral work was exceedingly heavy last week. His greenhouses are well filled with spring bedding stock and blooming pot plants, all of good quality.

A. F. Barbe has started to build his new range of houses. All will be of the wide type and used for growing roses. He is filling his old houses with spring stock.

Samuel Murray has left for Philadelphia. He is one of the judges of the National Flower Show. Mr. Murray has a house of extra fine hydrangeas.

The trade regrets to hear of the sad death of Mrs. Masson, the wife of James B. Masson.

T. J. Noll & Co. are receiving some extraordinarily fine Russell, Ophelia, Milady and Brilliant roses. This concern always seems to have a large supply of roses. W. J. B.

DREER'S HYDRANGEAS

for SPRING and MEMORIAL DAY

SELECT STANDARD VARIETIES

These are all stored in coldframes in a dormant condition; the 5- and 6-in. pots are in prime shape for flowering for Spring and Memorial Day sales, while the 2- and 3-in. pots will be found profitable for growing on.

Avalanche. Large corymbs of pure white flowers; very free-flowering.

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of well-formed flowers; rosy-amber, turning to bright pink.

E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size, color a most pleasing shade of pink which does not fade; growth vigorous.

General de Vibraye. Very large heads of bright rose; a splendid forcing variety.

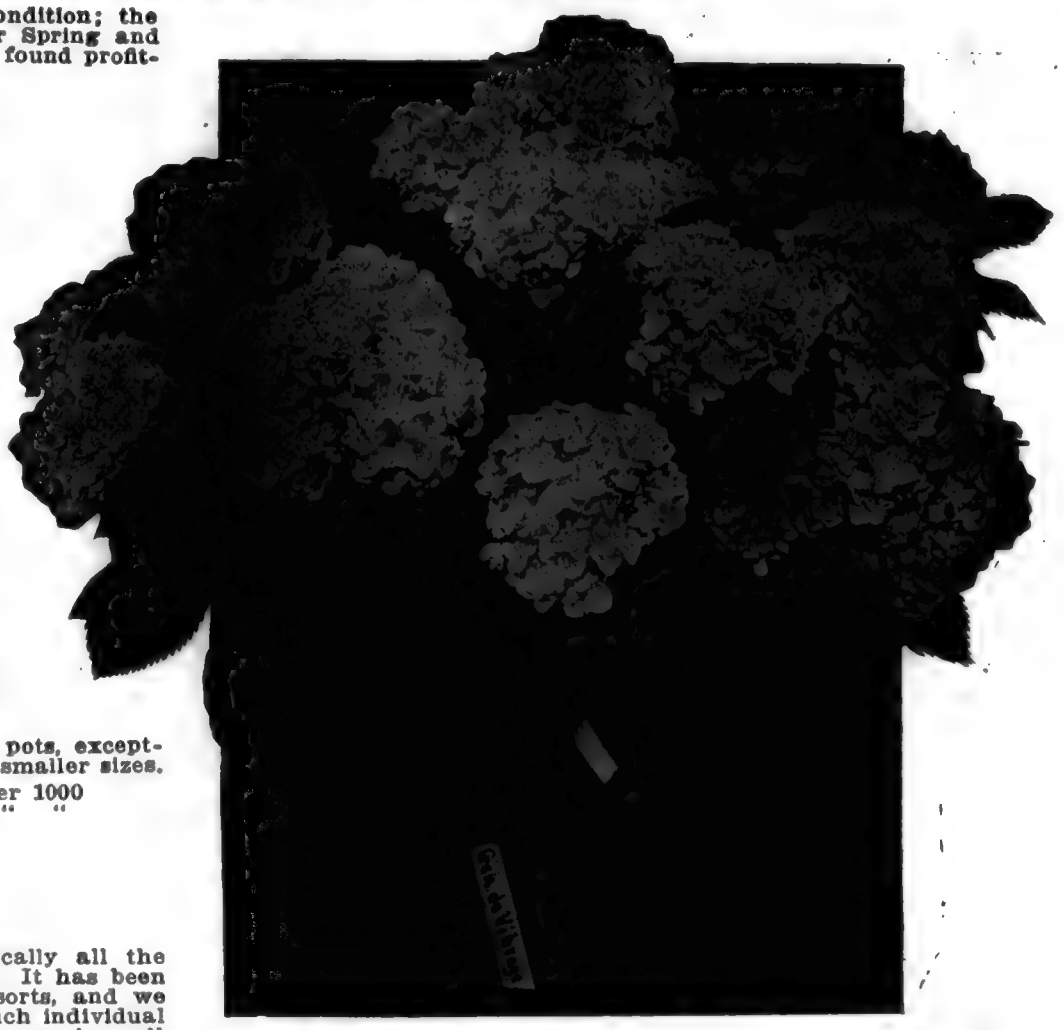
La Lorraine. Very large flowers; pale rose turning to bright pink.

Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Large panicles of milky-white irregularly dentated flowers.

Mme. Maurice Hamar. Large delicate flesh-rose color; a pleasing shade.

Mme. Emile Mouillere. One of the very best; very large flowers, frequently over 2 inches in diameter, of the purest white, with rosy-carmine eye.

Radiant. Splendid rose-carmine.



Ronsard. Very large individual flowers as well as trusses of a beautiful rose tint.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the prettiest; robust habit, medium-sized corymbs of bright rose-colored flowers.

Vieux-Chateau. A strong, upright growing variety with immense trusses of very large white flowers; these as they mature become suffused with a delicate rosy-carmine tint.

All of the above can be supplied in 2, 3, 5 and 6-in. pots, excepting E. G. Hill, which can only be furnished in the three smaller sizes.

New Hydrangeas

We have introduced to American commerce practically all the worthy French Hydrangeas in popular demand today. It has been our constant aim to discard superseded and inferior sorts, and we believe every variety in the sets following to possess such individual distinctive merit as will make it valuable. All plants are in well protected coldframes and will be kept dormant as late as possible in Spring.

Hydrangea Novelties for 1916

Directeur Vuillermet. Immense trusses of medium sized fringed good pink flowers.

L'Isiette. Rosy carmine of medium size, very free, unusually promising.

Louis Foucard. Very free flowering rosy carmine.

Mme. E. Tabar. Very delicate rose color.

Mme. Legou. Distinct, large and imposing creamy white.

Mme. R. Jacquet. Compact heads of a pretty pale pink.

Mlle. Lucienne Chaure. Nicely fringed bright rosy carmine, strong grower, a good garden variety.

Mlle. Rene Plessier. Splendid tender rose.

Prof. A. Vezzin. White with delicate carmine suffusion.

Souvenir de Mme. Victor Raoult. Very large lively rose.

Souvenir de Monsieur Belot. Lively carmine-rose.

Ville de Chartres. Immense pure white of vigorous habit.

Price: Any of above Novelties, 2¼-in. pots, 25c each, $2.50 per doz., $18.00 per 100; one each of the 12 sorts for $2.50.

Hydrangea Novelties of 1915

Baby Bimbenet. Very dwarf, free and early, the plant becomes covered with large, compact trusses of silvery-rose flowers.

Beaute Vendomoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink; the individual florets attain a diameter of 4 inches, and while it shows a tendency to a loose, open truss, this adds to its attractiveness.

Eclaireur. One of the most startling acquisitions, a very bright carmine-rose, the nearest approach to a red. We particularly recommend this.

La France. Very strong grower, with immense trusses of deeply fringed flowers of a delicate shade of rose.

La Perle. The grandest, largest and most refined white we have yet seen; flowers deeply fringed.

Lilie Mouillere. Similar to, but distinct from Eclaireur; a bright carmine-rose.

Louis Mouillere. A distinct and valuable variety, a fine shade of deep rose-pink fringed florets in trusses of immense size.

Mme. Auguste Nonin. An unusually attractive pretty pale pink in heads of large size.

Souvenir du Lieut. Chaure. Produces immense heads of bright rose-carmine flowers on bold, upright stems.

Price: Any of above 1915 introductions:
2-inch pots, $1.00 per doz., $7.00 per 100

The Market.

Although the Lenten season is on, there does not seem to be the falling off in business which is generally expected. Beauties have made their appearance again in noticeable quantity, for the first time in about four weeks. Other roses continue about the same. Ophelia and Sunburst seem to lead in popularity, though Killarneys also meet with a ready sale. White Killarney, however, has a tendency to drag. Carnations are getting better in quality. White carnations, as usual, were scarce and sold at a good price for St. Patrick's day. The supply of carnations in general seems to be quite sufficient.

Double violets are clearing daily, although more have been sold in former seasons than at present. Singles are as scarce as ever. Jonquils and daffodils are not so plentiful, but continue to sell rapidly. Tulips also are in shorter supply and there is no difficulty in clearing them. There is an abundance of freesia, but the demand is small. Sweet peas seem to be the feature of the market. The supply of valley and orchids has not increased. Excellent snapdragon is available. An accumulation of Easter lilies is again experienced, although many of them are cleared at a good price for funeral work. Miscellaneous flowers, such as pansies, daisies, mignonette, Roman hyacinths and calendulas, are equal to requirements. Greens continue to hold up along with the rest of the stock.

Various Notes.

Charles Netsch opened his wholesale house on Genesee street last week and is now able to give his patrons first-class service.

David Scott, of Corfu, was a recent visitor.

T. T. Fryer, of the Tajimi Co., New York city, was in town last week.

Among the many who will attend the National Flower Show at Philadelphia are W. J. Palmer and Wm. F. Kasting.

Sioux City, Ia.—Fire recently destroyed two sheds in the range of William Eubank, near Riverside park. The blaze started from hot ashes dumped near the sheds. The fire undermined a 40-foot smokestack, causing it to fall across a greenhouse, shattering glass and damaging plants. The loss was estimated at $1,200.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WILL NEED A TALLER CHIMNEY.

At present we are using a 17-horse-power boiler of locomotive type to heat a greenhouse 30x80 with hot water. On damp days we have considerable trouble in keeping the water hot, as the fire does not burn well. In cold weather there is no trouble, as the fire then burns briskly. We believe the trouble is due to the chimney, which is brick, 2½x3 bricks in width and about twenty-five feet in height. Next summer we expect to erect another house, 30x130, and we believe we shall have to use steam for heating, but it is certain that we must have more draft in order to make water boil in damp weather. The chimney connection is 16-inch.

Would it be best to increase the height of the present chimney. If so, how much extra height will be needed? Or would it be better to tear the old chimney down and build a larger and taller one? We want plenty of draft, as we have no night fireman and we are planning to use an automatic regulator to control the steam pressure. We have an electric alarm and attend to the boiler when necessary. We can find no tables containing information on this subject and shall be glad to get your advice. S. & S.—O.

From the description given, we infer that the chimney is 12x16 inches inside. This should be ample for a 17-horse-power boiler, carrying 2,500 square feet of radiation, but we would prefer a height of forty feet. This would add sixty per cent to the draft and should make it possible to heat both houses to 60 degrees with hot water. We cannot determine whether the present chimney should be rebuilt or extended.

WANTS FURTHER PARTICULARS.

I wrote to you some time ago, stating that I had difficulty in heating my greenhouses, and you replied in The Review of March 2, page 90, informing me that there was not enough radiation in the main house and that the flow was especially inadequate. Your answer was exceedingly helpful, but I am anxious to get a little more information. As stated in my former inquiry, I have a hot water heating system. The main house, which is 17x65, contains one 2-inch flow, connected with twelve 1½-inch returns, six on each side of the house. I also have a lean-to house, 10x17, and a glass-covered room, 10x18, which is located between the greenhouse and the barn. You suggested that I substitute two 2½-inch flows for the present single 2-inch flow.

Should the flow pipes be lower at the front of the house than at the rear end of the house, where the boiler is? Can I still use the present 2-inch flow and add a 2½-inch or 3-inch pipe, running it up six feet above the boiler, connecting it to the present flow and then running it over to the other purlin plate? In that case, would the 2½-inch or 3-inch flow rob the 2-inch flow? When I install another flow, as you advise, what should then be the size of the main return where it enters the boiler? When the houses are properly piped, will my 6-section Lord & Burnham boiler have sufficient capacity, or should I procure a larger one?

T. M. H.—O.

While it makes comparatively little difference, we prefer to give the pipes a slight fall from the boiler, or toward the front of the house in this case, as at present. We would use two 2½-inch flow pipes, as suggested, since a 2-inch flow pipe is not large enough to supply the return pipes on one side of the house. However, it will answer if two of the returns on that side are connected with a 3-inch pipe on the other side of the house. We would suggest the use of two 2½-inch flows, and the present 2-inch flow may then be used to bring up the radiation in the glass-covered room.

As stated previously, the main returns should be of the same size, or capacity, as the main flow pipes, and the coils should be connected with the boiler by means of two 2½-inch returns, or, if there is but one opening, they should be united to a 3-inch main return. If the boiler has a grate containing approximately four square feet, it should heat the houses easily.

SIZE OF HOUSE NOT STATED.

I am writing for some information in regard to heating a new carnation house with hot water. My present carnation houses have no heating pipes under the benches, but I can gain several feet of space in the new house by putting the pipes under the carnation benches. Do carnations do as well with bottom heat as without it? How many 2-inch flows will be needed overhead and how many 1¼-inch returns will be required? How many 2-inch flows will one 3-inch main take care of? G. B. W.—O.

We like to have at least one-half of the radiation under the benches in a carnation house, but care must be taken in watering to soak the soil sufficiently to prevent the drying out of the bottoms of the beds.

There is nothing in the letter of G. B. W. which gives any idea of the size of the house; hence we cannot give a definite answer to the question regarding the number of pipes. For a house twenty feet in width and not to exceed 100 feet in length, 2-inch pipe may be used for the flows, although we would prefer to use 2½-inch flows and would use 2-inch pipe for the returns. In houses less than fifty feet long, 1½-inch returns may be used. We would not care to use 1¼-inch returns in houses more than fifty feet in length, unless the systems are under pressure. For a house 20x50, with two feet of glass in each wall, we would use for carnations three 2-inch flow pipes and either seven 2-inch or nine 1½-inch returns, all of which may be under the benches.

Just how many 2-inch pipes can be supplied by a 3-inch main will depend largely upon the length of the pipes. For the best results, we would not attempt to carry more than 600 square feet of radiation by means of a 3-inch main, unless the coils are more than 100 feet in length. This would mean that about nine 2-inch pipes 100 feet long may be carried by a 3-inch main.

FOR GENERAL STOCK.

We should like to have your opinion on the piping of a greenhouse for general plants. We shall use hot water heat. A rough outline of the house is attached. As you see, it is 14x36 and runs east and west, with the boiler at the northwest corner. The north side is weather-boarded and is five feet high. The south side contains twenty-four inches of glass above eighteen inches of weather boards. The east end is weather-boarded to a height of three feet; the balance is glass. The west end is against the potting shed, which contains the boiler. It is desired to keep the boiler on the ground level, and thus the opening for the return pipe would be just six inches above the surface of the ground.

K. P. & T. F.—Pa.

To heat a greenhouse 14x36 to 60 degrees, we would run a 2½-inch flow pipe two feet below the ridge to the father end of the house and then, after dropping down to the level of the plates, connect the flow pipe to nine 1½-inch return pipes in two coils, by means of two 2-inch pipes. Run these coils to the corners of the house and then along the side walls, or under the side benches, to the boiler end of the house, connecting each coil with the boiler by means of a 2-inch pipe.

Use five return pipes in the coil on the side where there is glass in the wall and four returns in the other coil. Keep the coils well up on the walls, as this tends to improve the circulation. If it is possible to do so, we would recommend dropping the boiler about eighteen inches below the level of the ground. Give the flow pipe a slight drop and connect the expansion tank with the highest point in the system.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

At the meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society last week it was announced that the dates for the midsummer flower show of the society would be changed. The dates are to be advanced one week, to August 17, 18 and 19, so as not to conflict with the annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society, which will be held in Boston.

Bruce Butterton read an interesting paper on "The Boxwood and Its Enemies," in which he spoke of some of the pests that infest boxwood. A ladies' night is being arranged and a committee to take charge of the affair was appointed, consisting of William Smith, William Mackay, Andrew Meikle, William Gray and Bruce Butterton. Two lectures are to be given before the club during the next two months. March 28 Prof. Burt L. Hartwell, of Kingston, will speak on "How Plants Feed." April 25, E. H. Wheeler, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., will lecture on "Flowers and Gardens of Japan."

James Bond exhibited a vase of tulips, Glory of Haarlem, which was awarded a cultural certificate by the society.

Various Notes.

The land and greenhouses on the J. J. Van Allen estate, Morton avenue, are announced for sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart Ritchie are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter last week.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business was quite brisk last week. We are still having real winter weather; several inches of snow fell today, March 20. Stock of all kinds, excepting Beauties, is in good supply and of fine quality. There is a good supply of plants. Everyone is anticipating a big Easter, judging from the orders already placed with the plant specialists.

Various Notes.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Detroit Florists' Club combined business with pleasure March 15, when it met at the home of Mrs. Charles Plumb.

Herman Pautke, for many years foreman at the Breitmeyer Mack avenue greenhouses, soon will give up his position to start in business for himself. William Breitmeyer will take charge of the greenhouses.

The Bemb Floral Co. is pushing bird houses stronger than ever this season. One of the large windows is banked to the ceiling with bird houses of the company's own manufacture. H. S.

DIRT BANDS

Very soon every grower will be making free use of dirt bands for the growing of all plants. Certainly, no florist can afford to pass them by. They are time and money savers, producing better plants at less cost and with less labor. It simply is a question of getting the best band.

Our new READY-USE dirt band tells its own story. Send a postal for free samples and see how it does it. It comes to you ready to set the plant in, which means saving of very valuable time required to fold the ordinary strips of paper commonly offered for bands.

We make plain bands, too, from high-grade, hard finish stock. Samples will be sent. Compare them with others and put them to any test. It is not how cheap, but how good, is our motto.

PRICES OF PLAIN SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1000	5000	10,000	20,000	50,000	100,000

4-in.....	1.10	5.40	10.20	21.00	48.00	92.00

Plain bands require folding, but our simplified instructions make it easy.

PRICE OF READY-USE SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1,000	5,000	10,000	50,000	100,000
2x2x2-in....	$1.00	$4.00	$ 7.50	$35.00	$60.00

The Market.

Business decreased the first part of the week, but all the florists were found busy the second half. The usual Lenten dullness is prevailing. There has been a good demand for funeral work and flowers for the sick. Violets are plentiful and are sold at 75 cents and $1 per hundred. Carnations still are scarce. Roses of all varieties were plentiful and sold at 75 cents to $4 per dozen. Bicolor Victoria narcissi, tulips and hyacinths are seen everywhere. The supply of green carnations for St. Patrick's day was far short of the demand. Never in the history of the trade was the call so large for green carnations.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Scranton Florists' Club was held at the Baldwin store, March 12. There were about twenty in attendance. President Ray MacDonald called the meeting to order at 8:30. The committee on exhibits reported that the following had taken space for the show: Baldwin, Florist, T. B. McClintock, A. Schultheis, R. MacDonald, R. L. Besancon & Co., the New York Floral Co., J. W. Beagle, G. R. Clark, the West Side Floral Co., F. W. Mackey, Daniel Webster, J. Wade, of Carbondale, Pa.; B. F. Dorrance, of Kingston, Pa.; Ira G. Marvin, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia. The committee to see private greenhouse owners reported that all are going to exhibit.

The society people of Scranton are going to have a tea room at the show, the proceeds to go to charity. This is going to be a good drawing card.

The publicity committee reported that it had made arrangements with the daily papers to carry a full-page advertisement for the three days of the show. The price of trade tickets for the show was fixed at 12½ cents and admission tickets at 25 cents each. George Greyhammer was admitted to membership. The next meeting will be held April 2, and it is hoped that everyone will attend.

Various Notes.

M. L. Ruch, manager for Baldwin, has severed his connection and accepted a position as manager of the Susquehanna Floral Co., of Binghamton, N. Y. He has the best wishes of all for success.

A. L. Besancon & Co. report a busy month in decorations. They had a tasteful window display of cut flowers and bulbous stock last week.

About thirty of the florists are planning to attend the National Flower Show at Philadelphia.

John Rovatsos, of the New York Floral Co., has returned from a business trip to Philadelphia.

F. J. M.

Fulton, Mo.—J. W. McIntire, who has been in the greenhouse business here since 1879, expects to tear down his range of glass, consisting of 7,000 feet, and move it near his ice plant. He plans to erect two houses next summer, each 30x100. February 17 was a sort of reunion day at the McIntire place. William Kirkland, of Rapid City, S. D., and Fred A. Hallows, of Bowling Green, Mo., two of McIntire's former growers, made a call that day.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24¼ inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business was quite satisfactory for St. Patrick's day. There was plenty of stock and white carnations were in big demand. Local business was dull, however, but shipping orders more than made up the deficit occasioned by the local stagnancy. The lack of business in the city is rather unusual and is attributed to a great extent to the mammoth bazaar held recently for the German and Polish war sufferers. The public purchased freely and the trade donated liberally. People seem to be retrenching in an effort to recuperate from their extravagance at the bazaar.

Just now there seems to be an oversupply of roses. The stock is being cleaned up fairly well, but quite an improvement is to be desired. The quality is good and some excellent stock is being moved at fair prices. Carnations are in fine shape and there are more than enough to go around. There is but little surplus of good stock, however, which is bringing good prices. The weaker stock is hard to move, even at bargain prices.

Watertown violets remain in plentiful supply and some exceptionally fine singles are to be had at fair prices. There is plenty of sweet peas, but, while select stock is bringing good returns, the poorer stock is not moving as satisfactorily as it should. Valley is steadily becoming better and the supply is sufficient for all needs. Orchids are rather scarce at the present time, but the demand is not heavy and little difficulty is experienced in filling orders. Smilax and greens are not plentiful and it is hard to fill orders satisfactorily. There is much bulbous stock in fine shape and bringing good prices. There is no room for complaint this year on that score.

Various Notes.

Martin Christiansen, who formerly was associated with Henry Koegler, operating the East Side Floral Co., has opened a florists' establishment at Park street and Murray avenue. Mr. Christiansen says that business has been good so far and that he has no complaint to make. Mr. Koegler remains at the old stand, at 468 Farwell avenue.

Harold Baumgarten, while coming down to the store March 13 with his mother in their machine, was arrested for speeding and had to disgorge $26.58 in court the next morning. F. H. Holton also was stopped the same morning, but succeeded in placating the minion of the law and getting away with it. Diplomacy surely pays—sometimes.

Make Customers Successful with Your Plants—

Your customers buy potted plants. Often they wither and die and you are blamed for the failure. It's simply because plant food is lacking. Your customers don't want fertilizers with offensive odors. They need Odorless Fertilo that does not mar the fragrance of the flowers. Just the material for Lawns, Flowers, Shrubs and Small Gardens. You can sell several cans of Odorless Fertilo to each customer who buys potted plants and several bags to those with gardens. Make them more successful and they will become flower enthusiasts.

FERTILO is nature's pure plant food and combines all the essential elements required by plant life: Ammonia, Phosphoric Acid, Bone, Phosphate of Lime and Potash. Makes the necessary Humus for enriching the soil and is also an excellent Insecticide.

FERTILO is odorless, will not get hard and lumpy. Put up in handy containers in 1 and 5-lb. sizes, and in 10 and 50-lb. bags. The 1-lb. package will fertilize 10 gallons of earth for potted plants or 50 sq. ft. of surface. Retails for 25c. Full and simple directions printed on each package.

Florists, truckers and landscape gardeners recommend Odorless Fertilo.

Send us 6c in stamps to cover postage and we will send you free sample of the 1-lb. package, together with full particulars, and quote you our liberal terms to florists.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

So far the month of March has been the worst as to weather conditions. The temperature has been within a dozen degrees of zero nearly every night. There has been an unusual shortage of good stock and the demand has been rather heavier than usual, owing largely to funerals of prominent persons. Everybody is looking for a good Easter business and the local growers are making big promises.

Various Notes.

John Davis, of Little Compton, was a visitor to this city and Boston last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Connor is arranging for many changes at her range of greenhouses.

Charles Hunt, of Burnside street, has planned an extended automobile trip through to Chicago, as soon as settled weather comes.

Joseph E. Koppelman has sold the farm section of his property at Oaklawn, retaining the greenhouses and several acres of land.

J. H. Cushing, of the Quidnick Greenhouses, Quidnick, reports a largely increased business during the last few months. He is taking on more assistants.

Olney H. Williams and John Burke have formed a partnership and will conduct a wholesale business in cut flowers, plants and supplies, on Clemence street.

Charles Smith visited Boston last week, looking for stock for Easter.

Ex-president Thomas Hope, of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the recent death of Mrs. Hope.

The Shepard Co. had an especially heavy run on shamrocks in miniature pots, at 5 and 9 cents each, St. Patrick's day.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Rose Gardens, are spending several weeks in Vermont.

Miss Ellen O'Connor reported several large funeral orders last week.

Max Villers has returned from a pleasure trip to New York and vicinity.

Johnston Bros. have been unusually busy with funeral orders. They are already making heavy bookings for Easter delivery.

F. Macrae & Sons have a fine looking lot of lilies for Easter. Fewer of these flowers are being grown hereabouts this year than during the last several years. W. H. M.
